Low lights, fancy food, and now MLAs get wine

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

One more comfort was added Tuesday to the already subsidized MLAs' dining room in the Legislative Buildings — B.C. wine.

The $50,000 annual subsidy allows chef Felice and his staff to prepare such full course delights as Tuesday's special: French onion soup au gratin, filet of beef, cordon rouge (a filet stuffed with pate foie gras encased in prosciutto ham served atop puff pastry), braised lettuce, a strawberry delight and coffee all for $5.25.

But the wine is no special deal. So far only one red and one white are available by either the large or small glass.

And both are medium sweet. This reporter, who investigated the inauguration of the new dining service (candle light and waitresses in long gowns accompanied the new wine service), found his "large" glass to contain about four ounces of lukewarm medium sweet white B.C. wine.

Trying not to be a snob, he drank it anyway, but commented afterwards that it just didn't go with the fruit and cheese plate ($1.50) that he had for dinner.

The dining room is hoping to go to different varieties of wine next year, and hopes to serve bottled wine as well.

The wine service has been a long time coming. During the 20-year reign of teetotalling W.A.C. Bennett there wasn't much chance MLAs would be able to imbibe alchohol in the dining room.

And since that time getting a liquor licence has presented some difficulty.

Last year a licence was granted but no wine was ever served.

Some members had expressed concern there might be political repercussions from the public.

Beef price expected to ease

Local retailers estimate prices will drop between seven and 12 cents a pound due to a drop of six cents in the wholesale price.

The drop is not expected to last and prices should be up again by the end of August.

The wholesale drop is due to the seasonal beef kill. There is still a general shortage of beef.

Late bills cost B.C. $410,000 per month

The provincial forests ministry is three to four months behind in billing for $50 million in stumpage fees and the delay is costing taxpayers $410,000 a month in interest, officials say.

Billings are also behind for the attorney-general's ministry, particularly from the land registry branch, and the energy, mines and petroleum resources ministry for a total in lost interest revenue of between $750,000 and $1 million.

The forestry officials pointed out, however, that the situation has improved from what it was a year ago.

"At this time last year we were $86 million behind," one official said.

Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Tuesday he was aware of the problems within his ministry and the B.C. Systems Corporation, the government's computer division.

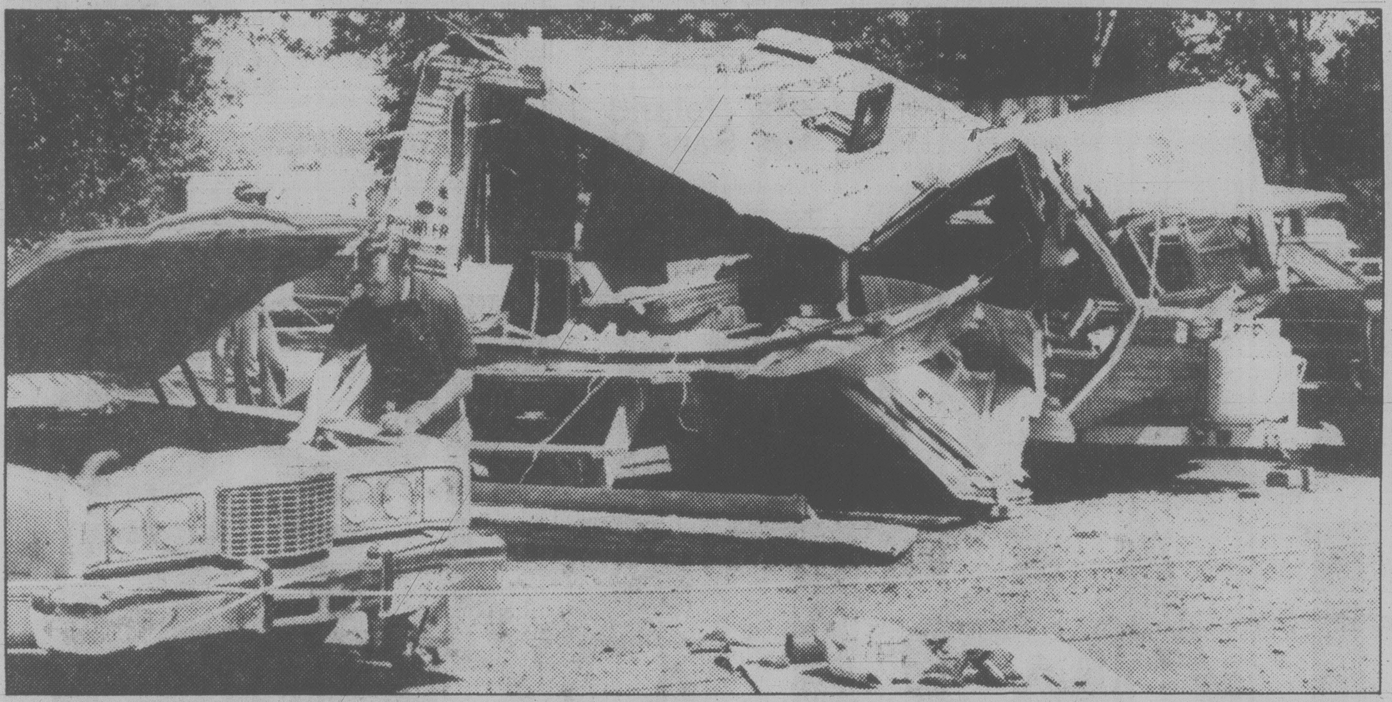
"Frankly I don't think we are quite as far behind as you are suggesting," he said. "But we are behind in our billing. It's a constant problem and one we are working hard to rectify."

Waterland said neither his ministry nor the systems corporation are to blame.

"We are lacking computer terminals in the field and until they are in place to file data directly into the system, we are always going to be behind," he said.

Late billings and loss of interest revenue was disclosed by Auditor-General Erma Morrison in her report to the legislature earlier this year.

At that time she suggested a tightening up of procedures which had resulted in the loss to the treasury of $86 million for three months.



FLYING GLASS shot all around him but Lorne Armstrong of Peterborough didn't get a scratch Tuesday when a Winnipeg family's trailer blew up at the KOA campground on Mt. Newton Crossroad. Armstrong shows where he was standing when the trailer, owned by Gilbert Blais of Winnipeg, split asunder in a blast believed caused by a propane leak. Blais is in fair condition in the burns unit at Victoria General Hospital and his wife and son are in good condition. See story on page 13. (Paul Minvielle photo)

Hundreds enter race

Deadline for entering the event is noon Thursday. Entry forms will be accepted at the Times or at the participating stores listed below until that time. Mailing deadline has passed.

Victoria office worker Bev Sorenson, who won a trophy in the race five years ago, passes along these tips for the first-timers in Sunday's event:

"My partner (provincial government employee Helen Chamberlain) and I discovered you go a lot faster if you don't drag anything in the water. We put our feet up on the tube. It's more comfortable to dangle your feet in the water but the resistance means you have to paddle harder.

"Also sit high enough so your rear-end is out of the water or that can really slow you down.

There is a race-eve dance at 8 p.m. Saturday night at Victoria Curling Rink. The admission of $5 a couple, couples only, goes to amateur sports. There are prizes for costumes and dance competitions.

Downtown - Ray's Sports Centre, 1692 Douglas.
Oak Bay - Oak Bay Sporting Goods, 2077 Oak Bay.
Esquimalt - La Pointe's Sporting Goods, 24 — 1153 Esquimalt.
Gorge - Premier Sports & Cycle, 2965 Tillicum.
Colwood, Langford - Alexander's Sporting Goods, 2244 Sooke.
Sooke - Westbrook Sooke Hardware, 2038 Otter Point.
Sidney - Harvey's Sporting Goods, 7485 Beacon.

The form may also be brought in to the Times.

Inflation watchdog killed off

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Crosbie said today the government is disbanding the National Commission on Inflation, the inflation watchdog agency set up by the former Liberal government in March.

Crosbie said the new Conservative administration "does not see any need for an agency set up by the previous Liberal administration primarily to pretend that it was doing something about inflation."

The inflation commission was the fifth inflation monitoring agency set up by the Liberal government in 10 years and its creation was strongly attacked by the Conservatives while they were in opposition.

Crosbie said the government still "intends to take actions that will deal firmly with the threat of inflation".

Meanwhile, in Montreal, a Gallup poll released today indicates that most Canadians favor price and wage controls.

The poll, taken last month in a sample of 2,095 adults, showed that 66 per cent of the respondents were in favor of price controls, with 26 per cent against and eight per cent unsure, while 51 per cent were for wage controls, with 39 per cent against and 10 per cent unsure.

Hydro report 'does exist'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The author of a report that Environment Minister Rafe Mair says doesn't exist said Tuesday the provincial government paid about $8,000 for a document which strongly questions the need for a British Columbia Hydro line to service Vancouver Island.

Economist Dr. Marvin Shaffer said he was retained for about a month at a daily rate of $245 to look at the electrical load growth on Vancouver Island.

He also reviewed alternative sources of energy, electrical pricing and the need for the twin 500,000-kilovolt transmission lines across the Sechelt Peninsula 50 kilometres northwest of Vancouver to Vancouver Island.

The report "never saw the light of the day," Shaffer said.

Mair told a group of Sechelt Peninsula residents at Sakinaw Lake Monday that there was no Shaffer report.

"I have been informed that ELUC (the inter-ministry Environment Land Use Committee) had in its midst a Dr. Marvin Shaffer who was one of a number of consultants who may have prepared the unsigned memorandum which I saw," Mair said.

"Hydro is determined the line is going to be built and chooses its own advisers," said Shaffer. "The government isn't going to release my report - I think they should but I can't tell them what to do with my work."

Mair said today in Victoria that the report should never have been commissioned because the government had already decided to allow Hydro to proceed with the power line.

He said the government did not commission it and will not pay for it.

"I think what I had better do is find the report," he said in an interview.

"I have asked for it and I haven't seen the damned thing. I accept the fact that Dr. Shaffer says he did a report and I know the secretariat retained Shaffer's services.

"But, whether or not there is a report I still don't know. I am not trying to play games. I have never seen it, never authorized it and haven't paid for it."

UN's army leaving Sinai

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — After six years of keeping a sometimes fragile peace the United Nations today began withdrawal of its 4,000-man army in the Sinai Peninsula.

There are 844 Canadian troops in the force providing basic logistic services along with Polish forces. But it will be a while before they are repatriated home.

A UN spokesman said it will take six to eight weeks to dismantle UNEF, with infantry forces going first.

But it will be much longer before all administrative functions are ended — seven months to one year.

In Ottawa, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said in an interview that because they are "cooks and suppliers" Canadians attached to the UNEF probably will remain in the Sinai longer than others.

But Canadians could be out within three months of the order to move — taking all their equipment with them, even the air conditioners that the troops put in at their own expense to make life more livable in the hot climate.

Canada has always had a logistical role in UNEF, providing such things as communications and transportation. The external spokesman noted that the logistical forces also serve other UN groups, such as that on the Golan Heights between Israel and Syria.

About 150 Canadians are on that force, which is not affected.

The move came amid efforts to sell Israel on a U.S.-backed proposal for a substitute observer force to oversee the Middle East peace settlement.

There was no immediate resolution to the dispute between the United States and Israel over the U.S. plan to station a few hundred members of the UN Truce Supervision Organization in the vast Sinai region, which Israel occupied during its 1973 war with Egypt.

In fact, rhetoric between the two long-time allies grew stronger.

Israeli officials claimed the United States was reneging on a commitment to enforce provisions of the Israel-Egypt treaty signed here last March.

Multi-million $$ Hollywood bilk

By JERRY COHEN
and ALAN MALTUN
Los Angeles Times

The victims were wealthy Los Angeles area businessmen with almost as much larceny in their hearts as the rip-off artists, police said.

For months, vice officers had known about the racket, which one officer estimated may have relieved the wealthy victims of millions of dollars. But the investigators had a problem: None of the victims would lodge an official complaint, for fear of publicity, reprisal, embarrassment or a combination of all three.

Until last week. And then only after a man lost $160,000 to the bunco artists. Plus his $50,000 Rolls-Royce.

That was the wedge investigators needed, and teams of officers made three separate simultaneous arrests Tuesday.

Another squad raided Montgomery's $1 million home, where they seized gambling paraphernalia, one of the raiders said. Montgomery does not live there. He was leasing the residence, and was in no way involved in the scam, police said.

But the occupant of the luxurious home was arrested when he slammed a door in raiders' faces as they sought to enter, police said.

Booked with interfering with officers was Tom Gilbert, 40, whom they said is a professional backgammon player, and a member of the board of directors of Pips, a West Los Angeles backgammon club frequented by celebrities.

The three arrested on more serious charges — conspiracy and conspiracy to commit grand theft — were identified by officers as Attila DeAgh, 39, Jerry Mack Morris, 36, and Michael Neuman, 35.

All three were taken into custody at 7:30 a.m. at their homes south of Los Angeles — DeAgh in Newport Beach, Morris in Buena Park and Neuman in South Laguna Beach.

Officers from the Los Angeles police department, the Los Angeles County sheriff's office, Newport Beach and the City of Orange participated in the arrests and Hollywood

PLO chief shot in France

CANNES (AP) — Zuhair Mohsen, military operations chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization and head of its Syrian-backed Saiqa wing, was in a deep coma and fighting for his life today after a gunman shot him in the head at point-blank range, police sources said. The PLO blamed Israel for the attack.

Mohsen, 43, was shot just before midnight Tuesday night as he returned to his rented apartment in a luxury block in this French Riviera resort. The attacker was one of two men waiting for him on a landing, the sources said.

He was taken to St. Roch Hospital in nearby Nice, where sources said he underwent a "delicate operation" and doctors were "very pessimistic" about his condition. Police sources said his condition was extremely critical.

Officially, police would say only that a PLO leader had been shot. They said they had strict orders "from very high up" to disclose nothing.

But PLO officials in Europe confirmed the victim was Mohsen.

In Beirut, the PLO blamed the shooting on operatives it said were linked to the office of Israeli Premier Menachem Begin and called it the start of a campaign of annihilation against Palestinians.

PLO leader Yasser Arafat sent a high-level, four-man delegation to Paris to investigate the incident, the official Palestinian news agency said.

Mohsen was in Cannes with his wife en route home from leading the PLO delegation to last week's summit of the Organization of African Unity in Monrovia, Liberia.

Sources said French police and the counter-intelligence service, the DST, did not know of Mohsen's presence in France. He was believed to have arrived last Friday from Monrovia.

The sources said he possessed many passports, including one from Chile, and passed through immigration without incident.

Farouk Kaddoumi, the PLO political chief of equal ranking with Mohsen, was being received in Paris today by French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet, a meeting scheduled some days ago. Ministry officials said reporters and photographers would be barred.

Almost a year ago, on Aug. 3, two Arab gunmen assassinated the Paris PLO representative, Ezzidine Kalak, in his office in the French capital. They claimed they were working for Abu Nidal, the head of a rejectionist front Palestinian terrorist group based in Iraq.

On Jan. 25, 1973, Basil El Kubaisi, a leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, was shot and killed on a Paris street by unknown assailants. On Dec. 8, 1972, one of Kalak's predecessors, Mahmoud Hamchari, was fatally wounded when a bomb connected to his telephone exploded in his Paris apartment.

Visitor in hospital

A 27-year-old Prince George man is in good condition in Victoria General Hospital with injuries received in a single-car crash at Menzies and Niagara just before midnight Tuesday.

Police said Brian Fochler was driving south along Menzies when he swerved to miss an oncoming vehicle and hit a telephone pole.

A passenger, Gary Evans, 17, of 614 Monterey, was taken to Victoria General where he was treated for minor cuts and bruises and released.

Police said Fochler's car, a new Firebird valued at $8,000, was demolished.

Bumblebee sting fatal

NAKUSP (UPC) — An Ontario man on holidays in this central interior community died Wednesday an hour after he was stung by a bumblebee, RCMP said Tuesday.

Marc Meslin, 35, of Streetsville, Ont., died in Nakusp Hospital after he was stung by a bee while driving in his van to nearby Edgewood with a friend, whose name was not released.

After being treated by a nurse at the first aid post in the small town of Edgewood, Meslin was taken back to Nakusp by ambulance, where he died 55 minutes later.

An autopsy will be performed, but police said doctors are fairly certain it was the sting that killed Meslin.

Happy birthday for wonder baby

Louise . . . first birthday

Curly-haired, blue-eyed Louise Brown, who won instant fame simply by being born, celebrates her first birthday today. Although messages of congratulation to the world's first test-tube baby have been arriving at the new $65,000 suburban Bristol, England, home of her parents, John and Lesley Brown, the anniversary has inspired little of the excitement that attended her birth.

When Adrienne Zimmerman of Great Neck, N.Y., entered Adelphi College in 1975, she said in a lawsuit filed Tuesday, she had an "oral contract" with her father under which he agreed to pay all of her college and law-school expenses. But, the 21-year-old would-be lawyer said in her court papers, her father, Theodore Zimmerman, paid only for her first year at Adelphi and is $6,700 in arrears for the following two years. Zimmerman, a Manhattan lawyer, said he would have no comment on his daughter's suit, filed in State Supreme Court in Manhattan. In the suit Miss Zimmerman maintained that her father could easily afford her education expenses on his annual earnings of more than $50,000.

Sir Ralph Richardson led a carnival-like protest march across London on Tuesday as about 3,000 British entertainers demanded a financial break from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government. Actors and actresses mingled with showgirls, ballerinas and impresarios, slowing traffic to a crawl in Piccadilly. The procession from Hyde Park Corner to the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, was organized by the actors' union, Equity, to protest cuts in government subsidies and an across-the-board increase in sales tax. Among those joining the march were Susan Hampshire, star of the television series The Forsyte Saga, Shirley Ann Field, the London cast of Bubbling Brown Sugar and tribal dancers from the South African show Ipi-Tombi.

Two years ago, George Willig scaled the 1,350-foot south tower of New York's World Trade Centre for the sheer love of it. Tuesday, the self-proclaimed "Human Fly" climbed the 45-degree tower atop Manhattan's Citicorp Building for sheer money — eclipsing George Burns, Art Carney and Lee Strasberg who were making a movie on the sidewalk 300 metres below. Willig — who said in 1977 he wasn't "into making a lot of money" — made his latest climb amid swarming camera crews to do a commercial for a yogurt company. Burns, Carney and Strasberg were making more money, filming a scene for Warner Brothers' Going in Style.

And finally, Jean-Claude Boyer complained bitterly to police in Nice, France. He said a bunch of young hoodlums beat him up, stole his pistol and $7,500 after seeing him flash a large wad of banknotes in a bar. And why was Boyer flashing banknotes? He was celebrating the successful holdup in which he had obtained the $7,500 in the first place. To salt the wound, the shopkeeper Boyer had robbed three days earlier recognized him after his beating — despite his swollen, bleeding face — and called police who arrested him.

Bengali hijackers surrender after nine hours

CALCUTTA (UPI) — Three hijackers who commandeered a Bangladesh Biman passanger plane today and threatened to blow it up unless they were paid $1 million have surrendered to police.

The hijackers took over the aircraft with 43 passengers and crew aboard during the 100-km flight from Jessore to Dacca and ordered it to land at Calcutta's Dum Dum Airport.

During nine tense hours of negotiations, the hijackers released Mrs. Mufuja Khatun, 30, her 2½-year-old baby, and a man on crutches, Mosaffar Hossaina, 40.

The three Bengali-speaking hijackers had said the Fokker Friendship aircraft the 40 persons on board would be blown up unless they were given the ransom and a getaway plane by 6 p.m. (5:30 a.m. PDT). Their surrender came within minutes of the deadline.

Khomeini gay target

TURIN (AP) — Italy's gay association declared war on Ayatollah Khomeini today, offering a $1 million reward for delivery of the Iranian revolutionary and religious leader to Italy to be tried for "crimes" against homosexuals.

Angelo Pezzana and Renzo Francone, leaders of the Front of Revolutionary Homosexuals, said a large amount of the reward has been already raised through self-taxation by Italian gays.

Ignoring history

In adopting a hard line towards the holders of 99-year leases on some B.C. apartment blocks, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm appears to be ignoring history.

Vander Zalm has said he will probably not give recent buyers of the leases the benefit of the homeowner grant because the government doesn't approve of leased property. It wants to encourage simple ownership, not 99-year leases. Accordingly, the government is denying the $380 grant to everyone who has bought a 99-year lease after Dec. 31, 1977.

The statements don't sound unreasonable, but they take no account of the history of the 99-year-lease buildings, two of which are in Victoria.

The 99-year-leases were an invention of landlords in the early 1970s when housing, especially rental accomodation, was at a premium in both Victoria and Vancouver. At that time a number of landlords discovered that greater profits were to be made in condominiums than in apartments and they began to convert their apartment buildings. Many times tenants were forced either to buy their suites or to find new accommodation in a very tight market.

As a result, governments intervened to ensure the interests of tenants were not harmed. In many cases it became impossible to convert a rental apartment block into a condominium block without government approval.

A few landlords, however, discovered a loophole in the law: if they did not formally convert their buildings but instead told drew up 99-year leases for all tenants, they were not subject to the new rules. At the same time a 99-year lease was, for all practical purposes, the same as a conversion to a condominium.

The loophole was quickly plugged. Only a few buildings in all B.C. had been converted to the long leases.

Those buildings, however, will remain governed by the long-term leases until they expire. Persons moving from them must sell their interest in the lease; they cannot sell their suite itself. Likewise, persons moving in end up buying the interest in the lease. This cannot be changed.

It seems blatantly unfair that some persons in these buildings gain the homeowner grant because they bought their lease before the end of 1977 while others, having exactly the same type of lease and paying exactly the same expenses, are denied it just because they moved in later.

For Vander Zalm to allow the grant to all persons in these few buildings would not be an encouragement for people to lease rather than buy. It would rather be an acknowledgement of an historical fact that won't go away for 95 years or more.

Quick, convenient — and wrong

Remember what they said, computers were going to make life easier? Just slap down that little rectangle of plastic, wait for the cashier to send the number to some distant machine and walk away with a new suit. Pay for it 30 days later when the computer sends a statement. Takes all the drudgery out of record-keeping.

Today computers keep track of credit records, process cancelled cheques, handle reservations for airlines, tell department stores how many widgets are in stock, route that postcard to your door, all kinds of amazing things. And it's getting harder and harder to tell the computer it's made a mistake.

Prof. Ted Sterling has made a study of run-ins between computers and people. You know the kind of situation: some computer's henchman repeatedly sends a form letter demanding payment for something you never bought. The professor's findings were not encouraging.

He and the B.C. Consumers' Association co-operated in a survey of the problem. Questionnaires were mailed to 1,000 BCCA members, and more than 40 per cent reported errors in computer-generated bills and statements.

Seven per cent of these tried but failed to get a correction made, even after several attempts. Eight per cent didn't even try. Why make the effort, they said, when it takes more time and money than it's worth? Sterling discovered that on average it took eight weeks to correct a computer mistake. The worst cases dragged on for almost five months.

Paying cash may help the eccentric, but for the majority who depend on credit cards the problem is going to get worse, says Sterling. "The trend is toward replacing by electronic signals much of the visible record left from transactions between man and system," he says. What will happen when the computer-generated bits of paper — bills, cheques, receipts and the like — wither away?

To judge by the number of errors committed today by computers or their operators, the future may see an exponential increase in ulcers and teeth-gnashing. The industry ought to develop a better batting average.

Sterling suggests if computer corporations can devise systems to send out warning notices on overdue bills, each one a little more demanding than the last, then why can't they come up with a computer that is just as quick to send a thank you note when a correspondent finds an error?

Mayhew praised

We need more Barry Mayhews in B.C. to speak up and tell it like it is without fear of the ballot box.

This area has experienced high unemployment as a result of industry and business leaving to other areas in the past four or five years. To correct this situation a "commissioner of economics" representing Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich, North Saanich, Sidney and Langford-Metchosin regional areas as well as the B.C. government department of economics, was commissioned. His role was to assist in promoting industry, tourism and business in this area.

Many of us are not retired and do not work in government. We need to be occupied at a job or business in order to remain here or move here. Concern for this area's exodus of industry has made Mayhew a target for the press. What would you have him say or not say in response to the press queries? Be silent, or tell it as he knows it to be? Since his interviews with many of us have led to the truth of the matter, his response, in my view, is as it should be. His statements only tell a small part of the problem.

In a non political manner I think what he is trying to get across is "let us get on with deregulating." Every new regulation is that much more freedom we have lost when implemented unnecessarily. In my opinion we have many regulations that create a loss in fundamental rights.

Many of us who have had the pleasure and experience to have been in touch with Barry Mayhew have found him working beyond the call of duty in his quest to bring jobs to our area.

In all of my years of contact with government officials and employees no one has been more courteous, enthusiastic and helpful than this gentleman, his staff and of course the chairman of the economic development commission, Ald. Larry Ryan. — Nick Liberto, 350 Hector Road.

Deduct costs

Re: the refugee situation: I am continually being asked questions which I cannot answer as to why these people are being turned out of Vietnam — or are they getting out of their own accord?

We already have an unemployment problem of our own, which is not being solved, also shortages of hospitals, nurses, etc. Should we take on any other country's difficulties?

If there is really a genuine need to succor and feed these people because they are being turned out forcibly — for some reason or another — then all the countries giving them refuge and aid, should deduct the whole cost from any finanes set aside for use in trading or assistance in any shape or form with Vietnam. — E.W. Abraham, 1125 Faithful Street.

On spanking

I recently learned that Sweden has made it illegal to spank a child. In a pamphlet designed to help parents, the justice department writes: "By teamwork with parents the child eventually develops an inner voice to say what it must and must not do. Such a consciousness usually begins to develop around the age of three . . . This inner development is impoverished by punishment."

Spanking can be as spontaneous and natural an impulse as loving, and it is the wise parent who can administer this form of punishment within the same sense of the wholeness of the child as when that child performs in a commendable or creative way. The point is simply that the parent, in the heat of his or her anger, must not indulge in feelings that clearly have nothing to do with the objective situation. Punishment, in a physical form in this case, can become the excuse to release the neurotic and dark side of the parent's consciousness.

This is the danger for the child: spanking done with an improvisational sensitivity to the drama of the moment, effectively tops the inappropriate behavior and brings the child back to himself and a proper relationship with his environment; spanking, however, that is done in the isolated passion of the parent's shadowed self disturbs the child, teaches him the violence of his parent's reaction, and leaves a residue of negativity or fear. The parent too is dislocated in such moments, rupturing the bond that is so vital between parent and child.

So, then, the Swedes have destroyed this option — the possibility of realizing that spanking may be the perfect aesthetic response to a situation in which the child is acting in a manner inimical to his own welfare and the welfare of his environment; the parent's sudden gesture of physicalizing his disapproval becomes the organic feedback from nature that lets that creature know he or she is violating the laws of the universe. To prevent a parent from exercising his freedom is to wholly jeopardize the intuitive and subtle movements of relationship that reveal themselves constantly to the discerning, mature parent, and the sensitive, evolving child. — Robin W. Carlsen, 1225 Sunnyside Avenue.

Advertise up north

Last night I read in the newspaper that farmers in B.C. are crying for berry pickers for their crops. Today I went into the Canada Manpower Centre here in Fort Smith and asked if they knew of any labor pools in B.C. that would be willing to hire me for two to three weeks to work picking berries. The lady there said they had received no such request from B.C. Perhaps instead of crying, the berry farmers in B.C. should advertise up in the Territories or in other parts of Canada for the necessary pickers. — Shelley Millaire, Box 929, Fort Smith, North West Terrories.

An anniversary

A significant date — July 25, 1979 — the 70th anniversary of the flight of Bleriot across the English Channel, Calais to Dover, 1909. I was in camp at the time near Dover with a Territorial Cyclist Corps, and saw the plane — my first — just after it landed on the cliffs, and Bleriot came out from his little cockpit. The edge of one wing "roughed" the ground as it landed; I picked up a small splinter and kept as a souvenir for a while.

It was a frog jump over a puddle in comparison with the giants and achievements since then, but was a significant first in the history of aviation — 70 years ago! — Rev. Arthur G. Atkins, 1365 Rockland Avenue.

What Quebec plans, after independence

By PETER LESLIE

This is the third of a four-part series examining the implications of sovereignty-association for Canada. Mr. Leslie is an associate of the Institute of Intergovernmental Relations and a teacher of political studies at Queen's University.

Every provincial premier west of Quebec has said that sovereignty-association is a non-starter: no negotiations on this basis, in any circumstances. After some hesitation it appears to be the stance of Prime Minister Joe Clark.

The PQ says this is just a bluff, to make Quebecers shy away from "voting their heart" in the referendum. Premier Rene Levesque points to the high level of economic integration between Quebec and Ontario, and says that a failure to negotiate formal economic links would cause harm to both Quebec and the rest of Canada.

Can't be ruled out

The reasons for bluffing are obvious — not least because of its hoped-for effect on the referendum outcome, but also because a softer position is a clear vote-loser. But let us put aside these obvious political motives and ask the cold-blooded question: what economic reasons are there for refusing to talk turkey?

Some regions would have a strong incentive to support economic association. Ontario is the obvious case, because Ontario is heavily dependent on trade with Quebec. But the western provinces sell much more in international markets than they do to Quebec. They would be almost unscathed by a complete break. It's not surprising that their spokesmen say they're simply not interested in economic association.

Perhaps any serious talk after a "yes" in the referendum would be considered treasonable outside of Quebec. This factor should not be ignored. None of us can afford to forget that when the existence of one's country is at stake, emotion may overpower all calculations of self-interest. Perhaps the loyal citizens of Ontario, not to mention provinces with a lesser economic stake in the outcome, would be willing to sustain a drop in their incomes if they could spite the secessionists.

Ontario legislature — would the province agree to association?

It would be no less foolish, though, to disregard the stern voice of economic reality. It then quickly becomes evident that the real objections to sovereignty-association pertain to the political arrangments which are being proposed. Power is of the essence.

When it comes to the creation of joint institutions, the PQ's post-referendum scenarios vastly exaggerate the power Quebec can hope to wield.

The PQ convention in June instructed the Quebec government, after a positive vote in the referendum, "to arrange to create jointly with the government of Canada the institutions necessary to the operation of the Quebec-Canada Association" on the basis of a treaty covering the powers which the two governments agree to exercise in common, the composition of the institutions and the way in which they take formal decisions and the manner in which these formal decisions will bind the two governments.

The PQ is also asked to ensure the new joint institutions and the machinery for interpreting and arbitrating agreements are constituted on the general principle of parity.

On the sidelines

Also to be established is a decision-making organ composed of ministers who will act on instructions from their respective governments. Their decisions are to be taken unanimously, each state having a single vote.

Quebec also wants a court of justice with an equal number of judges appointed by each of the governments, and a president appointed jointly by the two governments. The Court of Justice would resolve any differences arising between the two states, or between one of them and an organ of the association, relating to the interpretation of treaties and act as a court superior to the national courts in interpreting formal decisions of the association.

The parity principle, as spelled out in these resolutions, is of critical importance to the PQ position. Anything less and sovereignty is a sham. Anything less and Quebec is relegated to a permanent minority position, much more obvious than at present. But there is another side, in fact several of them.

The PQ leaders must surely realize that acceptance of parity is utterly unrealistic. An association of Canada and Quebec would set tariffs and otherwise direct a common commercial policy, control the exchange rate, implement policies on interest rates and credit, and perhaps oversee the administration of transportation.

In such matters, why should any one region have a voice equal to that of all the other regions combined, when the population ratio is about one to three?

In association, Quebec would lose much of its freedom of movement in economic affairs. It is understandably uneasy about this and has therefore advanced the parity princple so that decisions will not be foisted upon it by its former partners in Confederation. But Canada without Quebec would lose its freedom of manoeuvre too. In fact, the broader the terms of association, the more likely are the other regions to reject a system which would give Quebec — smaller and weaker — a veto over their own economic policy.

If this line is unconvincing to the PQ, whose leaders may claim that nationhood makes Quebec the moral equivalent of an English-Canadian nation, they ought at least to do some serious thinking about who will be at the other side of any imaginable bargaining table.

While Canada exists, its economic and political diversity provokes controversy about the character of national policies and the power of the federal government to implement them. But the disruptive impact is held in check by sentiment and emotion. The various regions of Canada, if freed from ties with Quebec based on tradition and a shared political community, would have to rethink their position from scratch. They would ask whether there are economic advantages to association with each other, let alone with Quebec.

These considerations lead me to believe that if there are ever negotiations on economic association, the talks will necessarily have a multilateral character. Whatever joint institutions might emerge from such bargaining also would have to include representatives from more than two entities. It would not be "Quebec and Canada" or even "Quebec and English Canada." It is even conceivable that Ottawa might find itself on the sidelines.

By ANTHONY HOLDEN
London Observer

In his address to the nation July 16, Jimmy Carter asked everyone "to find something good to say about America each day." His own behavior in the ensuing week made that task considerably more difficult.

After depriving America of its president for the previous two weeks, Carter proceeded to deprive it of its government. He was content to watch the dollar continue its slide, and the price of gold climb through the unprecedented $300 mark, as he began his campaign for re-election next year.

If that sounds unduly cynical, listen to the words of the president himself, as reported by Joseph Califano, Secretary for Health, Education and Welfare, on leaving the oval office after being fired. "The president told me," said Califano," that he had to get his cabinet and the administration in readiness for the 1980 campaign."

After descending from Camp David with a sermon for the nation, urging it to look to its moral values as much as to its gas tanks, Carter then did precisely the opposite of what the 135 visitors to his "domestic summit" had counselled. He clustered his "Georgia Mafia" more closely around him, enhanced their individual and collective powers, and purged his government of those who would rather serve their president than his Southern cronies.

Nothing symbolized the "new direction" of the Carter presidency more atarkly than the scene at 4:35 p.m. on Tuesday in the White House office of Jody Pewell, one of those very Georgians who were the chief inheritors of last week's redistribution of power.

Having summoned reporters to his presence, Powell kept his feet propped nonchalantly on his desk as he imparted the not unmomentous news that all of the nation's top 35 executives, with the exception of the president, had resigned.

There were those, over the following few days, who thought it should have been the other way round. "It's unprecedented and it couldn't have come at a worse time," said one of the most senior Democratic senators, Henry Jackson. "We need a sense of confidence in this country, and you don't create a sense of confidence by announcing that all the people who have been running the country are out."

Powerful position

Powell could afford such conspicuous self-indulgence. The president's press secretary had that afternoon become a policy-maker, with powers of decision over domestic and international matters affecting the security and prosperity of the world's most powerful nation. Not so several others, independent, mature and experienced politicians, reluctant to pay obeisance to a few raw kids from the South. They were fired.

Of the first to go, Joe Califano, it was said that he had enraged the tobacco companies of Carolina and Virginia with his vigorous anti-smoking campaign, that he had offended some Southern governors with his work to desegregate schools. The only plus-point which might have saved him was that he was the only Catholic in the cabinet.

These were the thoughts uppermost in the mind of America's non-smoking, anti-apartheid, deeply religious president as he pondered the future of his country's social services. Perhaps, he decided, they would be better served by a notably undistinguished Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Patricia Harris, who happens to be female and black.

"It will be said," quoth Califano, "when these matters are looked into, that I made waves. I hope I did." No, said Patricia Harris, she would not be continuing Secretary Califano's anti-smoking campaign. "I'll work in a team. I'm loyal to my leader."

There was also the fact that Califano is a close friend of Jimmy Carter's least favorite American, Senator Edward Kennedy.

The truth of the matter was that Califano had conspicuously fought for his policies, and mobilized support behind them, when they had incurred the displeasure of Hamilton Jordan.

Like the Treasury Secretary, Michael Blumenthal, who was the next to go, Califano had not hesitated to dissociate himself from Jordan and the rest of the Georgian inner cabinet when battling to eliminate waste or push through legislation. Blumenthal, indeed, had supervised the unremitting investigation of their fellow Georgian, Bert Lance.

Blumenthal and Califano were first on the block because this was the week in which Hamilton Jordan became the second most powerful man in the United States.

As Jody Pewell made his next momentous announcement, that Hamilton Jordan had been appointed the president's chief of staff, whose word was to be heeded "as if his decisions were the president's own", police passed their own comment by immobilizing Jordan's car outside his Georgetown home. He owed $110 in parking tickets, and he couldn't have his automobile until he paid up.

Jordan orchestrated the week's events as surely as he organized Jimmy Carter's 10-year progress from failed contender for the governorship of Georgia to successful candidate for the presidency of the United States. White House staff were told on Wednesday that they "no longer to regard Jordan as their peer". He would be clearing the president's desk, and he would therefore be making top level decisions on the president's behalf.

Jordan is just 34 years old, a law graduate whose first job was an assistant in the office of Jimmy Carter, peanut farmer, when Carter first conceived political ambitions back in the mid-1960s. It was Jordan who came up with the far-fetched notion, shortly after Carter had won the governorship of Georgia at his second attempt, that a devout, clean-living, millionaire businessman might just be the president America was looking for in the wake of Nixon, Haldeman and Watergate.

Carter resisted appointing Jordan his chief of staff for precisely the same reason. He did not want to be thought Nixonian, by interposing a Haldeman between Congress, the cabinet and the president. For most of Carter's presidency, Jordan has been a de facto chief of staff, running the show in all but name. Now he has the title too, plus credentials truly worthy of Haldeman.

POWELL . . . self-indulgence

Mistake by Nixon

It is thus ironic that the only modern precedent for a U.S. president demanding the resignation of his entire cabinet came in 1972, when Richard Nixon despatched his chief of staff, Bob Haldeman, to tell the cabinet they were doing a fine job and that they were all to hand in their notice. Even that, hovever, was the act of a president re-elected by landslide — and Nixon in his memoirs concedes that it was a mistake.

The performance of all government and White House staff earning more than $25,000 a year — some 500 of them — is to be appraised. A document drawn up by Jordan and his admistration assistant, Tim Kraft, is in such wide distribution that it has reached the press. It is the kind of document, says Fran Abernathy, a Washington management consultant, that might have been used 50 years ago "to assess assembly-line employees and low-level clerical personnel."

"When does this person arrive at work/leave work?" is question number one. Supervisors are asked to assess on a scale of one to five whether an assistant is best at "conceptualizing/planning/implementing/attending to detail/controlling quality." Perhaps the most revealing of the 30 inquiries is number 22: "To what extent is this person focused upon accomplishing (A) the Administration's goals (B) personal goals?"

This from a president who made the frank public confession, in perhaps the best-remembered remark of his TV speech, that a Southern governor visiting Camp David had told him: "Mr. President," you're not leading this nation, you're just managing the government . . ."

This from a president who is clearly an honorable and well-meaning man, intent on securing his country's future quite as passionately as his own. There are many, since the TV speech, who would rather Jimmy Carter spent more time managing the government than leading the nation. He's better at it, and it's somewhat safer.

The most extraordinary thing about last week's events, is that Carter's born-again energy policy has been quite forgotten amid Carter's attempts to be born again as his country's chief executive. The energy policy is debated in esoteric circles (and generally found wanting) but subsequent develpments have ensured that presidential style is all.

America was impressed by the Sunday TV speech. The New York Times-NBC pollsters, who had earlier gauged Carter the most unpopular president in American history, on the Monday had him leaping 11 percentage points. He had clenched his fist and beaten his desk to good effect.

They couldn't refuse

By Tuesday evening all that was merely a memory as the president deliberately pitched his country into international uncertainty by making his cabinet an offer they couldn't refuse.

"If Carter had individuals in mind whom he wanted to replace," mused Arthur Schlesinger, historian of the presidency, "he should have mamed them. I suppose the idea is to show that he is a masterful leader." Schlesinger's worry — shared by many in Washington, the "remote, out-of-touch island" denounced by its senior inhabitant in his TV broadcast — is that America may be convinced of such mastery.

Open inquiry needed at Alert Bay

An Editorial

Reports by committees of the B.C. Medical Association and the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the appointment of Rev. Eric Powell as the "personal representative" of Health Minister Bob McClelland have not, and will not, cure the tragic state of affairs on Cormorant Island that has now gone far beyond a simple concern over the quality of health care at Alert Bay.

The divisions that exist between the white community and the Nimpkish Indian band are now so deep that it may be impossible ever to heal them completely. But most certainly they will not be healed by the BCMA's Band-Aid recommendations for improvements at St. George's Hospital, the College's soothing bedside assurances of the competence of Dr. Jack Pickup, or the ministrations of a priest.

None of these things will do any good because they ignore the central issues of the controversy arising out of the death of 11-year-old Renee Smith. The island's ony doctor does not have the confidence of the Nimpkish band council, the elected representatives of more than half the population of Cormorant Island, and they want him suspended pending a full public inquiry into the medical care system.

What would happen if a majority of the people of Vancouver demanded the removal of a doctor? He would be removed. What if more than half the population of the city of Vancouver demanded a public inquiry into something? Premier Bill Bennett and his cabinet would fall over each other in their rush to pass the order-in-council.

So what is different about the situation at Alert Bay? Well, it is a remote little place up there off the north coast of Vancouver Island, in a constituency represented by the New Democratic Party; it has only 1,800 souls compared with Vancouver's 410,000, and 1,200 of them happen to be Indian.

But fairness demands that the provincial government and College of Physicians give them what they want: another doctor and a full, open inquiry.

Dr. Pickup has served the community well in the past and he may well be as competent as the College committee has found him to be. But the fact remains that he was found negligent by a coroner's jury in the death of Renee Smith and that questions have been raised publicly about his drinking habits. The best doctor in the world could not hope to keep the confidence of all his patients in similar circumstances.

The BCMA committee thinks a public inquiry would be counter-productive because it would delay improvements in health care. But the committee was boycotted by the Nimpkish people because it would not conduct its investigations openly, and they have rejected its findings.

The committee also feels a full public inquiry would add to the divisiveness. But it seems clear that the lack of one will have the same effect, and nothing else is likely to blow away the poisonous cloud now hanging over Cormorant Island.

Taking a look upstairs

NEW YORK — I intended to write something trenchant today, but the trenchancy generator wasn't working. The only thing coming down from the mind was static. When commanded to emit something trenchant, it gave me only nonsense, such as "a lion trenchant on a field of gules" and "a trenchant mensch with a penchant for wenching."

What could you do? Well, you could go up into the mind and try to fix the thing. Not a happy prospect, that. It's a mess up there. Worse than the attic, on which I slammed the door, never to open it since, two years ago after an infestation of bats assaulted me while I was browsing through my Big Little Book collection.

Still, it was either go up and fix it, or never be trenchant again. Instead, I went to the kitchen and made strong tea. "I'm thinking of going up to the mind to see if I can fix the trenchancy generator," I told grandmother. "Like to come up with me?"

"And wade around in all that bilge?" she asked. "I'd sooner watch a live session of the United States Senate on television. I'd sooner sit through a double-header between the Oakland Athletics and the Toledo Mud Hens."

I invited her to button her lip. "Button your lip, grandmother," I proposed. "While you're up there," she said, "you'd better oil your salty-retort gears. They're rusted in the 1935 mode."

I don't fancy going up to the mind alone. A few years back I went up with a decorator who was going to refurnish it with the latest ideas. You know. Get rid of those moth-infested old mother-in-law jokes. Tear out the FDR wallpaper with the NRA blue eagles on the back of the memory wall, put in some eight-track stereo that would keep me in touch with Mick Jagger — that's how long ago it was — and add a picture window so everybody could see that where my head was at was where all the latest up-to-date heads were at, which was standing close to one another uttering sounds like "Where your head is at."

Anyhow, the decorator got lost right away in a forest of German declensions that had been planted up there in 1939 and forgotten. By the time I found her, she was dazed by the constant murmurings of "bis, durch, fur, gegen, ohne, wieder, um take the accusative case and aus, ausser, bei, mit, nach, seit, von, zu take the dative," and had to be resuscitated by a hypnosis expert.

So naturally I want company. A child comes into the kitchen to humor his gluttony on sugared child fodder. "How'd you like to see a genuine 1934 sign that says, 'Straight Shooters Always Win'?" I ask the child.

"You all right?"

"No kidding. I got it off the radio listening to the old Tom Mix Show, with the Wrangler and Tony. I got it framed on the back of my mind. Like to go up and have a look?"

The child would rather watch "The Flintstones," which is not about straight shooters but about a couple of imbeciles who are supposed to be like everybody's dad; to wit, suffering from breakdown of the trenchancy generator.

Fortunately, my Dr. Spock child-rearing apparatus is still functioning, and it restrains me from stating a fervent prayer that his gluttony may be rewarded by hours of root-canal dredging in the dental chair.

A more sensible creature wanders in searching for The National Enquirer. Female. Sympathetic. Nubile.

"Dad's going up to the mind. Fix the old trenchancy generator, oil the salty-retort gears. Like to come up with me and wander around?"

She would clearly prefer to lap up The Enquirer's reports on the latest activities of Janis Joplin in the world beyond the grave and the latest miracle treatments for colitis, sarcoma and sagging bosom, but she is capable of sacrifice.

"What's up there?" she asks.

"How does 22 years of Marcel Proust's Remembrance of Things Past grab you? No? So you could wander into the World War II division and pick up a little something on how to tell a Japanese battleship of the Haruna class from battleships of the Iowa class in one one-hundreth of a second."

"Father. Really."

"I've got a beautiful collection illustrating the profound link between baseball and our feathered friends. You could learn about it up there. Ducky Medwick, Hawk Harrelson, Mark (the Bird) Fidrych, Burleson the Rooster, Stanley the Chicken, the Baltimore Orioles, the Toronto Blue Jays, the St. Louis Cardinals. There's a big thought there waiting to be formed. You could look at it, maybe propound a feathered theory of baseball bigger than Einstein's theory of . . ."

She smiles. A transparent mask for boredom. "Maybe next week," she murmurs. "I want to see if they've got in touch yet with Janis beyond the grave."

Oh, well, next week is soon enough to be trenchant. Next year even. Even 1984; 1995 maybe.

Record high interest rate doesn't deter consumers

OTTAWA (UPC) — Government figures show Canadians own more houses and are assuming larger debts than ever before, despite rising interest rates which climbed to a record high last weekend.

Sunday's 0.5 per cent rise in the Bank of Canada lending rate to 11.75 per cent was expected to push mortgage rates even higher.

In May 1959, homebuyers paid 6.8 per cent interest on mortgages; 10 years later, 8.5 per cent and two months ago an average 11.06 per cent, Bank of Canada economist Clyde Goodlet said Monday.

But the mounting cost of mortgages has not discouraged Canadians from entering the housing market. Statistics Canada reported the proportion of Canadians owning houses — and the amount they borrowed — rose during the same period.

In 1964, a little more than 55 percent of Canadians reported they owned their own homes, valued at an average $18,636. Seven years later almost 60 per cent of Canadians owned homes, valued at an average $43,843.

In 1964, slightly more than 51 per cent of homeowners owed mortgages of $6,580. By 1977, the most recent figures available, 64 per cent owed mortgages of $18,285.

The steadily increasing interest rates also have failed to discourage debt in other areas. Use of loans or credit for cars, travel and household goods has continued to grow, said Boriss Mazikins, chief of housing surveys and dissemination at Statistics Canada.

The 1977, 53.2 per cent of Canadian families owed an average $3,468 — excluding mortgages.

Mortgage rates hiked

TORONTO (UPC) — The chartered banks began raising interest rates on home mortgage loans Tuesday by one-half of one per cent with a hint that similar increases can be expected soon on consumer and personal loans.

The increases bring the new mortgage rate on conventional, five-year, mortgages to 11 ¾ per cent. The rate for an NHA-approved, five-year mortgage will go up to 11 ½ per cent.

The Royal Bank of Canada said the changes would be effective Aug. 1 while the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Toronto-Dominion Bank said the rates were effective Tuesday.

A Toronto-Dominion spokesman said no decision had been made on raising the rate for personal and consumer loans.

"I expect the bank will change those, but we've had no word yet," she said. "Term deposits are also under review."

The consumer loan rates "are being looked at", said a Commerce spokesman who predicted an announcement before the end of the week.

The round of interest rate increases follows Sunday's decision by the Bank of Canada to raise the prime lending rate by one-half of one per cent to a record 11 ¾ per cent, the eighth increase in 16 months.

Fording plans plant

CALGARY (CP) — The potential for exporting power from a new thermal electric plant is being studied by Fording Coal Ltd., a company spokesman said Monday.

Jerry Joynt said Fording has contacted 30 utility companies in the northwest United States interested in buying electric power from Alberta.

"The company expects to hold meetings with interested U.S. companies during August and September," Joynt said.

Fording Coal has not considered location, size of plant, or been in touch with provincial and federal regulatory agencies, he said.

Quebecair drops charters

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebecair plans to abandon its European charter business this autumn because the service has not been making money, says Alfred Hamel, president of the regional air carrier. One of Quebecair's two Boeing 707 long-range aircraft has been scrapped and the other may follow, he said. Nordair, another regional carrier, said last week it was also dropping its trans-Atlantic charter service.

Russia ruble rates change

MOSCOW (AP) — The U.S.S.R. state bank reported Monday that it is changing the official exchange rate for a number of foreign currencies, including reducing the value in rubles of the Canadian and U.S. dollars.

The timing of the announcement, made in the government newspaper Izvestia, was unusual because the state bank normally publishes its foreign exchange rates at the end of each month.

There was no announcement regarding the reason for the change.

The ruble, unlike major Western currencies, is not circulated outside its own country and is not traded in foreign exchange markets.

U.K. unemployment 5.3%

LONDON (AP) — Britain's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate this month was unchanged at 5.3 per cent of the workforce, the department of employment said today.

Total unemployment, before seasonal adjustment, rose by 120,117 to 1,463,982. This represented 6.1 per cent of the workforce — the highest percentage since February — up by 0.5 per cent from mid-June.

Rio Algom files suit

TORONTO (CP) — Rio Algom Ltd. of Toronto said Monday it will begin appropriate legal proceedings against the Tennessee Valley Authority if it does not receive the first payment under a uranium supply contract the authority is trying to break.

Rio Algom said the Knoxville-based authority owes it $22.7 million (U.S.) for about 230,000 kilograms of uranium recently delivered to Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. for processing before being sent to Tennessee Valley.

Last week, Rio Algom said the authority is taking action to break the 7.6-million kilogram supply contract and that U.S.-based Westinghouse Electric Corp. has obtained an injuction restraining the authority from making first payment on the uranium.

Chrysler sale rejected

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler President Lee Iacocca has rejected a suggestion that the federal government take a partial ownership interest in the automaker.

Iacocca said Monday that the suggestion by Douglas Fraser, president of the United Autoworkers union, is "not on the cards."

Fraser said last week that the purchase by the government of an equity interest would provide Chrysler with needed new capital.

Chrysler lost $258 million in the 15 months ending March 31 and another large loss is expected for the second quarter.

Iacocca said the government should grant a respite from regulatory costs, "which are really starting to bite."

Asked whether Chrysler would seek concessions from the UAW, Iacocca said, "We'll have to wait and see."

Wholesale volume increases 20.3%

OTTAWA (CP) — Wholesale merchants have reported a 20.3 per cent increase in sales for May compared with the same month one year earlier.

Statistics Canada figures show sales of $7.01 billion for May, compared with $5.83 billion for the corresponding month in 1978.

Rate boost makes loan situation odd

WINNIPEG (UPC) — Which is cheaper — a $5,000 business loan, fully secured by bonds or stocks deposited at the bank with interest at 1 per cent above the rate charged the bank's top customers, or a $5,000, 36-month, unsecured loan to help a customer buy a new car?

W.F. Crane, superintendent of the Toronto-Dominion Bank's Manitoba-Northwest Ontario region, admits that in the situation just described, the car loan would cost the borrower 12-12 per cent — 1 per cent less than the business loan and exactly the same as the "consumer rate" charged for financing of, say, a two-week trip to the Caribbean.

"It's a rather unique situation," said Crane in an interview Monday. "The interest rate is well over the mortgage rate and it's higher than some consumer [illegible]

"But," he added, "it's a situation that will adjust itself in time."

The move to higher interest rates surprised some financial institutions, but Crane said Toronto-Dominion's economists had been predicting at least one more uptick in interest rates before they move lower.

"It will likely move lower by late fall, depending on the international aspects," he said.

Officials from the Bank of Canada and the government say Sunday's boost in bank rates was necessary after the U.S. Federal Reserve raised its interest rates to historic highs.

Crane said there is a fair amount of money available for long-term financing such as bonds and mortgages, and this could dampen any trend toward higher mortgage rates.

"The longer-term rates will be affected more by supply-demand factors," said Smith, whose firm has had to face stiff competition while placing the $200 million annually in its bond and mortgage portfolio.

Smith said the glut of plant and office facilities available in most Canadian cities is also a factor in keeping long-term loan rates from moving upward in concert with bank interest rates.

North Sea cut seen

LONDON (AP) — The British energy department has reduced its estimates of oil production in the North Sea during the next three years, citing technical delays.

In its annual report on the development of Britain's oil and gas reserves, the department said the delays will lead to larger production than previously predicted for the late 1980s.

The department now forecasts Britain's continental shelf oil production at 70 million to 80 million metric tons in 1979, rising to 85 million to 105 million tons in 1980 and 95 to 115 million tons a year later.

These estimates are revised downward from the figures which appeared in last year's report, which said production would total 80 million to 95 million tons in 1979, 90 million to 110 million in 1980 and 100 million to 120 million tons in 1981.

The forecast for 1982 has been revised upward to 115 million to 140 million tons from a preliminary figure of 105 million to 125 million. The total for 1983, forecast for the first time, is put at 115 million to 140 million tons.

Total British oil output last year was 54 million tons compared with 38.2 million tons in 1977. The total includes about 400,000 tons of gas condensate.

Saanich urges a return to land use contracts

The provincial government should allow municipalities to return to a land use contract system abandoned last year, says Saanich's planning committee.

The committee recommended Tuesday that coucil bring up the issue at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention this fall.

The provincial government replaced land use contracts with development permits, but the new system places too much of a financial load on developing municipalities like Saanich, the committee decided.

A report from municipal administrator William Tremayne says under the new development permit system $363,000 is the total amount Saanich can obtain from the Tillicum Mall developer, while the old land use contract system would allow the municipality $500,000.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said Saanich should ask the government to change the legislation.

The new legislation doesn't allow the municipality to recover all costs of off-site servicing and the amount Saanich can collect from Tillicum developers is less than the sum negotiated with them by the engineering department, Tremayne said.

Tillicum shopping centre developers Cal Investments Ltd., a West Vancouver firm, has agreed to pay Saanich $40,000 an acre for roads, water supply, storm drains and sanitary sewers.

None of the money will be used to pay for a trunk sewer line that will be installed along the Gorge, designated by the community plan as a high-rise development area.

In a special meeting held before the committee meeting, council agreed to a Capital Region District proposal to limit the size of regional shopping centres in the official regional plan.

The regional district wants more control over the size of future shopping centres. Couvelier several weeks ago promised to help the CRD close loopholes in existing regulations and in return, the CRD dropped a legal action against the Tillicum Shopping Centre.

Peach crop suffers from frost

KELOWNA (CP) — The Okanagan peach crop is 31 per cent less this summer because of winter damage, the grower-owned British Columbia Tree Fruits Ltd. said Tuesday.

Joe Bauer, domestic sales manager, said the crop is 477,377 tray packs, compared with 628,638 packs last year. Each tray pack weighs 18.75 pounds.

N.Y. tourists victims of break-in

A city police spokesman said Edwin Ehrlich and his wife left the room at 7:30 p.m. to go to dinner and discovered the theft when they returned at 11 p.m. Police believe the thief had a key to the room because there was no sign of forced entry.

The jewelry included a pair of gold earrings, gold neck chain, two gold rings and a gold bracelet.

Meanwhile, Staff-Sgt. Ed Hardy of the city detective division said arrests have been made following two dozen recent break-ins.

Eighteen-year-old Lloyd David Williamson appeared in provincial court Tuesday charged with 24 counts of breaking and entering, two counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency and one count of possession of stolen property.

Two 15-year-old boys have also been charged, one with 24 counts of breaking and entering and the other with nine counts.

Hardy said about $500 cash and $1,500 in property, mostly jewelry, were taken in the break-ins, all in the James Bay area. Some of the jewelry has been recovered.

In addition city police have charged a 14-year-old boy with four house break-ins in the Fairfield district. The boy was arrested at his home Tuesday night. Officers recovered $650 worth of stereo equipment taken from one of the homes.

Esquimalt police also arrested two youths attempting to break into the Lampson Alternative School on Lampson.

A citizen spotted prowlers on the school grounds at about 4 a.m. and called police.

Socred stonewall shields new ICBC policy

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

A Socred wall of silence over the new auto insurance scheme prompted a formal protest to the Speaker from Opposition whip Dennis Cocke (New Westminister) during Tuesday's question period.

The NDP, while still trying to score political points, also wanted to find out if the statements made by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm detailing the scheme to go into effect next year are government policy.

Cocke, who as a minister was responsible for starting the Insurance Corporation of B.C., asked deputy premier Grace McCarthy, now responsible for ICBC, if she agreed with Vander Zalm's assessment.

She told the Speaker the question was out of order and made no further comment.

But Cocke persisted, asking the silent minister several different questions until he finally asked if she was still responsible for the government-operated insurance program.

At that point Speaker Harvey Schroeder ruled the question rhetorical and therefore out of order.

But NDP house leader Bill King (Shuswap-Revelstoke) jumped to his feet to potest the ruling: "It's not rhetorical," he said tongue in cheek. "There could have been a bloodless coup during the night."

And so it went. Several NDP members pursued a similar vein of questioning to various cabinet ministers, all without success.

Cocke asked Vander Zalm if he would table the cabinet documents he showed the press in the interview in which the minister explained the reason why ending discriminatory insurance rates based on age, sex, marital status and geographic location won't lead to a general hike in premiums next year.

(In his Monday interview with the Times that landed him in hot water, Vander Zalm used no documents or papers.)

Vander Zalm remained silent.

Alex Macdonald (Vancouver East) then took over the questioning. He asked Premier Bill Bennett if the Vander Zalm statements are government policy.

Bennett, as he is in the habit of doing through most question periods, continued signing a stack of letters on his desk. He didn't even look at Macdonald across the floor.

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria), looking across at a pensive Vander Zalm, noted the minister had his hand over his mouth even before he began speaking.

But Barber had the last word on that topic: "I understand he's had some experience at that, too."

Following the question period, Cocke rose on a point of order to complain of the unusual experience the NDP had just gone through.

While recognizing ministers have the right not to answer questions, generally that occurs only in the most extreme circumstances, he told the Speaker.

But on this occasion three minister of the Crown refused to participate.

He asked Schroeder if he would take the unusual precedent under advisement and explain to the house how he feels about such instances.

But Schroeder said the house rules give him no authority to order answers.

Macdonald complained that the questions were really quite simple. "We just wanted to know if Vander Zalm is in the doghouse."

The day still wasn't over for Vander Zalm. His ministry's spending estimates were up for debate right after the question period and the ribbing continued.

Barber said Vander Zalm is like a Roman candle that when lit "spins around in spectacular fashion."

The minister began his estimates by reading a prepared speech — a move that prompted more baiting from Barber who said the minister was breaking house rules that dictate speeches must be spontaneous or from notes.

He suggested the prepared text was designed to keep him out of further trouble.

Big sting in Hollywood

Hills raid, because the scam was double-edged, investigators said.

In Los Angeles the perpetrators engaged in a "Sting-type" gambling operation, while in Orange County they had a phoney investment scheme going, police said.

In the Los Angeles operation one of the other of the suspects sought out wealthy victims whom they told about a private gambling operation in the Hollywood Hills home, according to police.

The wealthy prospects were told that they could make a killing, "maybe up to a million dollars," because the dealer was angry at his bosses and wanted to "rip them off."

For a time, victims were allowed to win substantially. Then when the time for the really big bet arrived, they — conveniently for the house — lost.

That was how the victim who lost the $160,000 and his Rolls-Royce was taken.

In the Orange County swindle the suspects sought out rich people interested in making investments, chiefly in property. The suspects then pretended to obtain investment loans from brokers for which they collected a finder's fee. But there were no brokers and there were no loans, according to officers.

"One "investor" was taken for $47,000 in the swindle.

ment," said one Israeli government source. "What is at stake is the credibility of the U.S. commitment to the treaty."

U.S. officials, in turn, contended that Israel had known details of the U.S. plan for three months and had not objected until two days ago, when it was too late to avoid a public confrontation over the issue.

From behind the tough talk, however, emerged further efforts to satisfy Israeli concerns about the U.S. plan.

At the United Nations in New York, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim issued a statement Tuesday night that U.S. State Department officials said was meant to reassure Israel that the proposed observer force would not be abruptly withdrawn from the Sinai.

Waldheim announced that the Security Council would allow the mandate of the UNEF to lapse. The authority for keeeping the unit in place expired at midnight Tuesday.

But his statement added: "In view of the fact that the withdrawal of UNEF is without prejudice to the continued presence of the UNTSO observers in the area, it is my intention to make, in accordance with existing decisions of the Security Council, the necessary arrangements to ensure the further functioning of UNTSO."

U.S. officials took the statement, couched as it was in near-indecipherable diplomatic language, as a commitment from Waldheim that the UNTSO force would not be withdrawn from the Sinai without Security Council authorization.

Grass harvest cropped

A Sidney RCMP stake-out of a marijuana patch off Littlewood Road in Sidney Tuesday night resulted in the arrest of five persons, four in their teens.

A police spokesman said today a girl, 16, and a 20-year-old man were picked up at the scene. Three others, two 19-year-old males and a 17-year-old female, were arrested later in the evening.

All five have been charged with cultivation of marijuana. The 16-year-old girl faces an additional charge of possession of the drug.

Police said a nearby resident discovered about 70 plants, some more than five feet tall, growing in the bush near his property last Saturday and reported the find to police.

Police found gardening implements and a watering can at the illicit garden and decided to set up a surveillance. Three officers had just set out their nightly stake-out when they spotted two of the suspects emerging from the bush.

The plants, weighing about 25 pounds, will be destroyed, the spokesman said.

Eco-reserves stifled by budget bind

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

B.C.'s ecological reserves program has come to a virtual standstill because of budget restrictions, the Times has learned.

Sources say that under the current budget the reserves department has received only enough funding to keep it alive — but not enough to actively seek out potential new eco-reserves or even manage established ones.

Eight years after the program was established it has yet to reach the five-year target of 100 reserves, as set out in the original legislation.

And many of the 93 areas now preserved are of questionable status because there is no money to ensure they are protected from encroachment by man.

With only about $10,000 left after Ecological Reserves Director Bristol Foster and his one assistant have been paid the program doesn't have adequate funds available to hire researchers or field workers.

And half of that $10,000 has already been committed to a National Film Board project on ecological reserves.

Sources say that with only $5,000 left at his disposal Foster is unable to hire consultants to do inventory work or collect baseline data on B.C.'s reserves.

"Some of the ecological reserves on the list are merely paper reserves," said a government worker close to the program. "They're not being protected in the way they should.

"They have to be managed . . . there's no point in having a reserve on paper that is being destroyed in reality. "Work is piling up in the reserves office because they don't have enough people to handle it."

Bob Nixon, spokesman for the Sierra Club of Western Canada, said he is disappointed to hear the reserves program lacks funding.

"The government should honestly pursue its intentions. If it wants to get rid of that program it should do so quickly and painlessly rather than starving it to death," said Nixon.

He said it was ridiculous to have reserves established on paper only.

"Although we have them on the books we don't really have them unless they can be managed, protected and utilized for educational purposes.

"If they are on the books without management they are for all intents and purposes not there."

He said the government appeared to have a two-faced policy regarding ecological reserves.

"What they're saying is 'We believe in reserves, but look, you can do anything you want in an ecological reserve because we aren't going to ensure their preservation.' "

Foster was reluctant to discuss the situation, but did confirm that the program is short on staff and money.

Foster said one part-time employee had to be released this spring because of a lack of funds. That left him with only one assistant.

The two men are attempting to oversee the reserves program from their office in the Harbor Towers.

Foster agreed that under present staffing levels it is impossible to ensure the ecological reserves are properly protected or managed.

Foster said that over the years it has become increasingly difficult to establish new reserves.

He says that before a reserve can be designated it first must be approved by the forestry service, the fish and wildlife branch and other concerned agencies.

"I guess this government wants to bring decisions down to the grass roots, but it's inordinately inefficient," said Foster.

"We have 93 reserves now, but the Ecological Reserves Act of B.C.) said we should have 100 by 1975. We've fallen behind largely due to the ever more complicated regional process."

Foster said that with a staff of five his program could get back on track but he sees no likelihood of hiring new people under the current budget restrictions.

The ecological reserves program was set up by the government because of the need to preserve unique and representative ecosystems for scientific and educational purposes.

The reserves are used as outdoor laboratories, benchmark areas with which to compare changes elsewhere, banks for protection of genetic diversity, and as outdoor classrooms for natural history education.

No hunting, fishing, camping, mining or logging is allowed in an ecological reserve.

The program has had many critics because it withdraws productive areas of the province from recreational or extractive use. But Foster points out that reserves now cover less than .1% of the province and will probably never include more than .5%.

In a letter to Foster last November the B.C. forest service research division acknowledged the need for reserves.

"In undeveloped parts of the province, the need is not immediate. However, in other areas, especially near centres of population or where there is productive accessible lowland forest, the need is pressing," stated the letter.

It went on to say that the Kitimat Valley is one region where reserves are badly needed.

The letter said that examples of undisturbed, mature, climax forest are becoming hard to find and soon may be non-existent.

Without an ecological reserve as a benchmark, said the research letter, "management of the future forests of the Kitimat Valley, which includes some of the best forest land in northwestern B.C., will proceed in a partial vacuum."

Max Low

Oh, I can imagine you all nodding in agreement, lulled into a false sense of well being by the warm sun, blue skies and days of idleness on the beach. Well, that's all right for you.

But as for me, after making it unscathed through winter's freezing temperatures, I get pneumonia while you're all sunbathing. Then, the little topless sports car I've dreamed of owning since I was seven (and finally bought, new incidentally, just before Christmas) snaps its back axle and they have to send to England for a new one. That's a six-week wait, they say, so I'll get it back just in time to put the roof up before the snow comes. Ah, well.

I tell you, that's the way things have been going for me lately. If I had a water bed it would leak . . .

Now Parent Finders hate me.

They didn't say so but a couple of fairly strong letters that landed in my mail basket while I was away sick — from Robin Wallace, president of the Victoria Branch of Parent Finders, and national vice-president Clare Marcus — didn't exactly have affection bursting out of them.

But both women did make some good points, which I will share with you.

It was just over a month ago that a Times reader disagreed with the sentiments expressed in a story by Ms. Marcus and with the aims of Parent Finders. As I outlined in my column, that woman felt it would be better if adopted children left the past alone and that searches for natural parents reflected badly on the family that had done the adopting. All reunions were not happy affairs, the reader pointed out.

"Some reunions do not end in an exactly happy relationship but whatever the ending, we are satisfied at least with the knowledge we obtained," Mrs. Wallace said.

"We are not looking for an alternate family by searching for our origins and adoptive parents of those of us who have had a reunion realize this.

"Any person looking into the past is not going to find all roses and honey. They are going to find reality but no matter what they find it is still part of their lives. Children, natural or adopted, are put on this earth in trust of their parents, not as possessions, and no parent or government should have the right to keep knowledge about a child's heritage from them.

"I, like many in our group, have found my natural mother and it has been most satisfying as it is in over 85 per cent of cases," Mrs. Wallace pointed out. "My mother is so happy that I have found her. She cried for years over me and I am very glad that I could give her this happiness in her declining years.

"It has also made me examine my relationship with my adoptive family more thoroughly and I now feel a truer sense of closeness and belonging to them. Most people take their feelings for their family for granted and never realize how much they feel for them until a tragedy occurs. I am very lucky, for I am much loved."

In her letter, Ms. Marcus said that every adopted person, one way or another, has to reconcile himself to the fact of two sets of parents.

"The need to know, whether ever activated or not, is universal, according to Dr. E. Lipinski, president of the Canadian Psychiatric Association," she explained.

"Even with adults searching all over the continent, childless couples are lining up to adopt children," Ms. Marcus said. "They are aware that search may come up 25, 30 or more years down the road but that does not stop them from wishing to have the experience of parenthood by adoption on a franker basis."

Well, there you have it. Let it never be said that I don't give my critics equal time and may all the members of Parent Finders suddenly be blessed with the combined talents of Sherlock Holmes and Hercule Poirot.

And don't mind me. I'm not really feeling sorry for myself, just badly in need of a holiday. This is starting to sound like that hit song of a few years back Life Gets Tedious Don't It but, the way things have been going, when I do get round to taking that break, it will probably rain every day . . .

Tomato growers panic, says Hewitt

Squeeze a tomato grower and you'll find someone who pushes the panic button every year and misleads the press, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt said Tuesday.

The problem of getting local tomatoes to market at competitive prices has been investigated by the ministry and found not serious, the minister said in the legislature in response to questions on what he is doing about the issue.

Dave Stupich (NDP — Nanaimo) asked what action he was taking to prevent B.C. tomatoes from rotting in storage because a glut of California tomatoes have flooded the market, depressing prices.

But Hewitt said "Arnaud raises this issue almost on an annual basis, but in checking with the (greenhouse growers) association, it was found not to be as severe as Mr. Arnaud led the press to believe."

Outside the house, Hewitt said he didn't believe Arnaud deliberately exaggerated the situation, but that he was just warning the ministry of the potential danger.

The opposition also pointed out to Hewitt that with the energy crisis in the U.S., it is considerably cheaper for Americans to ship produce north to Canada than across the continental U.S., leading to further competition for local producers.

Hewitt said that issue, too, has been looked at. His ministry has worked with Ottawa in setting seasonal tariffs to protect local producers, he said.

Hewitt said in past years when the same problem of cheap U.S. produce threatening local growers has come up, it has resulted in markets being shorted.

So much depends on the weather, he said. If the weather changes and the flow slows down, suddenly retailers who may have advertised specials can't get adequate supplies.

His staff, growers, wholesalers and retailers are all working together, as they do every year, to keep a regular supply of tomatoes and other produce available to the consumer, he said.

"I looked up and there were balls of fire rolling out, just like a volcano."

Mrs. Jean Armstrong of Peterborough, Ont., was the only person to actually see an 18-foot travel trailer explode Tuesday in the KOA campground at the east end of Mount Newton Crossroad in Central Saanich.

The blast seriously injured 54-year-old Gilbert Blais of Winnipeg, as well as his wife, Patricia, and son, Lee.

The family poodle was stunned by the blast, but otherwise uninjured. The Central Saanich animal control officer took the dog to his home.

The family was just getting up Tuesday when Blais tried to either light a cigarette or the trailer stove — he can't remember.

Propane — heavier than air and with a tendency to pool or collect in a low spot — had leaked from what Central Saanich police and fire officials believe was a faulty lead-in pipe to the stove. When Blais lit his match or lighter, the gas exploded and demolished the trailer.

Mrs. Armstrong's husband, Lorne, was less than 20 feet from the Blais trailer checking the water level in his car's radiator. When the Blais trailer exploded, shards of glass and debris sprayed Armstrong's car and whistled past him, littering the road beyond and beside him with glass. Three feet to his left, a section of the Blais trailer wall slammed to the ground.

Several glass fragments struck the car with enough force to chip the paint and scratch the side windows.

Not a particle struck him.

Mrs. Armstrong saw Blais run behind the Armstrong trailer, his hair burned off and his skin hanging in shreds. For an agonizing few moments, she didn't know if her husband had been hurt.

Then Armstrong was beside Blais, asking if anyone was still in the demolished and smoking trailer.

"My wife. Get my wife," Blais yelled.

Other campers rushed to the aid of the stricken family, and Mrs. Blais and the family dog were taken from where the bedroom of the trailer had been. The Blais' son was found outside, dazed and hurt.

Blais, a CNR conductor, had told Armstrong the night before that he would be retiring in a year or so after 38 or 39 years service with the railway.

He was listed in fair condition this morning in the burns unit of Victoria General Hospital. His wife and son, in an adjacent burns unit, are in good condition.

Other damage in addition to the Blais trailer and the Armstrong car was limited to the front picture window of the Armstrong's trailer, which was shattered by the concussion of the blast!

Luck prevents disaster

Langford fire chief Al LeQuesne said today that when firemen arrived at the scene, neither of the two fire hydrants in the privately-owned park worked and firemen had to rely on water in their pumper and tank trucks.

"If there had been any wind we would have had a major disaster on our hands," he said.

As it was the fire gutted a 12-by-60 foot trailer owned by Edna and Royce Richardson, scorched the side of a trailer next door, destroyed a wood cabana and torched nearby trees.

The loss has been put at $20,000.

LeQuesne said several residents used garden hoses to keep the fire from spreading. Firemen had to drive about half a mile to replenish water supplies in their trucks.

No one was injured in the blaze which erupted shortly before 11 a.m. when an instant-on television in the living-room of Richardson's trailer exploded.

1978 novels go for 10¢

The Greater Victoria Public Library's board was told Tuesday that novels published in 1978 were sold for 10 cents each at the library's recent book auction.

E.D. Ward-Harris, chairman of the library services and programs committee, said he had been told the novels had been sold at the low price.

He also was told a whole set of Dickens "in mint condition" had been sold at the auction.

Ward-Harris had been asked to investigate claims by Esquimalt alderman Larry Mann that a 1978 edition of The Far East and Australiaia, which the alderman had bought for $1, had cost $60 and should not have been sold at that give-away price.

Ward-Harris quoted from a report by Helen McKay, co-ordinator of Information Services, in whch she explained the data in the book is now out-of-date.

In her report, McKay said: "Annuals are expensive but if an annual costs us $60 that breaks down to $5 a month which is modest in comparison with some of our other monthly charges — for local newspapers, for example."

Mann, however, suggested that such annuals might very well be on the shelves of the provincial and University of Victoria libraries and some sort of interlibrary loan arrangement might avoid duplication.

Ward-Harris said he would look into the matter.

At the previous meeting, Mann had also questioned why another book he had bought at the auction, Montessori Today, had been sold.

In her report McKay said the book was out of date because it had been published in 1971.

"Statistics quoted are 1960s statistics and the directories of teaching institutions and the bibliography of printed works on Montessori cannot be relied on in 1979."

Trustee retreat to clear air?

The motion to hold the day-long retreat was unanimously approved by board members in early June, but it wasn't until this week that a time and place was set. The location remains a secret.

"It wouldn't be a retreat if we told you where it was, would it?" said board chairman Carol Pickup this morning.

Hope was expressed at the time that trustees would examine the board's performance and look for ways to improve morale.

Mention was made of the fact that some board members had been openly critical of the board's committee system, and others had expressed the necessity of trust and a co-operative spirit among trustees if the functioning of the board was to improve.

Lions escape as Ruoff misses

Times News Services

British Columbia Lions are still owners of a perfect 1979 record after scoring 10 points in the third quarter Tuesday night in Winnipeg and then holding on to barely escape with a 19-18 Canadian Football League victory over the Blue Bombers.

In the only other game, Ottawa Rough Riders experienced one of their rare off nights against Toronto Argonauts, but you couldn't tell it by the score as the Riders won going away, 31-2.

The difference in the Winnipeg game was a missed field goal attempt by Winnipeg place kicker Bernie Ruoff, with about two minutes remaining in the game, and the Lions leading 19-17.

Ruoff's kick from the 36 went wide and the single point was conceded by Ken Hinton of the Lions.

British Columbia quarterback Jerry Tagge then ran out the clock with a series of ground plays, including a 16-yard run by Leon Bright.

The victory, before 24,727 fans, was the third in as many games for the Lions, while the Bombers are winless in three starts.

The Lions held quarter leads of 6-0, 9-7 and 19-14 but Ruoff put the Bombers within striking distance at 7:35 of the fourth quarter with a 17-yard field goal.

In the third quarter, Tagge and tight end Harry Holt combined for a touchdown on a 20-yard pass-and-run at 4:16. Passaglia kicked the convert and booted a 50-yard field goal, his fourth of the game, at 11:38.

Winnipeg quarterback Bill Troup had started the Blue Bomber comeback by firing a 23-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Mike Holmes. The third quarter ended as Ruoff converted Holmes' major.

Troup had scored Winnipeg's first points of the game with a two-yard run at 8:58 of the second quarter that Ruoff also converted.

Troup played in place of first-string quarterback Dieter Brock, who twisted his knee in a game against the Stampeders last Wednesday in Calgary. Brock was dressed for the game but did not get into the action.

Tough defensive work by both teams changed the momentum several times during the game. The Lions were picking up steam at the end of the first half, when Winnipeg linebacker Bob Toogood dropped Tagge for an 18-yard loss after the ball had been put into play at the Winnipeg eight-yard line.

The series of plays that led to Ruoff's fourth-quarter field goal started when the Winnipeg defence stalled the Lions and then forced Passaglia to fall on a low snap at the B. C. 45-yard line.

Minutes later, the Lions' defence came up big when Doug Carlson intercepted a Troup pass at the Winnipeg 45. But on the next play, perennial all-star tackle John Helton of the Bombers blasted into the Lions' backfield to force a fumble which was recovered for Winnipeg by Billy Howard.

B. C. running back Larry Key put in a determined effort, gaining 91 yards on 20 carries. Bright was the top receiver in the game with 102 yards on five catches. He also put on a fine display of broken-field running, picking up 120 yards on three kickoff returns. Bright brought the ball back 60 yards after Troup's second quarter score, but the Lions couldn't capitalize on the return.

The difference was that Ottawa, a veteran team that knows how to win, was capable of coming up with the big play — the game breaker.

Cornerback Mike Nelms did just that when he broke the Argonauts spirit in the second quarter with a 71-yard touchdown on a punt return.

Nelms's return was one of three big plays that turned the game decidedly in Ottawa's favor. The other two were a 40-yard interception return by Nelms and a Tony Adams fumble on the Argonaut 21-yard line.

Ottawa quarterback Condredge Holloway, who fired three touchdown passes, two to Tony Gabriel and the other to Jeff Avery, was critical of his performance.

"I had a terrible game," he said. "I don't think I played well at all, not even close. When we play well we sustain drives. But we didn't do that tonght. We relied on turnovers."

LONELY PIGEON surveys scene of emptiness as it perches on seat in vast Lenin Stadium in Moscow while Tuesday's track and field events were in progress. Since opening ceremonies, spectators have occupied only about one-tenth of stadium, in which athletes from all over world will compete next summer for Olympic track and field medals. (AP wirephoto)

American athletes waging banana war

MOSCOW (AP) — They are now calling it the banana war.

American 100-meter hurdler Deby LaPlante of La Mesa, Calif., is fed up at having no fruits or vegetables with the meals in her Moscow hotel. So she and her team-mates have taken to stealing bananas.

"Your body gets used to taking in nutrition day after day," she said Tuesday. "With no vitamins, a lot of us are having hamstring troubles, feeling tight and getting leg cramps."

The 26-year-old blonde, a gold medalist at the recent Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico, won her qualifying heat in 13:21 seconds at the Spartakiad Games on Tuesday, qualifying her for today's semi-final. But she was worried because her hamstring muscle was stiffening up and might be strained.

Waitresses at the Hotel Rossiya, where the U.S. women's track team is staying during the pre-Olympic event, are allowing the athletes only one banana every two days. No other fruit is available at the meals.

"So you gotta steal more," said Louise Ritter, 21, of Denton, Tex., holder of the U.S. women's high-jump record.

LaPlante, Ritter and Cathy Sulinski, 21, of San Francisco, a bronze medalist at the Pan-Am Games in the javelin, also complained about a lack of fresh milk, orange juice and other foods common to Westerners.

For now, the U.S. embassy here has offered to provide some of those foods. And the coaches are trying to scrounge up some vitamin pills.

Borzov still talks of third Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — Valery Borzov is three months short of 30 and his legs are scarred from two operations. Yet, just after suffering one of his most painful defeats, the sprinter was still talking Tuesday of competing in his third Olympics next year.

"I believe I can still keep running competitively," said the great Soviet athlete. "I can't train too much on artificial tracks because it causes small pains. But I still feel I have a 50-50 chance of making the Moscow Olympics."

The crowd at Lenin Stadium fell silent Tuesday as Borzov finished in sixth place in his heat of the 200-metre dash in the Spartakiad Games, an international, pre-Olympic tuneup. He looked overweight and was short of breath.

Yet the spirit of the man who won two gold medals at the 1972 Olympics at Munich was unbroken.

"I am disappointed, but not depressed," Borzov said. "Although I had to have surgery on leg tendons, I never considered quitting.

"I will try to find the most acceptable barrier, considering my age and the injuries I have suffered. If I find it, I will fight for an Olympic medal."

Borzov has already made Olympic history by winning medals in the sprints at two Olympics. After his double triumph at Munich he won the bronze in the 100 metres at Montreal in 1976.

Borzov said his tendons were damaged by too much training on artificial tracks. He does most of his training these days in the forest near Kiev, where he lives with his wife, Olympic gymnast Ludmilla Trescheva, and their small daughter, Tatyana.

Canadians athletes — there were 36 entered in the Spartakiad — were mediocre or worse against the world-class competition Tuesday.

Boxer Steve Nolan of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., lost his opening bout to a Soviet fighter.

In track and field, Borys Chambul of Toronto, holder of the Commonwealth discus record of 65.4 metres, failed to make the class A final with his throw of 55.7 metres.

Despite Borzov's performance, the Soviet spectators in the stadium had plenty to cheer about — their athletes won three of the four track and field finals Tuesday.

There was another Soviet disappointment when Nikolai Andrianov, reigning king of Soviet gymnasts, flubbed his concluding routine on the rings in the all-round team event Tuesday and suffered another humiliating loss in the Spartakiad.

Andrianov, who dominated men's events at the 1976 Montreal Olympics, performed weakly on the last of six freestyle events.

Andrianov fell to fourth in the individual standings, but easily qualified among the top 15 Soviet gymnasts for Thursday's all-round individual finals.

Koji Gushiken of Japan finished fifth in the individual standings with 114.05 after competing with a separate group of 30 foreigners from 16 countries.

Also among the top 15 foreigners joining the Soviets in the all-round finals were Warren Long of Victoria, who finished with 108.50 points and tied for 11th place among the foreign entries with Ion Kechikesh of Romania; Japan's Nobuyuki Kajitani, 18th overall, and Toshiomi Nishikii, 30th.

Rocks lodge protest after loss to Burrards

VANCOUVER — Victoria Shamrocks, who won a protest Tuesday, lodged one themselves over what they believe was an incorrect call by game officials after being edged 16-14 by Vancouver Burrards in a Western Lacrosse Association game at Kerrisdale Arena.

Burrards were shorthanded and had been called on a delayed penalty when Jim Lynch scored for Victoria to tie the score at 13-13. Game officials let the Vancouver player out of the penalty box but didn't penalize the offender on the delayed call.

Shamrock general-manager Leon Hall said a protest has been made and that league commissioner Wally Donaldson discussed the matter with officials following the game and a decision is pending.

Shamrock officials said that an examination of game records showed that Vancouver was back at equal strength when the goal was scored.

Earlier Donaldson had ruled a protest by New Westminster Salmonbellies against the Shamrocks invalid. Victoria had beaten Salmonbellies 14-11 last Wednesday in Victoria but New Westminster protested the game because Victoria had used several junior and senior "B" players.

Doug Hayes paced the Vancouver with four goals and three assists while Dan Perrault and Erik Otterstrom each added three.

Kevin Alexander led the Shamrocks with six goals and two assists. Bob Cool, Norm Baker and Steve Buckley each had two goals while Ranjit Dillon and Jim Lynch each scored once.

BISLEY, England (CP) — Louise Roy, the 18-year-old cadet from Victoriaville, Que., "stuck to her guns" at the Bisley rifle meet Tuesday, winning the Langford Lloyd Challenge Bowl for the best short-range performance by a competitor under 25 in the young rifleman's aggregate.

She scored highest possible 50 at 300 yards, another 50 at 500 yards and 47 at 600 yards to top runner-up, Tony Jones, 24, of Croydon, Surrey, by a single point.

Canadian cadets took 11 of the 28 prizes. Brian Paynter, 17, Ottawa, was fourth with 145; Don Pitcairn, Delta, was fifth with 144 and Geoff Phillips, Calgary, was seventh, also with 144.

Andy Reckford, 16, Calgary, joined prize-winners with 142 but David Biddington, 16, of Moncton, who also shot 142, was "counted out" under the tie rules at the end of the prize list.

Other Canadian prize winners were: Charlie Bell, 17, Calgary; Scott Davidson, 17, Truro, N.S.; Lucie Clement, 17, Quebec City; Jenny Weir, 17, New Glasgow, N.S.; Roy Demeda, 17, Burnaby, and Rob Sidhu, 16, Kamloops, all scoring 143.

The Canadian national team dominated the St. George's Challenge Vase event when 12 members advanced to the second round.

The scoring standard was high. There were 15 competitors with every shot in the bull for a highest possible 75 including George Chase, of Grand Bay, N.B., and Ian Robertson of Ottawa.

Other members of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association (DCRA) team who qualified for the second stage of the St. George's event were: Bill Verchere, Nanaimo, with 74; Don Bullock, West Vancouver, 73, and his son, Jim Bullock, Mississauga, Ont., with 72; Art Grundy, Kingsville, Ont., 73; Sandy Peden, Victoria, 73; Peter Papasideris, Calgary, 73; Fritz Salevsky, Nanaimo, 73, and Clem Tremblay, Quebec, 73.

Those who advanced to the second stage were Bob Brest of Vancouver and Jim Bullock, but Jack Butterfield of Corbyville, Ont., and Peter Page of Victoria were knocked off by weak finishes.

Mussel pilot's prediction made triple play eerie

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

A triple play is a baseball rarity. It gets downright eerie, however, when the manager knows it's coming.

Victoria Mussels pulled it off Tuesday night at Royal Athletic Park en route to a 6-1 Northwest League victory over Bellingham Mariners that left both clubs tied for second place in the northern division.

The triple play occurred in the fifth when Enrique Dias walked and went to second on a throwing error that permitted Luis Rivera to reach first. Mike Codiroli's bunt single loaded the bases and set the stage.

Second baseman Danny Purpura then made a leaping catch of Jim Pressley's line drive and ran to his right to double Rivera off second. He whirled and threw to Emil Drzayich before Codiroli could get back to first.

Victoria manager Bill Bryk, who coached Purpura for two seasons at Thornton Junior College near Chicago, isn't necessarily psychic but he had a premonition just before the big play.

"I called it," he said in the clubhouse after the game. "If you don't believe me, ask Jim Burton."

The Mussel outfielder confirmed his manager's claim.

"I was sitting next to him in the dugout and he turned to me and said watch this triple play," Burton related. "It was weird, really weird."

There was nothing weird about Purpura's performance, though. As well as the triple play, the 21-year-old Chicago native had a hand in three double plays.

He was the pivot man in the first inning when Ramon Esteppa sent him sprawling on a forceout at second. But Purpura picked himself up in time to nail Codiroli at the plate.

Purpura started a sixth-inning double play to shortstop Rod Murphy and Drzayich and was the pivot again on one in the ninth started by third baseman John Frietas.

Double plays aren't new to Purpura. He was involved in four during a game last month against Walla Walla Padres, but it was his first triple killing.

"I was on the field for one in March when I was playing for the University of Illinois in a game against Murray State in Kentucky, but it didn't involve me," he said.

"I really wasn't thinking about a triple play tonight. You don't think, you just react. I really didn't know if we'd get three but I figured it was worth a try."

The flawless support helped righthander Randy Holt, a Vancouver native, to his first win against no losses. He allowed eight hits, walked eight and struck out two. He was lifted with two out and the bases full in the ninth in favor of Victoria's Roy Moretti, who fanned Estappa for his fifth save of the year.

Mussels, still trying to work out a deal with Salem Senators for outfielder Nick Belmonte, open a three-game series against the Mariners in Bellingham tonight.

Triangle boys extend playoff

Triangle forced the double-loss-elimination Greater Victoria Little League baseball championship tournament to the limit Tuesday by trouncing previously-unbeaten Esquimalt 19-1 before a crowd of about 500 fans at Hampton Park.

The deciding game is scheduled for 6:30 tonight at the same park.

Dan Ruttan sparked the 13-hit Triangle attack with three singles and a home run in four trips to the plate and drove in four runs. Murray Bailey added a three-for-four effort.

Esquimalt, which originally knocked Triangle into the losers' bracket, staggered under the batting barrage and committed eight errors.

New Celt talks title

BOSTON (AP) — M. L. Carr says he wants to bring a championship to Boston, and Celtics president Red Auerbach says the slick forward is in the mould of the old Celtics who brought home many a National Basketball Association trophy.

"In order to get the best opportunity to be on a championship club, I felt it was here in Boston," the 6-foot-6, 205-pound former Detroit Piston said Tuesday at a Boston Garden news conference where the club announced his acquisition.

"There will be a championship during my years here," said Carr, who signed a multi-year contract as a free agent. Terms of the pact were not disclosed, but Carr noted, "It's got me smiling."

"He is reminiscent of the old Celtics," said Auerbach, who coached the Celtics to numerous NBA championships between 1946 and 1966. "He's a guy that will play a role . . . We want to get into the old Celtics mould."

Auerbach said he had not discussed the matter of compensation with Detroit, where Carr played the last two years. Pistons coach Dick Vitale has said he wants Bob McAdoo from the Celtics, but Auerbach said, "I'm not interested in what he wants, but what we give them."

"I'm very pleased to have M. L. coming to Boston at the same time I am," said Fitch, who took over from player-coach Dave Cowens following last season's 29-53 record, worst in the NBA Atlantic Division.

Although his real name is Michael Leon, Carr said he prefers M. L., and even signs legal documents that way.

Carr led the NBA in steals last season and tossed in 1,497 points for an average of 18.7 a game, second-best on the Pistons. He also brought down 589 rebounds.

Carr, 28, joins a Celtics front line that includes forwards Cedric Maxwell, Curtis Rowe and Jeff Judkins; centre-forwards McAdoo, Rick Robey and Eric Fernsten, and centres Cowens and highly-acclaimed rookie Larry Bird.

Liverpool goes Japanese

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuter) — Liverpool, the English Football League champion, have arranged a deal to have players wear shirts advertising a Japanese company next season.

Liverpool chairman John Smith said Tuesday: "We are forced to do this — we are hard up."

Last year Liverpool made a modest $163,000 profit out of $5.5 million taken at the turnstiles.

The club's deal with the Japanese company provides for the Liverpool players to wear shirts and track suits bearing the company's name in league and League Cup matches which are not televised.

Approval from the Football Association Council and Football League management committee is expected in the next few days.

Hunters and fishermen pay most wildlife costs

In these days of anti-hunting sentiment — concentrated mainly in the urban areas of the Lower Mainland and southern Vancouver Island — it might be apropos to take a hard look at just who is paying the shot for protection of wildlife in this province.

Most of it isn't being paid by the so-called non-consumptive user, but by the much-maligned but little understood hunters of this province.

Taking the 1977-78 fiscal year as an example, we find revenue from hunting licence sales totalled $3,426,611. Angling licences added another $2,213,864 to the kitty and the remaining $238,924 came from trapping, guiding and outfitting and fur trader licences, fur royalties and fines for infractions of the Wildlife Act.

Breaking these figures down, we find hunters paid 58 per cent of the gross revenue of $5,879,399. Anglers supplied 38 per cent and the other sources provided the remaining 4 per cent.

All of it went into British Columbia's general revenue.

For the same year, the ministry spent $8,549,144 out of an estimated expenditure of $9,348,676 for the Fish and Wildlife Branch. Cost-cutting measures which left some conservation officers without gasoline for their trucks near the end of the fiscal year were responsible for the "saving".

In summation, revenue from consumptive users of fish and wildife in this province covered roughly 69 per cent of the total amount paid out to manage the resource.

So the question remains.

Do we take an additional amount out of general revenue to pay a fair share for non-consumptive outdoorsmen who derive benefits from the protective measures hunters and fishermen have sought and paid for over the years?

Or, should some form of additional tax be established on outdoor gear to pay part of the cost?

Paying an added tax would presumably be the better way, since it would give those who chip in a vested interest and hence an added voice in the proceedings.

Right now non-consumptive users appear to have an influence far out of proportion to the the amount of time and money they spend enhancing the resource.

In addition to supporting a drive to obtain additional funding for the Fish and Wildlife Branch, we should be getting a committment from the government to place greater emphasis on habitat protection in land-use decisions both now and in the future.

But don't count on it.

The current regime bobbled a chance to make the Forest Act responsive to the needs of all forest users.

Two homers by Goudie help Sooke trim rivals

Norm Goudie smashed two home runs and Ernie Holness clubbed one as K&R Sooke tripped Elks-Athletics 11-2 in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League tussle Tuesday at Central Park.

Goudie drove in three runs over-all and Holness, who also singled and scored, drove in two runs.

League play winds up Thursday and playoffs in two categories begin Friday.

The double-loss-elimination senior "C" playoffs open Friday with Juan de Fuca Builders taking on Labatts at 6:45 p.m. and play continues Saturday at 10 a.m. with Strandlund Bros. meeting Victoria Athletics. K&R Sooke received a bye and plays the winner of the second game at 2 p.m.

Senior "B" squads will play a round-robin with Seaboard Construction meeting Tally-Ho at 12 noon Saturday and Elks-Athletics facing Seaboard at 6:30 p.m.

In Victoria Senior Women's League play Tuesday, Karen Dyson and Linda Newcombe combined for a two-hitter as Esquimalt Combos blanked Strathcona Stingers 2-0 and Butler Bros. thumped Capital City Pirates 16-8 at Hyacinth Park.

Dyson gave up one hit in four innings before leaving with an injury and Newcombe allowed only one in the remaining three frames.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Capital Builders tripped Mears Realty 9-4 in an eight-inning Heywood Men's League game.

Theo Van Den Bergh hit three singles, walked twice, scored four times and drove in three runs in five trips to the plate for Builders while Vic Gee and Marty Poulton contributed two hits each.

Barry Moen of Mears connected for a fifth-inning homer to tie the game 4-4 but Builders managed to score five runs in the extra inning on six singles and a double.

In Macdonald Men's League play, Dave Chewpoy hit a two-run homer to lead Birch Builders to an 11-8 decision over Saints and Brian Sittle connected for a four-bagger to help Trafalgar Legion edge Mayfair Insurance 3-1 at Macdonald Park.

Legion hopes alive after close victory

Esquimalt Legion exploded in overtime Tuesday to trip Richmond Roadrunners 12-8 at Esquimalt Sports Centre and keep hopes alive for a playoff berth in the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League.

But the hope may be thin. Legion has only one game remaining on the schedule in a battle for fourth place and the last playoff spot while Coquitlam Adanacs, hot on their heels, have four games left.

Legion and Coquitlam meet in what could be a crucial game next Tuesday at Esquimalt.

A fast three goals in 58 seconds of overtime paced the way for Esquimalt's victory.

The two clubs battled to an 8-8 deadlock in regulation time.

Lumber crew gains ground

Lumberworld struck early and managed to hold on to defeat Quadra Warehouse 8-6 and move to within half a game of leading Farmer Construction in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Tuesday at Lambrick Park.

Lumberworld scored five runs in the second inning, outhit Quadra 9-7 and managed to take advantage of four errors to chalk up the victory.

Bruce Collins, the Quadra catcher, slammed a three-run homer to key a seventh-inning comeback bid that fell short.

Young Mike now a part of Yastrzemski legend

By Canadian Press

Mike Morgan wasn't even born when Carl Yastrzemski broke into pro baseball, but he became part of the Yaz legend Tuesday night.

The 19-year-old pitcher was on the mound in the seventh inning of a tie game when Yastrzemski, who will be 40 on Aug. 22, unloaded his 400th career home run, the 18th player in major league baseball history to reach that mark.

"I figured I had waited long enough," said Yastrzemski, who hadn't homered in 19 games, after his two-run shot sparked Boston Red Sox to a 7-3 victory over Oakland A's. The drive landed in the rear of the A's bullpen in right-centre near the 380-foot mark.

"It was a fast ball and I hit it good," said Yaz. "Yeah, I watched it and I felt if that one didn't go out, then I didn't know when I'd hit another one."

In other American League action, Baltimore Orioles took a double-header from Seattle Mariners 7-6 and 11-3, New York Yankees edged California Angels 6-5, Milwaukee Brewers nipped Detroit Tigers 5-4, Cleveland Indians defeated Minnesota Twins 4-2 and Kansas City Royals spanked Chicago White Sox 11-6.

With the score tied 3-3, Yastrzemski got to bat in the seventh as a result of a two-out error by Oakland first baseman Dave Revering. He didn't waste any time, drilling Morgan's first pitch for his 17th homer and seventh game-winning hit of the year.

"Here we were fighting for our lives in a tie game and Yaz comes through for us just as he has so often over the years," said manager Don Zimmer. "The game situation made it even a greater thrill for me. I was so emotional that I had to fight back tears. He killed the ball, just killed it."

Yaz said his goals now are to accumulate 3,000 hits — he has 2,961 — and win a World Series.

Baltimore left fielder Gary Roenicke's leaping catch in the eighth inning robbed Seattle's Bobby Valentine of a grand slam to preserve the first-game victory, then John Lowenstein hit a grand slam of his own and drove in six runs in the nightcap. The Orioles, who have won seven games in a row, extended their lead in the AL East to five games.

Hoop squads head for a classic finish

Training-camp sessions for the British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association's women's and men's junior teams will wind up this weekend in classic style.

For their training, the men have been going through two-a-day workouts at the University of Victoria since July 16 while the women have been following a similar system in Vancouver under the direction of coach Darlene Currie.

Camp chores will officially end for both squads Sunday, following the first-ever West Coast Basketball Classic at UVic.

Staged by the university, the classic is a three-day tournament involving men's and women's teams and running on a four-games-per-day basis from Friday through Sunday in McKinnon Gymnasium.

Junior provincial squads from Ontario, Manitoba and B.C. and a group of Seattle high school all-stars will compete in the men's section while two teams from the Seattle high school all-stars will contest the women's division with B.C. and Ontario provincial clubs.

Following the classic, B.C. squads will head for London, Ont., for the 1979 Ontario junior invitational tournament.

Directed by Ken Shields, the men's basketball coach at UVic, the British Columbia men's team includes three Vancouver Islanders — Wayne Andrews, and Jay Loukes of Victoria and Ken Larsen of Duncan.

Games each day are slated for 1, 3, 7 and 9 p.m. with the B.C. teams playing in the evening contests.

KAMLOOPS — Jill Johnson of Ganges held a one-stroke lead as the final round started today in the 36-hole British Columbia junior women's golf championship.

Johnson fired a four-over-par 79 in Tuesday's opening round to move a single shot ahead of Nancy Callan of Victoria and Judy Medlicott of Calgary, a member of the Alberta junior team.

Defending-champion Dawn Coe of Cowichan, Linda Jervis of Haney, Patti Grant of Prince George and Janine Getty of Vancouver were four shots off the pace at 83.

Michelle Fulton of Vancouver came in with an 85 while Lynn Westnedge of Kimberley finished at 86.

The top three golfers will represent B.C. in the national championships beginning Aug. 13 in Cornerbrook, Nfld.

Brian stages late charge

KELOWNA — Brian DeGirolamo of Victoria's Gorge Vale and Grant Barnes of the host club fired three-under-par 69s Tuesday to share the first-round lead in the 72-hole British Columbia junior men's golf championship.

DeGirolamo fired a 36 on the front nine and was one over par with four holes to go before rallying to finish with birdies on 15 and 16, a par on 17 and an eagle on the par-five 18th.

U.S. cuts into Canada fish quota

VANCOUVER (UPC) — B.C. fishermen demanded Tuesday that their 1979 halibut quota be raised, charging that Americans have overfished their quota and cut into Canada's share.

The fishermen sent a telegram to federal Fisheries Minister James McGrath asking him to order the joint Canada-U.S. International Pacific Halibut Commission to raise the Canadian limit.

They asked him to delay the opening of the year's fourth and final halibut season, set for July 28, until "this whole problem can be corrected," said spokesman Tony Peterson.

At a meeting with commission officials Tuesday, about 100 angry fishermen threatened to shut down the halibut industry, or ignore their quota, if the commission did not help them.

"We're fed up with having to backbend to the Americans all the time," said Peterson.

The commission set a nine-million-pound halibut catch limit in the four seasons this year for an area which stretches from Cape Spencer in Alaska along the B.C. coast to California. The Canadians were to fish 60 percent or 5.4 million pounds of the quota, the Americans, 3.6 million.

"But the Americans went over their quota by 900,000 pounds because the commission couldn't get a handle on the number of boats the Americans had out there," Peterson said. The total catch to date has already reached the nine-million-pound limit.

In an unprecedented move, the halibut commission agreed to let the Canadians catch 600,000 pounds more, but the fishermen said Tuesday they want the ceiling raised by another 300,000 pounds to reach their original quota.

Richard Myhre, the commission's assistant director, said in a telephone interview from Seattle the commission is reluctant to comply because it fears halibut stocks will be depleted.

"The mistake was on our part because we were unable to predict how much fish the U.S. fishermen would be able to catch in their third season, which finished July 3," Myhre said.

He said American fishermen took about double the amount of fish predicted by the commission, based on "all the information that was available to us at the time."

Myhre said an international fishing agreement signed by Canada and the U.S. has complicated matters for the commission, which must now set national catch quotas for each country as well as a total limit.

"It's interesting that since 1932, the commission has been responsible for the halibut fishery and there has never been any particular squawk about the Americans getting more than the Canadians or vice versa," he said. "Now, because of this new agreement and the hassle of separating U.S. from Canadian waters, we're starting to have problems.

"When you've seen the fishery go on a co-operative basis for so many years, it's sad to see something like this happening."

Strike facing B.C. Television

BURNABY (CP) — Union employees and management at B.C. Television are deadlocked over a jurisdictional dispute that could have the company's two stations behind picket lines by next week.

The dispute between BCTV and the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, which represents 176 employees at CHAN-TV in Burnaby and CHEK-TV in Victoria, began when the union learned that the station planned to produce the Alan Hamel show in Los Angeles with an American crew.

NABET spokesmen said the production is a threat to union jurisdiction and it wants two members on all BCTV production crews working outside the province.

However, BCTV representative Art Collins said Tuesday the Los Angeles production is a routine affair with a firm basis in past practice.

"We have a long history of doing this kind of thing outside the province," he said, adding that the union's stand could threaten BCTV's out-of-town sports telecasts.

NABET could be in a legal strike position by next week if federal Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander hands down his report on the dispute without appointing a conciliation commissioner or board.

Ship jumper stays, for now

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Chilean refugee who jumped ship near Squamish more than two years ago to seek asylum in Canada won't be deported in the immediate future, a New Democrat MP said Tuesday.

The federal government had planned to pick up Galindo Madrid this week and fly him to Newfoundland to rejoin the boat he left.

But Burnaby MP Svend Robinson said Tuesday that assistant immigration minister Jack Manion told him that the ship would not be docking off the coast of Newfoundland this week as expected, so that plan has been scrapped.

Robinson said the government is still examining the possibility of sending Madrid on another ship of the same line.

Robinson is sheltering Madrid behind locked doors in his home and office in hopes that immigration officials will leave him alone.

Madrid, a 22-year-old former student activist in Chile, said in an interview Tuesday he feared Canadian immigration officials were preparing to deport him immediately to Chile. He feels he will be killed if returned to Chile.

Robinson said the government is hypocritical for refusing Madrid's pleas for asylum, but allowing thousands of Asian boat people to enter Canada.

Spending spree nets jail

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A four-month spending spree in British Columbia ended in an 18-month jail term for an Ontario man who left a trail of unpaid motel bills and fraudulent cheques of more than $3,000.

Court was told that Jorg John Lewandowski, 24, cashed worthless cheques in six communities and failed to pay motel bills worth $990 in Port Alberni and Richmond before a Vancouver teller recognized him from a province-wide warning.

Provincial court Judge Gordon Gilmour also put Lewandowski on 18 months probation and ordered him to make restitution to the banks and motels.

The restaurant has the staff of life

DELTA (CP) — Keeping her customers alive is becoming as routine to hotel waitress Cathy Gowan as providing them with good table service.

Twice in two days, she has used her first-aid knowledge to help patrons eating at the Pillars Inn.

Sunday, she went to the aid of a youth choking on his tongue during an epileptic fit and Monday she supervised assistance to a middle-aged businessman who had a large piece of meat stuck in his throat.

"I couldn't believe that two such incidents could happen in two days," said the 17-year-old high school graduate. "Both times I told myself to keep calm but I was shaking afterwards."

Gowan said she saw the youth choking on his tongue "so I placed my fingers in his mouth pulled out some bits of food, and pulled his tongue out of his throat."

"He bit my fingers but they're all right now," she said.

During the second incident, she saw that friends of the man choking on his lunch were hitting him on the back in vain attempts to dislodge a chunk of meat.

Gowan said their attempts weren't doing any good so she showed them how to hold him around the mid-section and then squeeze.

"That cleared his throat, she said, and he was feeling fine by the time the fire department inhalator crew arrived.

Russian whaler saves B.C. boaters

HALIFAX (UPC) — Seven British Columbians — shipwrecked when their 100-foot pleasure craft broke down in the mid-Pacific — have been rescued by a Russian whaling ship after spending nine days adrift in three small life rafts.

Valery Kletnoy, a Soviet government representative in Halifax, said Tuesday the Russian vessel has been given permission to enter U.S. waters and take the four men and three women to Midway Island, located halfway between Japan and Hawaii.

On board the Russian ship from the $1 million White Eagle are Skipper John Van-Tamlin, his son Todd, Don Holtom, all of North Vancouver, boat owner Lloyd Parker and Sarah Miller.

A nurse and a third woman have not been identified, but all are reported to be in good shape after their nine-day ordeal.

The seven Canadians were en route to Honolulu from Yokahama, Japan, when one of the boat's two engines exploded, Kletnoy said. They were finally rescued by the Russian whaler, the Vidnyik, about 400 miles west of Midway on July 21.

It was not immediately known whether the White Eagle was still afloat as neither Kletnoy nor coast guard officials here have been able to get in touch with the Russian ship since it radioed that it had picked up the passengers.

Honolulu coast guard officials said there is no coast guard station on Midway Island, but added they would likely send in a plane or a boat to pick up the Canadians.

Reserve declared free of poison

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Members of the Blueberry Indian band have returned to their reserve about 95 kilometres north of here, one week after they evacuated the reserve when poisonous hydrogen sulphide gas leaked from a nearby natural gas well.

The 90-member band decided to return after a meeting Monday with officials of Calgary-based Kildonan Oil Services Ltd., the federal health and welfare and Indian affairs departments and British Columbia Petroleum Resources Corp.

Kildonan president Vic Baer assured band members that the well would not be turned back on before Aug. 6 when a new monitoring device is expected to be in place. An industrial hygiene chemist with the health and welfare department will live on the reserve and monitor emissions hourly for one week.

The leak occurred when sand, placed in the well to increase air pressure and force the gas out faster, caused a pipe to rupture.

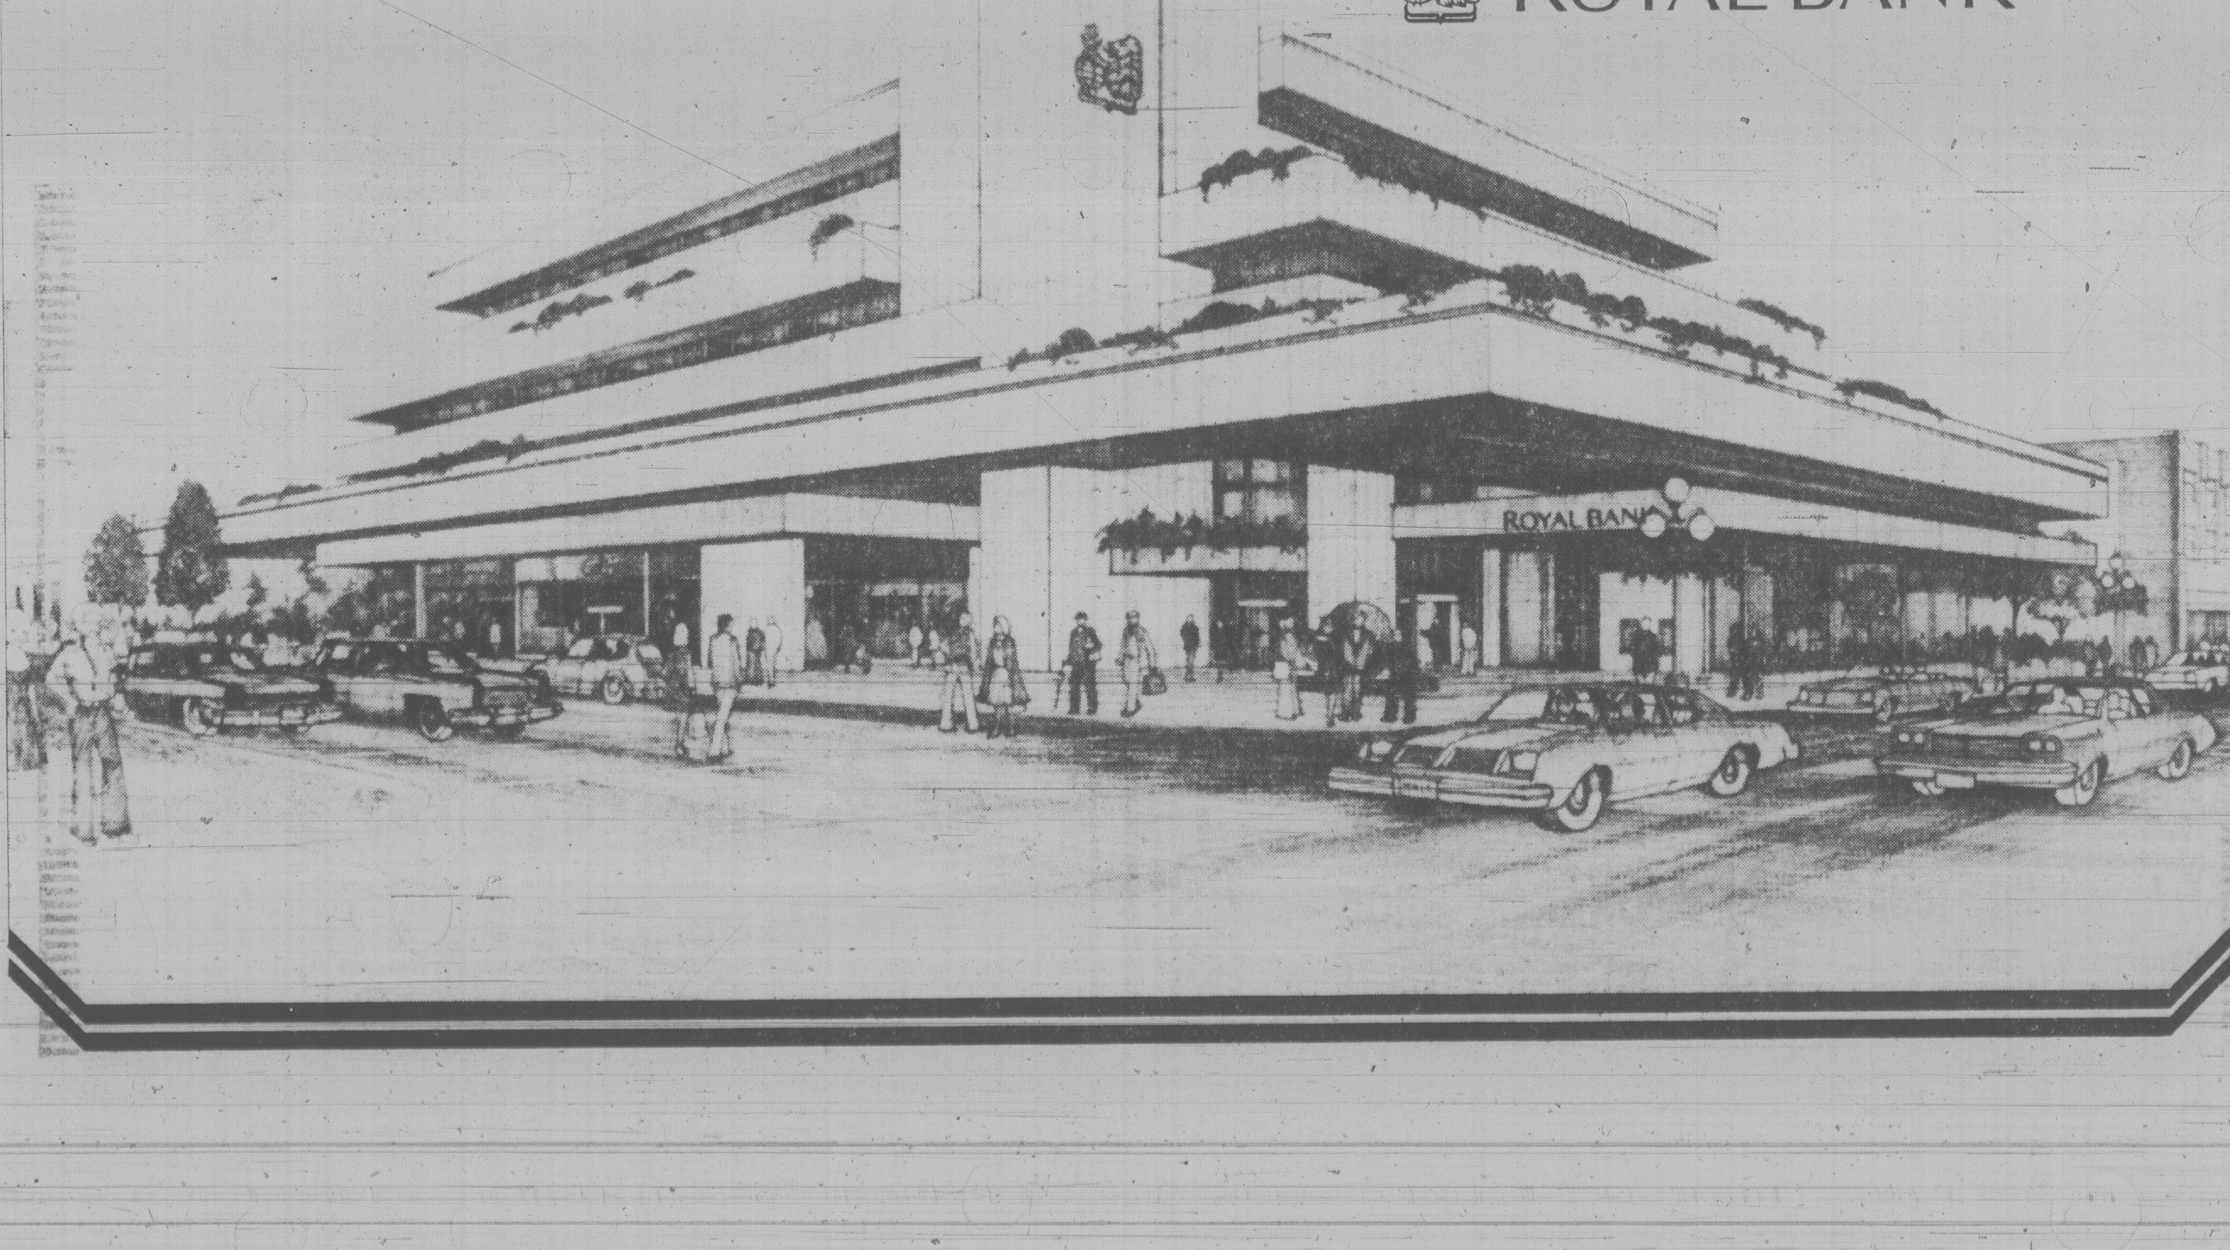
ROYAL BANK



Barber seeks civic probe

It was the fourth year in a row he has made the request.

Barber told the legislature, during debate on the spending estimates of Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm, the royal commission should be asked to draft a new Municipal Act.

Barber said the present legislation is a mess.

"It's chaotic, unregulated, difficult to deal with, hard to follow and hard to read," he said.

"A highly-competent, respected royal commission on local government could do a great deal to consult with the citizens and to prepare as a result a model Municipal Act which could guide all of us into the creation of more sensitive, more effective, efficient and human local government at the most local scale of them all."

In opening debate on his estimates, Vander Zalm said the government has moved to curb the spiralling tax burden on property owners.

He said the government instituted a property tax increase control program in early 1979, increased the provincial homeowner grant and revenue-sharing benefits with municipalities and provided tax reductions for farms or property reserved for agricultural use.

The minister pointed to the government's ceiling of five per cent on budget increases for municipalities and regional districts and the requirement that surplus funds be used as revenue for 1979 budget purposes.

He said that of the 140 municipalities in B.C., 74 reported a decrease in their general mill rates and 45 reported the same general mill rate.

"The 21 municipalities that did increase their general mill rates for 1979 did so because of extraordinary circumstances and in most cases were approved by the inspector of municipalities," Vander Zalm said.

Barber said the government ceiling means municipalities are putting off capital expenditures "until higher interest rates and a greater demand forces them to do it in five years from now."

Fishboat loan called

The provincial government is trying to collect on a $2.5 million loan made to the Sechelt Indian band in 1975 for purchase of a fishing boat.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said Tuesday the loan was made by the previous New Democratic Party government.

He said that under the terms of the loan there is little chance the money will be collected although "we are working with the band to see what we can recover."

Lease loophole plug set for Land Act

The provincial government is taking steps to close a loophole in the Lands Act that allows logging operators to remove Crown timber by applying for agriculture leases and then "clearing" the land.

However, few farms have emerged from the freshly-cleared land, Lands Minister Jim Chabot said Tuesday.

The move to circumvent normal applications for timber leases has grown so popular, that recent agriculture applications for wooded Crown land have tripled over previous years.

The purpose of an agriculture lease is to bring arable land into production, Chabot said. But a review of outstanding leases shows a low level of development.

Policy changes will come in September, the minister promised, "but in the meantime I want to plant the seed that logging operators better not look to agriculture leases for timber."

And as the province moves toward its objective of 65 per cent self-sufficiency in agricultural production, Crown land leases for agricultural purposes have been easier to obtain.

Chabot hinted that agricultural land in future will be offered on a cleared basis.

"While my ministry is extremely interested in assisting them (applicants) in developing agricultural enterprises, the timber supply on these parcels may not be available to them."

Elections Act rejig started

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said Tuesday his ministry has started preliminary drafting of a new Elections Act.

"The election machinery in British Columbia is archaic," Curtis told the legislature during debate on his spending estimates.

The minister said the government plans to introduce an Elections Act at the next session of the legislature.

Curtis noted he had advocated a combined voters' list between local and provincial government in the past.

He said he is responding as much as possible in terms of election reform and an updating of the system "which is painfully elderly."

'It should have been done by the previous New Democratic Party government, perhaps it should have been done prior to that — it should certainly be done now and that's the main point," he said.

Whistler splits cabinet

The B.C. cabinet is split over a bill which will give the Whistler Resort Association some of the powers normally reserved for municipal governments.

A cabinet minister, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday several of his colleagues oppose the legislation because of the powers the association will have under the bill.

However, he said they will support it because it was approved by a majority of the cabinet.

The association is to "promote, facilitate and encourage the development, maintenance and operation" of the resort.

All people who own or do business in the resort automatically will be members of the association, which will have powers to levy assessments to pay for promotion of the area.

Decisions will be made on a weighted-vote basis, based on the amount of investment each member has.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said he supports the legislation because developers, who are putting up more than $100 million, have a right to some assurances.

Jim Lorimer (NDP — Burnaby-Willingdon) said the bill will set up a rich man's paradise because the association will not be subject to the rules and regulations of the Companies Act and "excludes any supervision by the registrar of companies."

Lorimer said the weighted vote gives the well-heeled an unfair advantage.

He noted that Victoria and Penticton rely on the tourist trade "and we don't see bills looking after the protection of those people that are interested in the tourist trade there.

"It's a terrible precedent. It's a terrible mistake and it'll be one the people of B.C. will regret for years to come."

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm, who presented the bill, refused to discuss the weighted vote until the bill is discussed in the legislature.

He said the association is the first of its kind in B.C. and may not be the last.

Vander Zalm said he could not see how anyone would make windfall profits because the association's regulations and bylaws will be reviewed by the municipal council and the cabinet.

Private insurers want to compete

Private insurance companies are determined to compete for auto coverage to the full extent allowed by the provincial government, a Royal Insurance Co. spokesman said Tuesday.

"We are not content to merely supplement ICBC coverage, we want to compete," said Fred King of Vancouver, the company's B.C.-Yukon manager.

He said the company will study the changes mentioned this week by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm to see if the rates can be matched.

Before the Judge

A 26-year-old former Victoria woman was given concurrent 14-day jail sentences after pleading guilty Tuesday in Victoria provincial court to two counts of fraud and one count of false pretences.

Deborah Diane Griffin, who now resides in Courtenay, was denied bail by Judge Fred Green before entering the pleas.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith told the court Griffin went to Gregg's Furniture Manufacturers, 2300 Douglas, on June 22 and obtained $2,583.36 in merchandise, paying for it with two cheques in equal amounts of $1,291.68. One of the cheques, Smith said, was post dated.

One cheque was returned by the Bank of Nova Scotia branch in Richmond, where it was drawn, marked not sufficient funds.

When a representative of the store went to 243 Gorge Road East where the furniture was delivered, he found it vacated, Smith added.

In connection with the false pretence charge, Griffin went to Gordon Head Shell, 3949 Shelbourne, on July 6 and tendered another worthless cheque in the amount of $117.27 for parts and labor for her auto.

The woman was convicted March 29 in Victoria provincial court of stealing more than $4,000 from Saanich Peninsula Savings Credit Union, where she was employed as a teller, and was given a five-month jail sentence by Judge William Ostler.

Griffin, who then lived at 2826 Austin, was also given concurrent three-month terms by Ostler for nine other counts of false pretences.

In addition, she was convicted of being unlawfully at large while serving her terms and was sentenced to a further 14 days in jail recently, Smith said.

Defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie said his client had been threatened while serving her sentence and was blackmailed into the acts of escaping and purchasing the furniture with the bad cheques.

Although the woman was on an 18-month probation handed out by Oslter, another 18-month probation term was imposed by Green, who also ordered her to take any psychiatric or psychological counselling as directed. He also ordered her to make restitution in the amount of $52.10 for auto parts to Gordon Head Shell.

A Vancouver couple was charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking after approximately one pound of the substance was found in a car Friday in Saanich.

Robert John Hooper, 35, and Gloria Alice Hooper, 32, both of 2223 Victoria Drive, were remanded until next Tuesday for election of trial method and, in the husband's case, possible bail application.

A 26-year-old man who told Green he only "hung a moon and turned around" pleaded guilty to a charge of performing an indecent act.

David Edward Jones, 429 Pine, was released on his own undertaking and remanded until next Tuesday to delve into allegations he did further indecent acts.

Court was informed Jones was spotted by five youths while he was standing on a log boom off the foot of Roberts Street at about 9 p.m. Monday night. Jones dropped his pants to his ankles and exposed himself, Smith said. Esquimalt police required a boat to go out to the West Bay log boom and arrest Jones, who said he was fishing and drinking with two friends.

Jennifer Louise Frietas, no fixed address, initially pleaded guilty to the charge, saying she only pinched some people and performed a sexual act on a male.

At that point, Green ordered the woman held in custody for a medical examination and remanded her until Thursday morning for a report on her fitness.

"From the description of what happened, you're lucky to be in one piece," Green told a 20-year-old Saanich man.

Roy Edward Leno, 3307 Maplewood, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and was fined $250, placed on six months probation and ordered to take the impaired drivers course.

Smith said Leno was heading east in the 1400-block Hillside at about 1:45 a.m., May 30, when his vehicle hit a power pole and a fire hydrant, skidded another 90 to 100 feet before hitting another pole, and ended up on its roof.

Leno told the judge he was cut off prior to the accident.

* * *

Goldstream weekend

Family hikes, a talk on the hunting techniques of prehistoric man, a tour of park headquarters and a tea party are some of the attractions of a naturalist program at Goldstream Provincial Park this weekend.

The program will start on Friday at 8 p.m. with a talk and a demonstration on prehistoric survival techniques by Tom Loy of the archeology division, Provincial Museum.

On Saturday visitors can choose between a two-hour hike or an all-day hike in in the park. The latter covers six miles of trails. Naturalists will be in charge.

The short hike will start at 10:30 a.m. from campsite 40, Goldstream campground, ending at 12:30 p.m.

The longer hike will start at the same time and place and will end at 4:30 p.m. Participants are requested to bring a knapsack lunch and to wear walking shoes.

The Saturday night program will start at 9 and include a slide show by nature photographer Jessie Woollett on the life history of the Swallow Tail butterfly.

Starting at 10:30, there will be a "spider" walk starting from campsite 136. The walk will concentrate on moving quietly through the woods.

On Sunday a tour of park headquarters will be held from 10 a.m. to noon, and between 1 and 5 p.m. Coffee, tea and cookies will be served in the Freeman King Nature House.

Displays by local artists and photographers will be held in the nature house, plus hourly slide talks on the salmonid enhancement program and B.C. marine parks.

Further information on the program may be obtained by contacting the Nature House at 478-9414 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Rainbow Stage marks 25th

WINNIPEG (CP) — One of Canada's longest-running outdoor theatres marks its silver anniversary under the stars at Winnipeg's Kildonan Park this season.

Evelyne Anderson, who is starring this season in The King and I, recalls the company's first full-scale show:

"We did Brigadoon in late August," she says. "It was an experiment to see if people could be attracted to the bandstand. At that time of the year it was very cold at night and we were underdressed, even in our wools, but people came."

As the years passed, stage sets, washrooms, box offices and a parking lot were added to the complex, along with a lighting booth and a storage area for scenery.

In 1966, Shapira arrived and Rainbow Stage Inc. was founded.

MLAs back maritime museum

Both sides of the legislature agreed Tuesday Victoria should be the site of a Maritime Museum of the Pacific if such a project gets off the ground.

During debate on the spending estimates of Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis, Victoria NDP MLA Gordon Hanson urged the minister to promote Victoria as the Pacific location of a museum similar to one in Nova Scotia.

Hanson said Vancouver interests are already vying for the museum, but that Victoria is a much better choice for a number of reasons.

Curtis, the MLA for Saanich, agreed with Hanson that if the federal government is willing to participate in the development of such an institution on the West Coast, Victoria is the logical place.

"I concur without hesitation," he said, looking around the sparsely filled chambers for dissension from Vancouver MLAs.

No one spoke up. But Curtis said it wouldn't matter because his mind is made up. "Victoria is B.C.'s historic port. So many factors dictate that the museum be here and stay here."

Curtis said talks have begun with staff of the Maritime Museum in Bastion Square, and reminded the house space has been set aside for a new maritime museum as part of the new Inner Harbor development.

Some discussion has started with Ottawa, but Curtis said he has nothing to report.

Hanson said the importance of a Pacific museum extends far beyond the historical and tourism values.

Like the famous California marine institutions that have become the vanguard for marine research, B.C. must switch its emphasis from land to the sea, especially with the recent inplementation of the 200-mile limit.

A complex technology must be developed for harvesting and managing marine resources. And the consciousness of the public must be raised.

In combination with the Oceanographic Insitute at Pat Bay, a Victoria marine centre would promote the cross-pollination of ideas, Hanson said. And it would create jobs.

He said Victoria must start focussing on it now or it will go to Vancouver by default.

In that city, the project would be diluted: "It wouldn't have the same impact as here," Hanson added.

No E&N action until fall

VIA Rail won't take any steps to improve passenger service on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, at least until it has analyzed results of a study that won't even begin until fall.

Prompted by a call for support from Comox NDP MLA Karen Sanford, Premier Bill Bennett wrote VIA officials suggesting a run starting in the morning from the northern terminal at Courtenay, returning from Victoria later in the day.

VIA has introduced a second, larger Budd car to pair with the Dayliner that leaves Victoria for Courtenay every morning.

The second car replaces a smaller 68-passenger Budd car that VIA intends to remove for service on the prairies.

Sanford and Bennett suggested the smaller car be used for a daily run from Courtenay so travellers from up-Island can make one-day visits to Victoria.

But VIA officials said Tuesday that they want to determine the role played by different transportation modes serving the Island before making any moves.

Ottawa hearings

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbians who want to testify against B.C. Hydro's licence to export electric power to the U.S. may have to travel to Ottawa.

G. G. Michaud, National Energy Board secretariat chief, said Tuesday that public hearings into the Crown corporation's application for renewal and expansion of its export licences probably will be held this fall.

But he said the hearings likely will be held in Ottawa, rather than Vancouver, because of budget restraints.

Board information officer Ann Plante said Hydro applied May 16 for renewal of its four export licences which expire Sept. 30.

They are blaming the provincial health ministry, which is holding 1979 hospital spending increases to 7.5 per cent, for the Continental-style breakfasts they have been receiving.

The hospital is dishing up juice, coffee or tea, cold cereal and muffins or breadrolls instead of the standard bacon, eggs and hot toast.

"I've been here three weeks and haven't had a slice of toast," complained patient Jenny Bremner, "If they'd fire McClelland . . . he's cut down the hospital on everything."

Margaret Galloway, food services director at the Vancouver-area hospital, said the cold breakfast program is an experiment that was planned before McClelland introduced his austerity drive. She said cold breakfast provides the same nutrition as the eggs or hot cereal variety and for some patients is easier to digest.

"It has nothing to do with the current budget cuts," she said. "We're not just interested in saving money."

But she did say that the program, a two-month experiment, would save $20,000 over 12 months. Main savings came from using disposable utensils and because cold meal preparation is simpler.

Many patients are satisfied with the morning fare.

"It suits me fine," said rehabilitation patient Lois Phipps. "It's what I usually have anyway."

But lack of variety has upset some longer-term patients.

"It's getting to be very monotonous," said Ivy Crompton, who misses her toast and hot cereal. "I get tired of it."

Food is not the only concern, however. Some patients are not happy with general service reductions made to accommodate the provincial spending limitations.

Alex Tawse, a construction worker, said: "The staff is suffering more than the patients. The minister of health should be replaced."

The hospital administration wil decide next month whether to continue the cold breakfast program.

Meanwhile, suburban Surrey Memorial Hospital also has adopted a money-saving program. It is delivering meals in trays — airline style. It hasn't gone to cold breakfasts yet.

Critics of the Social Credit health ministry say the 7.5 per cent ceiling on spending increases amounts to a spending reduction because annual inflation is running in the nine per cent range.

In default of the fine, Norman Larue will spend 14 days in jail.

When Larue appeared in court Monday to face a charge of assaulting his pregnant wife, Provincial Court Judge Ross Simpson noted the accused was swaying and seemed intoxicated.

Because Larue's lawyer was needed in another courtroom, Judge Simpson ordered a brief adjournment.

Larue walked away during the adjournment and was arrested on the street. A breath-test showed a blood-alcohol level of 2.4, three times the legal limit to drive an automobile.

At his contempt hearing, Larue apologized, and said the and two friends shared a gallon of wine before his trial because he was nervous.

Vander Zalm rapped

Capital Regional District board chairman Murray Glazier said today Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm should stop taking potshots at regional districts and get on with the job of making the necessary legislative changes.

Glazier was responding to Vander Zalm's claims made Monday that regional districts are too large, some so big that directors have become remote from the people they serve.

Earlier in the year, the minister said there was a 50-50 chance of regional districts being wiped out. Shortly after taking office, Vander Zalm said trimming the power of regional districts would be a top priority.

On Mondsy, he said his ministry will have legislation ready by the fall session, if there is one, if not, by next spring.

"The minister ought to implement at least some of the recommendations of the Regional District Review Committee report, completed last fall, rather than contually snipe at regional districts," Glazier said. "I realize the government can make political hay out of castigating regional boards but the fact is we have to operate on existing legislation until this minister changes it."

Glazier said he was on the executive of the Union of B.C. Municipalities which has had several meetings with Vander Zalm urging the minister on the need for reform of regional districts.

Glazier said the minister had told reporters after a meeting on Jan. 22 that some action would be taken in two weeks time.

"Instead of acting to bring in legislative change the minister continues to make vague and inconsistent references to regional district operations," Glazier said.

He said the Municipal Act must be amended to remove or streamline antiquated and cumbersome procedures.

"The board's procedures could be greatly simplified, reducing costs and eliminating delays in the work of the board but he has to get the ball rolling," Glazier said.

Park plans okayed

The Capital Regional District's finance committee today approved plans submitted by the landscape architect firm of Quayle Gould for the regional district's Reeson Park on Wharf Street.

The plans include a viewing wharf topped by a viewing shelter and board walks through the park.

There will be a grass area in the centre of the park, a grove of trees at one edge, on the Johnson Street bridge side, and further screening on the side next to McQuade's Marine Supply Ltd. store on Wharf.

A series of ramps will make the entire park accessible to wheelchair users.

A small area on the shore will be dredged to provide a cobble beach.

The committee also decided to contact the city of Victoria to ask that a service road formerly used by Oaklands be added to the park.

The city will also be asked to consider having its public works department carry out some of the work in the park and that its parks department maintain the park.

The park was donated to the regional district by a non-profit company formed by former city major Peter Pollen and developer Gordon Reeson.

Board calls halt to salary boosts

The regional district finance and personnel committee met privately this morning and decided each of the cases involved — 30 positions — will be evaluated individually.

Following the meeting, regional board chairman Murray Glazier said percentage increases are a highly different matter when they involve people receiving salaries of $35,000 or $40,000 than when the salary is $10,000 or $12,000 a year.

The regional district's union employees have been granted 7¼-per-cent increases for this year and the next.

He said each of the department heads and management positions will be compared to similar positions in the private sector.

If the salary now being received is higher no increase will be made. If it is lower, the salary will be adjusted accordingly.

IWA accord

The International Woodworkers of America will sign a new agreement Thursday.

All locals have accepted the agreement, described by the industry as the richest ever.

The union is expected to announce ratification by a two-to-one margin.

A spokesman for the IWA said today: "We are happy that all the locals are accepting, in contrast to only five out of nine of Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada."

B.C. heroin program refused federal aid

The new Tory federal government won't offer any more financial assistance for B.C.'s compulsory heroin treatment program than its Liberal predecessor.

Federal Health Minister David Crombie met with his provincial counterpart Bob McClelland in Victoria today and made it clear the federal government won't involve itself in any way with the compulsory aspects of the controversial program.

B.C. has been after federal funding since the legislation was passed last year.

But former federal health minister Monique Begin wouldn't even consider the province's plea for financial aid.

Crombie, however, did offer some concessions on the voluntary aspects of the program. He said the federal government recognizes B.C. has the biggest heroin addiction problem and is willing to participate in any treatment programs that are based on voluntary participation.

And Crombie has also agreed to arranging a meeting in September with the solicitor-general, the minister of justice, himself, McClelland and other provincial ministers to further discuss the heroin treatment program.

By KAY SPICER

If there was a prize for the most popular berry the strawberry would certainly win. Everyone loves sweet, succulent strawberries.

Unfortunately their season is very short. No sooner do strawberries appear in produce departments and open markets then they seem to disappear. To extend their unique flavor and fragance store some in your freezer of lock them in preserving jars to enjoy in the winter months. Strawberries do not can well, but freeze beautifully. For jam and preserves they can hardly be matched.

Fresh strawberries are low in calories so are a joy for weight control groups. (One cup or about 5 ounces has approximately 50 calories and 12 grams of carbohydrates.) They are high in vitamins A and C. (Most of the vitamin content is lost in cooking.)

For a seasonal treat serve fresh rinsed berries in Sherry Cream. Strawberries and Cream Flan is not only attractive, but delicious. Strawberries and rhubarb have beem going together for years. The sweet and tangy pie combining the two is a taste sensation and destined to be a winner for dessert.

Sweet dough : It's versatile

Hilda Beastall

Making an interesting kind of bread or indeed any form of yeast dough product is a favorite job with homemakers who look for full value in daily bread. Often this yeast dough baking turns into delicious party fare, picnic goodies or surprise contributions to community gatherings. Yet they are plain healthful food at low cost in today's terms.

The recipe for Sweet Dough is one to keep in the file under "Yeast Breads, filled rolls etc." or choose your own listing which means a variety of uses.

SWEET DOUGH

¼ cup warm water
1 Tbsp yeast (or 1 pkt)
¼ cup soft margarine
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tsp salt
1 cup hot water
½ cup powdered skim milk
2 small eggs
1 cup oat flakes
3 cups unbleached flour (approx)
¼ cup wheat germ

Date Filling

½ cup chopped dates
¼ cup orange juice
1 Tbsp lemon juice
2 tsp soft margarine

Prune Filling

½ cup cooked, stoned prunes, no juice
1 Tbsp lemon juice
1 Tbsp brown sugar

Fresh Fruit Pieces as fillings

Use Pieces of fresh peach, apple (apple a good flavor), or banana. Roll each piece in a little sugar and mould just enough dough around the piece to cover. Bake as separate little rolls.

Ground or Chopped Nuts and Margarine

Mix and spread on rolled out dough.

One of the greatest surprises about yeast dough is the easy way it rolls out like a pastry, only much more readily handled and without the slightest hint of cracking, tearing or stretching.

To make Sweet Dough from recipe above:

Pour warm water into warmed mixing bowl. Sprinkle with yeast and let stand 10 minutes until smooth. This is called "working".

In a smaller bowl, measure margarine, sugar and salt. Add hot water and stir to melt and cool to same temperature as yeast mixture.

Beat in 1 cup of flour to margarine mixture; then the eggs, using a large wooden spoon and adding the powdered milk.

When well blended, add to the yeast mixture, still beating well with a lifting motion of the spoon to incorporate air for rising.

Add the oat flakes and enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn the dough over in the bowl a few times with the spoon in place of kneading by hand, until it becomes smooth and dry with flour on outside. Divide into two portions.

On a floured waxed paper, roll out each portion into a rectangle using remaining flour as required on damp dough surface which is exposed.

Spread each rectangle with your choice of Date Filling, Prune Filling, Fresh fruit Filling, or Ground Nuts and Margarine.

From long side of dough rectangle, take paper edges and form roll by lifting paper and allowing dough with its filling to roll up by lifting and holding the edge of the waxed paper. Do this easy rolling once and you see how convenient it is to handle.

Cut the roll with a sharp knife into slices and place one cut side down on a lightly greased cookie sheet or in greased muffin pans. Or the long rolls may be baked whole on the cookie sheet. Each variation makes a slightly different product. Now for the quick rising and baking method.

Place pans in cold oven. Turn indicator to about 36 deg.C (97 deg.F) to start rising for 10 minutes.

Turn off heat to allow continued rising until dough is doubled in height, about another 10 minutes.

Then turn indicator to fairly hot 200 deg.C (400 deg. F) for just 10 minutes to stop further rising and start the baking.

Now turn indicator down to moderate baking range of 175 deg. C to complete the baking in another 20 minutes or so.

This whole dough making, rolling out and rising and baking, takes just over one hour; many of you fast workers will do it in less.

The simple and accommodating recipe is adaptable for making savory rolls by reducing the sugar in the dough ot one tablespoon, just enough to activate the yeast. Fillings can be varied with herbs, onions, ground soybeans, chopped vegetables, grated cheese, or cooked ground meat or flaked fish.

Good to eat and more healthful than a rich pastry, this yeast dough is as versatile as good bread itself.

SUMMER JAMS

For a jam to set, the sugar, pectin, acid and water have to be in a definite proportion. Follow an accurate, tested recipe and you're guaranteed prized summer jams

Vary mix and you're in jam

Homemade jams have been around for years and so have the problems in making them set. For a jam to set, the sugar, pectin, acid and water have to be in a definite proportion. You can't simply reduce the amount of sugar called for in a recipe and expect success. Don't tamper with it!

Jams can be made with or without added pectin, a substance found naturally in some fruit. Certain fruits, like currants, blackberries, gooseberries and grapes don't need added pectin to set. Others don't contain enough natural pectin. Pure fruit jams need longer cooking to reach the gel stage than those made with added pectin.

The freshness of the pectin can be crucial as well. Powdered or liquid pectin will keep unopened for two years. To tell if liquid pectin is still useable, pour it into a bowl and look for clots. If there are clots, throw it out.

Unless specific instructions are given, don't interchange powdered and liquid pectin. Liquid pectin is added to cooked fruit and sugar after it has boiled for one minute. Powdered pectin is added to the unheated, crushed fruit before adding sugar.

Another key to successful jam making is an accurate, tested recipe. Food Advisory Division offers a good selection of jam recipes in Jams, Jellies and Pickles, publication 992. Write to Information Services, Agriculture Canada, K1A 0C7 for your free copy.

Secret is in the sealing

The secret to guarding your prized jams and jellies against mold is in the sealing — paraffin wax is a must.

Almost any type of jar can be used but they have to be sterilized. Once the jam or jelly is prepared, carefully pour the hot mixture into the jars, leaving at least a ¼-inch of headspace. To ensure a perfect seal and to prevent "weeping" or oozing of liquid after the paraffin is added, avoid any dribbling on the inside top of the jar above the jam level. Wipe it clean if necessary.

Let the contents cool slightly, then pour over a thin layer of hot melted paraffin. Rotate the jar so that the wax will adhere to the glass to really seal it. Leave this until it hardens and add a second layer of melted wax, again rotating the jar.

Good sealing techniques and proper storage provide strong competition for active mold.

Barbecued lamb chop-lickin' good

With the barbecue season in full swing, lamb steaks offer an economical and tasty way to vary your outdoor cooking menu.

Lamb steaks come from four primal cuts — leg, shoulder, rib and loin — and, of these, the leg provides the largest and meatiest man-sized steaks.

Spring lamb steaks require no marinade and can be prepared like any other steak, medium rare or well done. A lot of people don't realize that lamb can be eaten rare or pink and, indeed, many prefer it that way.

For leg steaks have your butcher cut a leg of lamb into 1¼-inch slices while still frozen. They can be popped into the home freezer until a couple of hours before you're ready to barbecue.

Loin and rib steaks — or familiarly known as lamb chops — should be cut at least 1½ inches in thickness for barbecuing.

Barbecued shish kebab is another taste delight when prepared with New Zealand spring lamb. Leg steaks, 1½ inches thick, should be used in cubing meat for shish kebab. If preferred a marinade can be used to add to the flavour.

Another flavour treat for outdoor entertaining is lamb fondue. For this dish have your butcher cut one-inch leg steaks from the leg of lamb to make it easier to cube the meat. Use the same sauces as you would for any other fondue meat.

BARBECUED LAMB STEAKS

½ leg New Zealand Spring Lamb (about 3 pounds)
½ cup lemon juice
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons dried mint leaves
¼ cup cooking oil.

Have butcher cut lamb leg into three thick steaks; trim fat from lamb. Combine fruit juices, sugar and mint; pour over lamb in a large bowl; refrigerate for several hours; remove lamb and cooking oil to sauce.

Grill steaks about five inches from glowing coals for 15 to 20 minutes each side — brushing generously with the sauce while grilling. To serve, slice thin diagonal slices from top to bottom of steaks. Serves four to six.

SHISH KEBAB OVER COALS

When putting chunks of meat on skewer do not overcrowd; heat should reach all sides of meat. Turn to brown evenly. Kebabs may be marinaded several hours before grilling and brushed during grilling.

Suggested combinations: one or two-inch thick lamb cubes, mushrooms, cooked onions, green pepper chunks; lamb cubes, sliced bacon, tomato wedges, cooked small potatoes, pineapple chunks, cherry tomatoes.

MARINADE

⅓ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon soya sauce
2 garlic cloves crushed
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup olive oil
2 cups plain yogurt
2 tablespoons ground coriander
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons cumin
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Fresh ground black pepper
2 cloves
1 medium onion, sliced

Combine all ingredients. Blend well and pour over the lamb cubes. Marinate overnight in the refrigerator. Drain the meat well, saving the marinade to baste when barbecuing.

50 ml brown sugar
Dash salt
2 ml cinnamon
12 15-cm crepes

Combine cottage cheese, brown sugar, salt and cinnamon. Place 50 ml cheese mixture on each crepe. Fold in half and then in half again. Top with berry sauce. 6 servings.

Bocaccio dapper? Now it's snapper!

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — If you went to a restaurant, would you order widow rockfish if it were on the menu? How about cowcod?

Would you buy black, vermillion, speckled, canary, yelloweye, yellowtail, olive, bocaccio or bank rockfish at your local supermarket?

Operating under the assumption you would not, the Oregon legislature has agreed to amend state law and allow the marketing of all those fish under the name of snapper.

Just plain old snapper — or Pacific snapper, or Oregon snapper, or red snapper, or Pacific red snapper, or Oregon red snapper.

At the same time, the legislature agreed it is okay to label sablefish as butterfish or black cod.

The measure authorizing the change was signed into law by Gov. Vic Atiyeh this week.

Hoarding? Care is vital

By JEANNE LESEM

The French have a phrase that translates as, "The more things change, the more they remain the same."

We were reminded of it by a five-year-old food story we came across in our files recently. It contained advice about coping with fast-rising food prices during an inflationary period.

The suggestions are just as sound — and as pertinent — today as they were in 1974, maybe more so.

An important piece of advice:

If you are tempted to hoard food in anticipation of even higher prices or shortages — don't.

Indiscriminate stockpiling can be doubly expensive if the food spoils or loses quality and-or nutritives during long storage at too warm a temperature.

On the other hand, buying some foods in bulk can save money if the items you purchase are things your family eats regularly.

Dry staples such as white and parboiled rice, dried beans and other dried vegetables and canned foods keep well for up to a year under certain conditions, say the Cornell and Michigan State University Extension Services.

"Under certain conditions" — there's the catch. Few houses and apartments have a dry storage area whose temperature never rises above 20 degrees C. This is the recommended storage climate for food in cans or other tightly covered rigid containers made from metal, glass or plastic.

—Transfer boxed or bagged foods to tightly covered rigid containers. This allows you to check them first for the presence of insects that can develop in sealed bags or boxes of flour and other cereal products mishandled at a warehouse or retail store.

—Date package or can labels or storage containers before you put the groceries away, and always use the oldest first.

—Raw white rice and parboiled white rice keep well for up to two years under ideal conditions but flavored rice mixes keep no more than six months and brown rice no more than two months. Seasonings in the mixes can lose flavor and-or attract insects. The natural fat content in the outer layer of brown rice can develop an off-flavor. For longer storage, refrigeration is recommended.

—Macaroni products, including noodles, can be stored up to two years.

—Dried beans and other dried vegetables keep well for as long as a year but they tend to dry out even more. When this happens, longer cooking is necessary.

—Unflavored dried potatoes have a recommended storage time of six to 12 months, but flavored mixes only keep about six months.

—Unopened canned foods should keep well up to a year in a cool, dry spot.

—Fats and oil need protection from light and air. Otherwise, they oxidize like wine, turn rancid and develop off-flavors. Partly filled bottles should be decanted into small ones that can be filled to the top for long storage.

—White flour should keep well for about 6 to 8 months at cool room temperature but whole wheat and other whole grain flours should be refrigerated to keep their fat content from developing off flavors.

—Don't store any food on a high shelf. Even in a cool room, heat rises and groceries kept there may be well above the temperatures at counter level or below.

Miracle sex vitamins are unproven so far

NUTRITION MATTERS

Dr. Elizabeth Bright-See and Jane Hope

It will help you grow hair, ease your aches and pains, prevent ulcers, make you sexually young. These are just a few of the claims being made for various products.

We seem to be preoccupied these days with the connection between vitamins, "special" foods and magical powers of all types. And it's a controversial subject.

Foods are chewed and pills gulped in an ongoing effort to find the perfect aphrodisiac — that elusive substance alleged to increase sexual desire and potency. The oyster, for example, is popular with believers in such aphrodisiacs. Not so, we're sorry to say. Oysters are a good protein source but they have no magical powers. Nor has any other specific food or single nutrient ever been singled out that can stave off impotence or the ravages of aging.

Vitamin E is perhaps the most widely touted of all nutrients, thought to increase sexual vitality. Its sales are soaring. Has something new been discovered? No. The presence of Vitamin E has been known for decades but the way it came to be so highly regarded as a source of increased sexual prowess is interesting as the interest in this vitamin is based on a misinterpretation of research data.

Nearly 50 years ago, a substance was isolated from vegetable oils that helped female rats produce more offspring. That substance was Vitamin E or tocopherol. The fact that these rats had to be almost starved in order to produce a condition where the vitamin would be helpful and that this condition would be practically non-existent in Canada has long since been forgotten. Later research has not been able to demonstrate any effect of a Vitamin E deficiency in humans. This is despite various efforts to show that women who have frequent miscarriages have low Vitamin E levels and to show improved potency in males who consume large (mega) doses of this vitamin.

It's properties are difficult to demonstrate as it is hard to find a Vitamin E deficiency in adults. Although Vitamin E is definitely needed by the body, the amount needed depends on your age, sex and diet. The recommended daily intake (the amount you need to stay healthy) is 6 to 10 milligrams.

Sufficient amounts of Vitamin E can be easily obtained if you make a definite point of eating some common foods which contain Vitamin E naturally. These include whole grains, wheat germ, liver, egg yolks, brown rice, and leafy green vegetables with a salad oil dressing. Much of the Vitamin E you buy comes from what remains after oils and whole grains are refined.

Vitamin E supplements have been found useful in some rare cases of blood disturbances of premature infants (Vitamin E doesn't travel well across the placenta and many "premies" are, in fact, E-deficient). This lack of Vitamin E produces a form of anemia and skin irritations in these premies. Vitamin E supplements are recommended for babies with this problem who are not being breastfed. Nursing infants have a readily available source of Vitamin E since breast milk contains more Vitamin E than cow's milk.

Vitamin E has also been linked to cancer, aging, and cardiovascular disease because of its powerful antioxidant activities — but again, science simply doesn't back this up as yet. What about the cosmetic usefulness of Vitamin E? Again, there isn't any evidence to support claims that cosmetics with Vitamin E erase wrinkles or give new life to aging skin. One popular new deodorant in the States was recalled in 1973 when its widespread incidence of severe rashes were reported after use.

Other nutrients are also linked to creating a happy sex life. Zinc is one example. High zinc levels have been associated with male fertility. Many "aphrodisiacs" popular through the ages were indeed rich in zinc. Pumpkin and sunflower seeds (good sources of zinc) were thought by some cultures, particulary in Russia, to increase potency. While a zinc deficiency is rare, it only occurs where protein consumption is low and consumption of creals and unleavened whole grains is high. Zinc has been linked to delayed sexual maturity, however.

Brewer's yeasts are also old favorites, but without documented evidence. Yeasts are good sources of certain B vitamins and minerals. Supplements can be bought in tablet form or sprinkled in food — but we think they taste awful and if you eat a well-balanced diet each day it shouldn't be necessary.

Choline (found in plants) is another nutrient implicated by folklore and a bit of research in sexual and reproductive function. Perhaps this is where egg yolks (rich in choline) obtained an unwarranted reputation for a cure for impotence.

Sadly, we must conclude that Vitamin E (and other nutrients) can't be labelled yet as "sex vitamins". They will not perform miracles.

Confidence, enthusiasm and general good health are still the most effective tonics. Research in the future, hopefully, will pinpoint ways in which good nutrition in general will influence sexual functions. A varied, well-balanced diet is a much better route to good health in all its aspects than a myriad of pills.

(Jane Hope (B.A., R.P.Dt.) is a Home Economist and nutrition concultant. Dr. Elizabeth Bright-See (B.S., M.S., Ph.D.) is a professor of human nutrition at the University of Toronto).

Italian mushroom salad

1 clove garlic (optional)
½ medium head romaine, torn in bite-size pieces
½ medium head iceberg lettuce, torn in bite-size pieces
1½ cups thinly-sliced raw zucchini
1 cup raw sliced mushrooms
½ cup sliced radishes
⅓ cup chopped green onions
Italian dressing
6 slices bacon, crisp-cooked, and drained
Crumbled blue cheese

Chill all ingredients very well. If desired, rub inside of large salad bowl with split clove of garlic (retain clove to use in dressing). Into bowl place romaine and iceberg lettuces, mushrooms, zucchini, radishes and green onions. Just before serving, gently toss salad with Italian dressing (use just enough dressing to coat vegetables lightly). Season to taste with salt and pepper. Sprinkle crumbled bacon and bleu cheese over top. Makes six servings.

Wonderful Ways With Soups is a 63-page book that contains about 180 recipe ideas for using condensed soups. In addition to forming a separate part of a three-course meal, condensed soup can be tastefully employed with beef, chicken, eggs, fish, and salads. To top off a meal, how about tomato soup cake?

You can obtain a free copy by writing to: Home Economics Dept., Campbell's Soup company, 60 Birmingham, Toronto, Ontario, M8V 2B8.

While many of us would like to indulge in sweets frequently, we often deny ourselves because of the notion that sweets are unhealthy. Indeed, many sweets are unhealthy — but they don't have to be.

Desserts made with rice are an excellent way of satisfying your sweet tooth, while at the same time providing your body with sound nutrition. In addition, rice desserts contain less sugar and are easier to prepare than most other desserts.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

He'd only make an ash of himself

DEAR ABBY: My husband has told me that he wants to be cremated. Then his last wish is to have his ashes scattered over the local country club where he was turned down for membership three times. (He never did make it, so he joined another club.)

I told him I thought he was foolish to want his ashes scattered over a club that wouldn't accept him as a member, but he insists that this is the way he wants it and nobody is going to talk him out of it.

What do you think of his idea?

BETTER HALF

DEAR HALF: Permission is required to scatter one's ashes on private property, so tell your persistent husband that he probably won't have any better luck crashing that club after he makes an ash of himself than before.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the eight-year-old girl who wanted a bra even though she didn't have anything to put in it reminded me of the following anecdote:

I was shopping in a large department store with my 12-year-old daughter and my 76-year-old grandmother whom we call Bubby.

My daughter dragged me over to look at some bras, although she didn't need one yet.

Bubby wanted to know what we were looking at, so my daughter told her she wanted a training bra.

Bubby asked, "What are you training your breasts to do?"

READER

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will be going on our vacation soon. After much persuasion, we agreed to let our two sons, 17 and 19, stay home and "bach it."

We just learned they're planning to invite about 10 couples to a party at our house while we're gone.

We firmly told them that they could have the party only if an aunt and uncle chaperoned it. The boys didn't like that idea, and suggested instead that a newly-married couple of their acquaintance be the chaperones. (This couple is about the age of our elder son.) My husband promptly vetoed that suggestion. We then gave the boys a choice of postponing the party until we return, have the party before we go, or having the aunt and uncle chaperone it. Well, their noses have been out of joint ever since.

Abby, my husband and I have looked forward to a well-earned vacation. We would not feel at ease unless we were reasonably certain that everything was all right at home. Do you think we are being fair in our demands?

MOM AND POP

DEAR M AND P: Yes. And hooray for you and for all other parents who insist on having a clean-cut understanding of what their children may and may not do in their absence.

Elderly have better chance

YOUR HEALTH

by L. L. Coleman, MD

Is there any truth to the idea that elderly people can withstand and survive a coronary heart attack better than young people can?— Mr. I.R.

DEAR MR. R.:

It is strange, but true apparently, that people past the age of 60 seem to be able to survive an attack of coronary thrombosis better than can a person of 35 or 40. Of course, this is assuming the attacks are of the same severity.

Many explanations have been given for this observation. Some of the reasons suggested are valid; others are purely speculative.

The arteries that bring blood to the heart muscle itself are the coronary arteries, so named because their disposition resembles a crown, or "corona." It is believed by some that as one gets older tiny additional arteries sprout from the main blood vessels and bring additional blood and oxygen to the heart. This is known as "collateral circulation."

In the young, this fine network of additional blood vessels has had little or no tine to develop. The result is that when a large coronary artery is closed by a clot, or "thrombus," the damage that it does in the young is particularly severe.

In the elderly, this type of compensatory circulation may have been developing for a long time and keeps the heart muscle supplied with blood and oxygen, even when the main coronary artery has been slowly closing.

Modern techniques of study, with arteriograms and angiograms, now make it possible to determine the quality of the blood supply to the heart with exactitude. When symptoms are detected early, in people of all ages, the miracles of modern surgery and drugs have been remarkably effective in saving hearts that are considered too young to die.

* * *

I think I have a stomach ulcer. I'm afraid of X-rays. I wonder if there is any other way that I can find out if I have an ulcer. —Miss D.K.

DEAR MISS K.:

Fear of X-rays has no validity. The amount of radiation one is subjected to during studies of the stomach and the intestine is insignificant. Radiologists, or specialists in the field of X-rays, do not consider that exposure sufficient to affect the eventual life of anybody who is studied by this technique.

There is another method which is used in addition to X-rays. An instrument, the gastroscope, is painlessly inserted in the mouth. This then passes through the esophagus and into the stomach. Through this instrument, almost every recess in the stomach can be carefully inspected and studied. It is possible to take photographs of very minute area with the gastroscope. It is even possible to pick up small pieces of stomach tissue for anaylsis.

* * *

DEAR MISS R.:

Routine X-rays normally do not reveal the blood vessels unless there is marked arteriosclerosis in the arteries. There are now many remarkable techniques (angiograms) by which the blood vessels of the heart, lungs, brain and the general circulation can be clearly visualized by means of special dyes and X-rays.

Annoying Arabs low Tory priority

OTTAWA (CP) — Having shelved one proposal that angered the Arab world, the Progressive Conservative government has given low priority to legislation that would cause more annoyance.

Privy Council President Walter Baker said Tuesday that legislation to combat Arab boycott-of-Israel policies had no special priority. Last spring Conservatives were demanding fast and immediate action by the previous Liberal government on the matter.

Jewish groups, and such outspoken Liberals as Herb Gray and Robert Kaplan, have long demanded strong government action against Arab policies that say a company wishing to deal with their governments must do no business with Israel. In its worst form the boycott says companies must have no Jewish officers.

Baker, in charge of the new Conservative government's legislative program when Parliament meets Oct. 9, said it would not be appropriate to bring in an anti-boycott bill while former party leader Robert Stanfield is studying the Middle East for Prime Minister Clark.

Stanfield was asked last month to do this study when the Arab world erupted with anger and threats when Clark stuck to his May 22 election campaign pledge to move the Canadian embassy in Israel to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv. Clark said Stanfield probably would not report before next year, effectively shelving the matter.

Foreign Trade Minister Michael Wilson said in an interview Tuesday that guides designed by the previous Liberal government to combat the boycott effects in Canada are working well for the time being. Those guides have been criticized by Jewish groups and others as being too weak.

Ontario has outlawed compliance with such boycotts and protesters want the federal government to do the same thing. Former industry minister Jack Horner once said the Ontario legislation harms Canada's international trade.

Last spring the Liberal government proposed legislation to strengthen its policy of denying government assistance to companies complying with the boycott. The legislation said companies could be fined if they did not report boycott demands to the federal government.

Clark and his Conservatives said the legislation was not strong enough but were unsuccessful in attempts to have the bill strengthened.

No breach in security

OTTAWA (CP) — An investigation by the RCMP has found there was no breach of security involved in the discovery of a former cabinet minister's confidential papers in a local dump.

A spokesman for Solicitor-General Allan Lawrence said the matter will be dropped.

Former immigration minister Bud Cullen asked for the RCMP investigation after he and his special assistant, Nicole Chenier, found several secret government documents and some personal papers belonging to Ms. Chenier in a dump a few days after the May 22 federal election.

Cleaners had accidentally thrown out some boxes from Cullen's office after the Liberal government was defeated. Police did not find evidence of theft or sabotage.

Manitoba March: melody of exodus

WINNIPEG (UPC) — The Manitoba March isn't the latest disco step — it's the exodus of residents to other parts of the country reported by Statistics Canada and confirmed by the moving industry.

A recent Statistics Canada report indicates that in the year ended April 1, 1979, the population of Manitoba declined by 1,800 people.

In terms of migration — ignoring births and deaths — 10,430 more people moved out of Manitoba than moved in last year.

Les Hibbert of MacCosham Van Lines says three pounds of furniture were moved out of the province for every pound of furniture that arrived during the first months of this year — most of it going to Alberta.

Hibbert says Manitobans' penchant for moving elsewhere has been developing for five years, but the number of families making the trek to Alberta and B.C. has been intensifying in the past three or four months.

Tim Timmins of U-Rent-It has noticed a similar trend. "Of every 10 (rental units) that leave, only about two get driven back," he said.

The moving industry has been thriving, but housing in the province is in a slump: In the first three months of 1979, housing sales in Winnipeg were down by 25 per cent over the same period last year.

Apartment vacancies are up, too.

Stewart Clatworthy, acting director of the University of Winnipeg's Urban Studies department, attributes this to a slowdown in rural-to-urban migration and a stagnant population.

But J. Frank Johnston, minister of economic development, is more optimistic: "Manitoba is entering a period of economc expansion."

Pioneer sowed well to reap Lang

Farming Report

By Leo Quigley

United Press Canada

Otto Lang, the federal minister responsible for the Canada Wheat Board in the administration of former prime minister Pierre Trudeau, has taken on a new role that should challenge his many talents.

The former federal minister of transportation and justice, Rhodes Scholar and lawyer, is an executive vice-president of Canada's largest privately-owned grain company, Pioneer Grain — a subsidiary of James Richardson and Sons.

Lang and maverick Liberal James Richardson could prove to be an unbeatable combination — one the multinational grain companies and multinational co-ops such as the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool will have to watch closely.

One day he would be thumping the podium trying to convince farmers of the benefits of "user pay" or throwing down the gauntlet of free enterprise in the hotbed of prairie socialism with an open market plan for barley. The next he'd be accessible to anyone.

Lang's changing moods were inexplicable. It may have resulted from a lack of cabinet support or, more likely, it was just from the frustration in trying to reach a compromise in an uncompromising industry.

Lang's capacity to provoke hatred among prairie farmers — or loyalty verging on religious fervor — was the most outstanding trait of a veteran politician whose bid for re-election was foiled by his parish priest.

Off the farm, the public was seldom exposed to Lang's unfortunate political technique of stroking political allies with one hand while rubbing political enemies the wrong way with the other.

They remember Lang for "Nannygate" and for turning the forceps of justice on the pro-abortionists, but, compared to his impact on farmers and the grain trade in western Canada, these were minor excursions into exasperation.

While Lang was too intellectual to be likeable — he was respected, especially by his enemies. It is doubtful there is any other individual with a better understanding of Canada's troubled grain business than the new vice-president of Pioneer Grain.

Throughout his political career Lang was a pragmatist, an intellectual and a worker. Still, he was able to cling to his cabinet seat for 10 years.

In fact, the thought of Lang commanding the resources of James Richardson and Sons is awesome even to a casual observer.

To grain executives who wrote Pioneer Grain off as another private company destined for the auction, it must be terrifying.

Oilmen fear kidnap trend

EDMONTON (CP) — Kidnapping, abduction, extortion and ransom are causing increasing concern to oil company executives in Alberta.

Large companies such as Imperial Oil Ltd. have their own contingency plans, and many firms and individuals are turning to kidnap-ransom insurance so funds could be on hand quickly to answer a ransom demand.

"Kidnap-ransom insurance is fairly common now," says Bill Malcolm of Morris and MacKenzie Ltd., an insurance company.

"But one of the conditions of the policies is that their existence not be revealed except to a very select few people."

Glenn Rainbird, an Imperial spokesman, says his company has an executive protection plan as executives could become the target for terrorists.

Imperial's security co-ordinator, Peter Rowell, says it would only help potential kidnappers if details of the protection plan were released.

"We prefer to keep them guessing," Rowell said.

Paul Colins, manager of the Edmonton branch of Pinkerton's of Canada, says Albertans will have to rethink their ideas about the threat of terrorism.

"We try to make them aware of what is happening in Europe and what could happen here."

Cash in those rhinestones, cowboy, boots are going up in price!

CALGARY (CP) — Cowboys don't get buried in their boots anymore.

But wearing them is still a year-round Alberta tradition for bus drivers, businessmen, students and cowboys — rodeo, rhinestone or drugstore.

The best way to guarantee the comfort of new boots is to "get a good fit in a top quality boot," says Norm Bauman, manager of McKenzie Leathers — an Alberta wholesale distrbutor of cowboy boots for 25 years.

"Fifty per cent of the cowboy boots today are bought by drugstore cowboys, even though the distinctive western boot's design evolved to serve practical ranch purposes," says Bauman.

He estimates that 80 per cent of the boots are sold to men, but says "the lady who rides buys exactly the same boot.

"The only difference is in size and when we buy a style it is usually for both men and women in matched pairs."

"Those prices are likely to get higher still. Leather is going up in price at a fantastic rate," says Bauman. "It started six months ago and has been climbing steadily since."

He says that "the only way to make a good boot is to line it with leather."

Synthetic linings are inferior, he says, as they tend to deteriorate faster from a combination of hard wear and perspiration.

Tarmac cements border relations

PINEY, Man. (CP) — A unique occasion in aviation history will be marked July 28 when Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon and Minnesota Governor Al Quie shake hands across the international border.

On that day, the two men will officially open the only airstrip in the world running between two countries.

The idea was born seven years ago when the state government decided the airport runway at Pinecreek, Minn., had to be extended to 1,000 metres for safe night flying.

Calgary U weighs optometry school

CALGARY (CP) — The University of Calgary will seriously consider setting up a school of optometry, university President Norman Wagner said.

The Canadian Association of Optometrists decided at its convention in Edmonton this week to keep pushing for a new school at Calgary. Currently, only the Universities of Montreal and Waterloo train optometrists in Canada.

Weather balloons move to Gimli

GIMLI, Man. (CP) — The National Research Council (NRC) says it's launching five weather balloons this summer from this southern Manitoba town.

This is the first year the NRC has launched the balloons from Manitoba, although it's been flying them in Saskatchewan for years.

Prisoner class action dismissed

EDMONTON (CP) — An Alberta Court of Queen's Bench judge has dismissed a precedent-setting class action lawsuit by a group of prisoners at Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution.

Mr. Justice S. V. Legg accepted government lawyer Camilla Witt's argument that joint legal action by two prisoners suing for themselves and 14 other unnamed prisoners made a defence impossible.

Paul Cole and Andrew Morrison filed a statement of claim last month alleging that after a minor riot in the prison's D block May 11 they and other prisoners were deprived of proper food, exercise, mattresses and basic rights and privileges.

Boom town news partly a thud

FORT McMURRAY (CP) — Residents of this northern Alberta town have mixed feelings over the construction of a new boom town to handle the influx of workers expected if the $4.9-billion Alsands project gets approval.

Fort McMurray is well prepared for another influx of people, Ted Mason, the town's board chairman, said. However, there is a segment of the population that is wearying of boom-town conditions.

Edmonton Pan-Am Games bid urged

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton should start preparing its bid now for the 1987 Pan American Games, Ald. Ron Hayter says in a report to Mayor Cec Purves and city council. But Hayter warns that the city has no chance of sponsoring the Pan Am Games if it is awarded the World Student Games for 1983.

Only in Davidson

SASKATOON (CP) — Rationing of water has been reported from a few towns in this central region of Saskatchewan, but only in Davidson have citizens been reported trying to cheat.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

Consider this deal played in a team of four match. The contract at both tables was three spades, but at one table the contract was made, while at the other table declarer went down one.

At the first table, West led the K-Q-A of hearts and continued with another heart. Declarer ruffed with dummy's king, played a low trump to his queen, and now led the five of clubs.

Had West gone up with the ace of clubs, South would have made the contract very easily by scoring his five trump tricks, the heart ruff in dummy, two club tricks and the ace of diamonds. But West played the nine of clubs on South's five and dummy's queen won the trick.

Declarer then led five rounds of trumps, reducing his holding to the Q-8 of diamonds and king of clubs. West's holding at this point was the K-J of diamonds and ace of clubs, and dummy had the A-7 of diamonds and six of clubs. South now exited with the king of clubs and thus endplayed West to make the contract.

At the second table, the play started the same way when West also led the K-Q-A of hearts. But here the play varied very dramatically when East realized that his partner might eventually get endplayed if left to his own devices. Accordingly, at trick three, East ruffed his partner's ace of hearts! He then returned a diamond.

No truer arrow was ever shot! Declarer now had to go down one as a result of East's brilliant defensive play. It is not often that a defender with a hand as awful as East's has the opportunity to make a spectacular play, but obviously East was not just sitting there with his mind elsewhere.

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Ron Atkey says the Canadian response to the Indochinese refugee situation "can only be described as phenomenal."

He says the response of private groups and governments has been overwhelming, indicating the new federal program will succeed.

Atkey made the statement to reporters and in a news letter Tuesday as he released figures showing that 5,369 Indochinese have entered the country this year and to the end of last week private groups have undertaken to sponsor the resettlement of 2,900 refugees.

Atkey and External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald announced a refugee program last week which they said should allow 50,000 Indochinese refugees to enter Canada by the end of 1980.

They said refugee movement will increase to 3,000 a month from 1,000. The government would live up to an earlier pledge of bringing in 8,000 refugees under its sponsorship this year. In addition this year and next it would sponsor one refugee for every refugee sponsored by individuals or private groups.

Under the formula the government already is committed to doubling the 2,900 private sponsorships on record.

Atkey told reporters that the private response is positive and "we are quite excited by it."

His news letter said: "The response to the plight of these people and the immediate positive action taken by provincial and municipal governments, church groups, service organizations and individual citizens, shows the depth of Canadian understanding of the problems of these thousands of men and women."

The news letter says 16 major church and other groups have made sponsorship arrangements with the federal employment and immigration commission.

It noted that the Canadian Jewish Congress will sponsor 1,000 refugees in Toronto, Montreal and elsewhere; there had various kinds of response by civic and private groups in Toronto, Ottawa, Calgary and Vancouver and the community of Vegreville, Alta., will sponsor 25 refugees.

"The response we have encountered has been massive. Canadians from all across the country have shown they are totally committed to getting this job done."

The government tells refugees they must repay their air fare to the government through no-interest, long-term loans. The refugees will pay no more than $750 a seat.

The fund will make up the difference between the $750 and the $800 a seat the government often has to pay. The government has made about 16,000 air reservations for refugees this year.

OTTAWA (CP) — Dick Crouter, 48, a veteran of West Coast fisheries management, has been appointed director-general of fisheries in the Maritimes, the fisheries department announced Tuesday.

He replaces Doug Johnson who was appointed assistant deputy fisheries minister in charge of Pacific and inland fisheries.

A year ago, Crouter was at the centre of a bitter controversy over the operation of the fisheries department's Pacific region. He charged that senior bureaucrats were trying to run the branch from Ottawa.

He and several veteran coworkers charged that Dr. Glen Green, then Pacific director-general, was fired because he resisted domination from Ottawa.

It now is widely considered that foreign ownership and dwindling stocks have pushed the B.C. fishery into a crisis state that Ottawa refuses to recognize.

Clark set for Africa tour

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark leaves this week for an African tour and the Commonwealth conference feeling the time has not yet come to recognize Zimbabwe-Rhodesia or end international sanctions against it.

The subject of the former British colony will crop up frequently as Clark visits three countries and attends the eight-day heads-of-government meeting in Lusaka, Zambia.

Officials said Tuesday the government view is that the white-approved constitution of Zimbabwe-Rhodesia does not yet provide majority rule by blacks.

They said that while recent elections that brought Bishop Abel Muzorewa to power showed progress toward democracy, the constitution is "quite generous in its treatment of the white minority."

Meanwhile, the Canadian Council for International Co-operation, the co-ordinating agency for many private groups aiding African countries, called on the government to withhold recognition of the new regime.

Clark will spend two weeks in Africa, making the first official visit by any Canadian prime minister. There are no plans for him to meet any of the guerrilla leaders who are seeking to overthrow the Zimbabwe-Rhodesian regime, officials said.

Officials described the Canadian position in briefing reporters on the trip to Cameroon in West Africa and Zambia, Tanzania and Kenya in East Africa.

He leaves Friday and returns Aug. 12 after a visit to Canadian troops in West Germany.

He will be making his first state visits since coming to office May 22. He visted Tokyo recently with six other western leaders for an economic summit but that was not a state visit.

Clark will spend Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Cameroon, a bilingual country that long has had close relations with Canada. During his stay he will attend mass said by Emile Cardinal Leger, former Roman Catholic archbishop of Montreal who runs a leper colony in Cameroon. The prime minister also will hold private conversations with the cardinal about conditions in Africa.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Richard C. Malone, former publisher of Winnipeg Free Press, pleaded not guilty to a total of 10 charges at the opening Tuesday of a preliminary inquiry.

Malone, 38, one of 12 men who were charged this year with homosexual-related offences involving juvenile males, elected to be tried by a county court judge on all the charges.

Malone, who has been in custody since he was arrested at his home May 17, was charged Feb. 22 with three counts of buggery and three counts of gross indecency. A further count of gross indecency was laid May 7 in Flin Flon, Man.

Starting a hedge with cuttings

GARDENING

Hilda Beastall

The commonly seen perennial edging plants known to nurserymen as the three A's are useful to the home gardener on a small garden budget. They can be increased by cuttings taken now and will be ready to plant into new flowering places by early next spring.

The three A's are yellow alyssum, purple aubrieta, white arabis. A combination of any two of these three plants makes a colorful spring border, with a neat smart appearance for the rest of the year.

For balcony and patio tubs, an edging of these easily propagated plants can make the frame for more sophisticated permanent shrubs suited to tub growing.

The method of increasing alyssum, aubrieta and arabis by taking cuttings is really simple. You need a two or three-inch deep wood box or flat if you are wanting a total of 50 or 60 plants. An egg carton will do if a dozen is your number as a balcony gardener. Put two cuttings into each section (of the same kind); if both root, so much the better, but you have insurance if one fails.

You may have dwarf creeping phlox, white perennial Candytuft, or violas, all with similar uses. the method of taking cuttings is essentially the same as for the three A's.

Look closely at the plants you wish to increase. You will notice that after clipping closely as soon as flowering ceased in spring, new shoots were made all over the plants soon producing a pleasant lively effect with a larger spread.

Take a number of new shoots off with secateurs to avoid pulling at the plants. Allow a margin for failures if this is a new venture for you. Cuttings should be two to three inches long.

Gently remove leaves from bottom inch of stem; insert this inch of stem into a light mixture of sand and compost in the wood flat or in the egg carton. Press firmly into place and dampen well with water.

Each kind of plant should be labelled unless you are familiar with the foliage of each and will be able to recognize them all by spring next year. For added interest put the date of taking the cuttings on the labels, and how many of each kind so you can estimate the average of "takes". It's quite a boost to get 100 per cent success.

On a balcony, the cutting box may be placed in a sheltered corner away from full sun. In the garden, choose dappled light and shade of a tree or shrub. Be sure the soil never becomes either dry or soggy. In periods of continuous low humidity a small box of cuttings can be slipped into a plastic bag to maintain humidity and prevent wilting, but don't allow the hot sun to shine on the plastic.

By mid-August or a little after, the cuttings should have young roots and be ready for a shift to either small cans with drainage or to the edging of tubs if on a balcony or patio. With these movable containers be sure they get plenty of strong light but not the scorching sun heat that has been around lately. If grown for garden bed edgings or for rock retaining walls, transplant to a larger shallow box or flat containing compost soil with a little sand. Give a spacing of two inches between the little rooted plants.

In a sheltered garden (or balcony or patio) the plants may be put into permanent growing places by mid-September. In gardens more exposed to winter weather keep them in the flat with the slight protection of a coldframe.

Each cutting will have a few flowers the first spring and will gradually spread into a tight mat a foot or more across if clipped each year as soon as flowering ceases, usually by late May. Allow space when planting; the first year of growth will surprise you if the plants are kept damp. No deep roots here, just a fine mat of near-surface roots which will die out quickly if watering is neglected during the first summer. But as usual in gardening, the returns far outweigh the work involved.

Interest rates at peak, bank executive predicts

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Interest rates have hit their peak and the next move almost certainly will be downward, the Royal Bank's vice chairman for western Canada said in Victoria today.

"The latest increase by the Bank of Canada was unfortunate but necessary," H.E. Wyatt of Calgary said in an interview.

"We had expected one more increase before rates start to decline. That was the increase. Now we expect rates will drop before the end of the year."

He also addressed a noon meeting of Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce. He is the chairman-elect of the Canadian Chamber.

On Sunday the Bank of Canada raised its rate half a point, boosting bank prime rates to 12.5 per cent from 12 per cent.

On Tuesday many banks announced a half a point increase in mortgage rates to the range of 11.75 to 12 per cent.

"These increases will slow the economy for awhile. But the economy is basically strong, especially in western Canada. In fact, the outlook for the west is very good," Wyatt said.

As a result, he said, Vancouver and Calgary are gaining on Montreal in terms of financial importance.

"Toronto will remain number one in this century but Montreal is in decline," he said.

"The balance is shifting west."

He said it is difficult to estimate whether Calgary has overtaken Vancouver in importance but the Alberta city has a bit more momentum, growing by 1,500 persons a month.

"Calgary is growing so quickly it is almost frightening. We are concerned that some day the bubble may burst."

But there is a great underlying strength in the western economy. A great surge in pipeline contruction can be expected.

In addition to the natural gas pipeline from Alaska through B.C. to Edmonton, there is the prospect of one or more oil pipelines to tap Arctic oil.

Oil could be moving out of the Canadian Arctic by 1985, he said.

Other good news, he said, would be the strengthening of the Canadian dollar as foreign investment flows north from the U.S.

Now in the range of 85-86, the dollar should hit 87 by year's end and move into the 90s next year. Some forecasts put the dollar up to 95 cents.

But this would be a two-edged sword, he warned.

It would have a negative impact on tourism and would reduce Canada's competitive edge in world markets.

He elaborated on this theme in a noon speech to the chamber at The Empress.

He said Canada's productively has declined over the years compared to its major competitors.

To counter this, Canada has had the advantage of a low-priced dollar but this won't last indefinitely.

The value of the dollar will rise as pipeline construction gets under way.

Canadians generally are quite apathetic to the dangers of lost markets, he said.

"We seem to be lacking that vital spirit — that spark — the mental attitude needed to ignite our enthusiasm and lift us out of our slump.

"Canada has an unfortunate reputation for frequent work stoppages and costly wage settlements, and a record of absenteeism that is abysmal. It's a reputation that came easily. We were practising the art of considered neglect.

"We have to get off our complacent butts and realize that the only solution is hard work, tempered with realism and restraint. The days of apathy must end: And, unless they do, we will miss the golden opportunity that awaits us."

He proposed that Canada develop an economic strategy to sort out the conflicting needs of exporters and Canadian manufacturers.

The only two major industrial nations without a national economic plan are Canada and the United Kingdom and Wyatt said Canada soon could be alone.

"Hopefully we could regain the fervor, and the imagination we used during the Second World War. In a short time, we marshalled all the resources of our country, not only to produce and train our military personnel, but to provide the tools of war — the munitions, planes, carriers and the ships. We did it before and we did it well. Surely we can do it again.

"Among our competitors, Japan and West Germany have recorded rapid rates of productivity growth, while the U.S. has been slowing sharply since the mid 1960s mainly because of overregulation. It's a trap that we must avoid."

Smiling Bundy guilty

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Theodore Bundy, described as a quiet student who never forgot Mother's Day, waved to courtroom spectators Tuesday after a jury found him guilty of murdering two women and attempting to kill three others at Florida State University.

Bundy's mother slumped backward and his lawyer paled at the verdicts but Bundy waved and smiled, and later told a friend he was simply perplexed.

Prosecutors said they will ask for the death penalty. The same 12-member jury that convicted the 32-year-old Tacoma, Wash., resident will remain sequestered to hear arguments on sentencing Saturday and Monday.

The jury deliberated six hours to end the 4½-week trial that saw Bundy often act as his own lawyer and argue bitterly with his legal advisers. One lawyer resigned from the case after the defence presentation was under way.

Bundy was found guilty of first-degree murder in the deaths of Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, both of St. Petersburg, Fla.

They were beaten with a crude oak club as they slept in the Chi Omega sorority on Jan. 15, 1978. Both were garroted with pantyhose.

Bundy also was convicted of attempting to murder Kathy Kleiner DeShields, 20, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Karen Chandler, 21, of Marietta, Ga., both Chi Omega members, and Cheryl Thomas, 22, a student from Richmond, Va., who was attacked in her apartment.

Concorde still flying

PARIS (AFP) — Air France said today it has no knowledge of any plans to ground its Concorde supersonic airliners.

Officials of the French airline were responding to reports that the grounding of the planes is envisaged to save fuel.

The business daily Les Echos reported that government circles are wondering whether France can continue flying the Concorde in view of high oil rates.

It also said that French taxpayers paid 4,800 francs (about $2,600) to make up the difference between the fare and the cost of each seat in the plane.

A passenger flying Concorde from Paris to New York needed four times the fuel he would require on a Boeing 747, the paper also stated.

Air France president Pierre Girauded already has said the company is reviewing the way the Concorde is operated, following the latest oil-price rises.

Woodlots encouraged

The B.C. forest ministry has produced a white paper on policies and procedures relating to woodlot licences, Hugh Bancroft, director of timber management, said Monday.

Fish hawk crashes, starts fire

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — A hawk has been blamed for starting a brush fire in northern Nova Scotia.

Answer charge of price-fix, OPEC urged

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. government Tuesday urged the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to appear in an American court and defend its interests against charges of illegal price fixing brought by a labor union.

The 13-country group of oil producers has refused, so far, to acknowledge the suit, contending that U.S. courts lack jurisdiction.

OPEC spokesmen in the United States have been suggesting that if the suit is pressed, OPEC members may resort to economic retaliation, perhaps withdrawing the many billions of dollars in assets they have in the country.

A federal judge, Andrew Hauk, has set Aug. 20 for a hearing of the case in Los Angeles.

The U.S. justice department said Tuesday the government is not a party in the case and therefore will not give its views for the present.

But it urged OPEC not to shrug off the action.

A statement issued by the justice department said:

"The United States urges the defendants in this litigation to take full advantage of the opportunities provided by the United States legal system by appearing and defending their interests."

The justice department will continue to monitor the proceedings, added Terrence Adamson, a spokesman for Attorney-General Griffin Bell.

The suit, filed by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, alleged that OPEC violates U.S. anti-trust laws by fixing the price of its crude oil.

The union asked monetary damages and a court injunction to stop OPEC from passing on price increases to U.S. consumers.

There was also concern that the OPEC member countries might pull out billions of dollars in assets now resting in U.S. securities and U.S. banks as protection against their being seized by a court.

Khalid al-Mansour, a California lawyer who said he is in contact with lawyers representing the OPEC countries, said in Washington last month that OPEC members were preparing all necessary procedures to withdraw funds from the United States to prevent such seizure.

Iran refineries easy targets

By WILLIAM CLAIBORNE
Washington Post

ABADAN, Iran — The warring factions that have turned Khuzestan province into a revolutionary battleground have left Iran's major oil facilities easy targets for saboteurs.

Despite three successful sabotage attempts on pipelines in this region during the past two weeks, only skeleton security forces guard the facilities, which include the world's largest oil refinery at Abadan.

The few Iranian troops in the area are stretched thin, guarding the hostile Iraqi border nearby and attempting to keep rebellious Iranian Arabs under control.

Iran's naval chief, Rear Adm. Ahmad Madani, also governor of Khuzestan, said in an interview with the official Iranian radio Tuesday, that the problems in Khuzestan have left him with little time for ruming the navy.

In the harshest crackdown so far against the mounting sabotage at the oil facilities, two men identified only as "counterrevolutionaries" were executed Tuesday for placing bombs that blew up a section of the major pipeline serving Abadan refinery two weeks ago.

Surrounded by a flimsy corregated steel fence, the sprawling refinery sits incongruously in the center of this city of 400,000 persons, more than half of them ethnic Arabs whose separatist feelings and resentment against the revolutionary provisional government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini grows daily.

Visible just 400 yards across the Shatt Arab River is the shoreline of historically hostile Iraq, source of many of the weapons being smuggled into Iran almost nightly.

Yet the watchtowers that dot strategic corners of the zig-zag fence are empty. At the main gate, three National Iranian Oil Co. (NIOC) guards stop an entering vehicle and give three Western newsmen and their escort a cursory examination, appearing more concerned with adherence to the no-smoking regulations than the possibility of sabotage.

The towering distilleries and heating devices that hiss around the clock to provide the world with 600,000 barrels of refined oil products a day run almost by themselves. Trying to find an armed guard inside the rambling complex proved fruitless. Similarly, the neat rows of pipeline that snake out of the oil fields near Ahwaz, 80 miles north of here, and wind southwest across the desert toward the persian Gulf look uncomfortably exposed.

In one recent attack on the oil facilities, saboteurs simply fired a rifle into a pipe, causing a fire and explosion that disrupted operations at the refinery. At one point, production at the NIOC refinery reportedly was down to 60,000 barrels a day.

Officials at NIOC and Khuzestan Province headquarters in Ahwaz insist that, despite the apparent lack of security, the refinery, the pipelines and the oil wells are adequately protected, even with the political turmoil, terrorist attacks in the region and gun battles between Arab militants and the "Pasdaran," Khomeini's revolutionary guards.

Conceding that "a small explosion could turn this place into powder and one small bullet could make a terrible explosion," an NIOC official said the revolutionary guards patrol at night, when the danger of sabotage is greatest.

Italians scramble for gas

ROME (AFP) — A gasoline and diesel scramble has developed in Italy where tens of thousands of filling stations have put up the "Niente Benzina" sign.

Carter speaks tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter speaks to millions of Americans tonight in a rare prime-time broadcast news conference after accusing the news media of exaggerating the extent of his administration shake-up.

On Tuesday, Carter and his aides said that both U.S. and foreign reporters have have been guilty of exaggerating the power of the new inner circle, especially the role of White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan.

Synanon pair to stand trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sufficient evidence exists for two Synanon members to stand trial on charges they conspired to murder attorney Paul Morantz with a rattlesnake, a Municipal Court judge ruled Tuesday.

Judge Brian D. Crahan, following a month-long, closed-door preliminary hearing, ordered Lance Kenton, 21, and Joseph Musico, 29, to appear Aug. 8 for arraignment in Superior Court.

Legal proceedings against Synanon founder Charles Dederich have been stalled, reportedly because Dederich's attorneys are attempting to disqualify the judge from the case.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Firemen and tugs fought flames on the blazing supertanker Atlantic Empress today after a fifth tank ruptured and exploded.

But Michael Garnett, an oil pollution expert for a consortium of tanker owners, said the oil spill is either burning or dispersing and poses no threat to Caribbean beaches.

The tanker, last reported under tow about 160 kilometres northeast of Tobago and 130 kilometres southeast of Barbados, already has lost one tenth of its 70-million-gallon cargo.

The Atlantic Empress collided Thursday night with the supertanker Aegean Captain about 32 kilometres off Tobago. Both ships caught fire, 27 crewmen are missing and presumed dead and 52 others survived.

Four of the Atlantic Empress's 18 tanks were ruptured in the collision and a fifth tank blew open early Tuesday. Five firemen boarded the ship and began hosing down the blaze amidships with foam and chemically treated light water.

Two tugs also hosed down the fire while a third sprayed foam over blazing oil in the water which has been reigniting the blaze on the tanker.

The Aegean Captain has been towed to about 16 kilometres off the northwestern tip of Trinidad.

Trinidad and Tobago authorities now must decide whether to permit the Aegean Captain into the Bay of Paria, between Trinidad and Venezuela, where small boats can unload it in calm waters.

Navy scoops 19 refugees

United Press International

The U.S. Navy today rescued its first Vietnamese refugees under President Carter's new campaign to save the boat people.

A Navy spokesman said the 7th Fleet oiler Wabash picked up 19 Vietnamese in an open boat Tuesday about 100 miles west of the Philippines.

It was the first group to be rescued since President Carter ordered the Navy to be "particularly alert for refugees and to render all possible assistance to vessels in distress." U.S.-owned ships had previously picked up about 1,000 Vietnamese.

In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, 261 Vietnamese refugees, including a new-born baby, left a West German cargo ship today on their way to a new life in West Germany. They had been rescued from their sinking [illegible]

Two Italian warships and a support vessel left Singapore for the South China Sea in a search and rescue mission. Adm. Sergio Agostinelli said his vessels would provide medical aid and food but would pick up refugees only if necessary to save their lives.

The stepped-up rescue effort by Western nations followed their pledges at the UN refugee conference in Geneva last week to take more in than 260,000 Indochinese refugees for resettlement.

The U.S. Navy spokesman in Manila declined to say how many American ships were in the South China Sea, citing Navy policy not to disclose its ship movements.

Low lights, fancy food, and now MLAs get wine

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

One more comfort was added Tuesday to the already subsidized MLAs' dining room in the Legislative Buildings — B.C. wine.

The $50,000 annual subsidy allows chef Felice and his staff to prepare such full course delights as Tuesday's special: French onion soup au gratin, filet of beef, cordon rouge (a filet stuffed with pate foie gras encased in prosciutto ham served atop puff pastry), braised lettuce, a strawberry delight and coffee all for $5.25.

But the wine is no special deal. So far only one red and one white are available by either the large or small glass.

And both are medium sweet. This reporter, who investigated the inauguration of the new dining service (candle light and waitresses in long gowns accompanied the new wine service), found his "large" glass to contain about four ounces of lukewarm medium sweet white B.C. wine.

Trying not to be a snob, he drank it anyway, but commented afterwards that it just didn't go with the fruit and cheese plate ($1.50) that he had for dinner.

The dining room is hoping to go to different varieties of wine next year, and hopes to serve bottled wine as well.

The wine service has been a long time coming. During the 20-year reign of teetotalling W.A.C. Bennett there wasn't much chance MLAs would be able to imbibe alchohol in the dining room.

And since that time getting a liquor licence has presented some difficulty.

Last year a licence was granted but no wine was ever served.

Some members had expressed concern there might be political repercussions from the public.

Beef price expected to ease

Local retailers estimate prices will drop between seven and 12 cents a pound due to a drop of six cents in the wholesale price.

The drop is not expected to last and prices should be up again by the end of August.

The wholesale drop is due to the seasonal beef kill. There is still a general shortage of beef.

Late bills cost B.C. $410,000 per month

The provincial forests ministry is three to four months behind in billing for $50 million in stumpage fees and the delay is costing taxpayers $410,000 a month in interest, officials say.

Billings are also behind for the attorney-general's ministry, particularly from the land registry branch, and the energy, mines and petroleum resources ministry for a total in lost interest revenue of between $750,000 and $1 million.

The forestry officials pointed out, however, that the situation has improved from what it was a year ago.

"At this time last year we were $86 million behind," one official said.

Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Tuesday he was aware of the problems within his ministry and the B.C. Systems Corporation, the government's computer division.

"Frankly I don't think we are quite as far behind as you are suggesting," he said. "But we are behind in our billing. It's a constant problem and one we are working hard to rectify."

Waterland said neither his ministry nor the systems corporation are to blame.

"We are lacking computer terminals in the field and until they are in place to file data directly into the system, we are always going to be behind," he said.

Late billings and loss of interest revenue was disclosed by Auditor-General Erma Morrison in her report to the legislature earlier this year.

At that time she suggested a tightening up of procedures which had resulted in the loss to the treasury of $86 million for three months.

FLYING GLASS shot all around him but Lorne Armstrong of Peterborough didn't get a scratch Tuesday when a Winnipeg family's trailer blew up at the KOA campground on Mt. Newton Crossroad. Armstrong shows where he was standing when the trailer, owned by Gilbert Blais of Winnipeg, split asunder in a blast believed caused by a propane leak. Blais is in fair condition in the burns unit at Victoria General Hospital and his wife and son are in good condition. See story on page 13. (Paul Minvielle photo)

Hundreds enter race

Deadline for entering the event is noon Thursday. Entry forms will be accepted at the Times or at the participating stores listed below until that time. Mailing deadline has passed.

Victoria office worker Bev Sorenson, who won a trophy in the race five years ago, passes along these tips for the first-timers in Sunday's event:

"My partner (provincial government employee Helen Chamberlain) and I discovered you go a lot faster if you don't drag anything in the water. We put our feet up on the tube. It's more comfortable to dangle your feet in the water but the resistance means you have to paddle harder.

"Also sit high enough so your rear-end is out of the water or that can really slow you down.

There is a race-eve dance at 8 p.m. Saturday night at Victoria Curling Rink. The admission of $5 a couple, couples only, goes to amateur sports. There are prizes for costumes and dance competitions.

Downtown - Ray's Sports Centre, 1692 Douglas.

Oak Bay - Oak Bay Sporting Goods, 2077 Oak Bay.

Gorge - Premier Sports & Cycle, 2965 Tillicum.

Colwood, Langford - Alexander's Sporting Goods, 2244 Sooke.

66% want controls, poll shows

The poll, taken last month in a sample of 2,095 adults, showed that 66 per cent of the respondents were in favor of price controls, with 26 per cent against and eight per cent unsure, while 51 per cent were for wage controls, with 39 per cent against and 10 per cent unsure.

The results were also analysed according to region, age, sex, occupation of the head of household, language, community size, education and income.

A majority in each subgroup approved of controls on prices — the maximum and minimum showing 75 per cent in the Atlantic provinces and 57 per cent in the professional or executive category.

The sub-group results on wage controls showed a maximum of 66 per cent in the Atlantic provinces in favor, down to 46 per cent among Canadians in their thirties and forties.

There were two questions asked in the survey: "Would you favor the imposition of price controls by the federal government?" and "Would you favor the imposition of wage controls by the federal government?"

Hydro report 'does exist'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The author of a report that Environment Minister Rafe Mair says doesn't exist said Tuesday the provincial government paid about $8,000 for a document which strongly questions the need for a British Columbia Hydro line to service Vancouver Island.

Economist Dr. Marvin Shaffer said he was retained for about a month at a daily rate of $245 to look at the electrical load growth on Vancouver Island.

He also reviewed alternative sources of energy, electrical pricing and the need for the twin 500,000-kilovolt transmission lines across the Sechelt Peninsula 50 kilometres northwest of Vancouver to Vancouver Island.

The report "never saw the light of the day," Shaffer said.

Mair told a group of Sechelt Peninsula residents at Sakinaw Lake Monday that there was no Shaffer report.

"I have a note from Dennis O'Gorman that says ELUC (the inter-ministry Environment Land Use Committee) had in its midst a Dr. Marvin Shaffer who was one of a number of consultants who may have prepared the unsigned memorandum which I saw," Mair said.

"Hydro is determined the line is going to be built and chooses its own advisers," said Shaffer. "The government isn't going to release my report - I think they should but I can't tell them what to do with my work."

Mair said today in Victoria that the report should never have been commissioned because the government had already decided to allow Hydro to proceed with the power line.

He said the government did not commission it and will not pay for it.

"I think what I had better do is find the report," he said in an interview.

"I have asked for it and I haven't seen the damned thing. I accept the fact that Dr. Shaffer says he did a report and I know the secretariat retained Shaffer's services.

"But, whether or not there is a report I still don't know. I am not trying to play games. I have never seen it, never authorized it and haven't paid for it."

UN's army leaving Sinai

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — After six years of keeping a sometimes fragile peace the United Nations today began withdrawal of its 4,000-man army in the Sinai Peninsula.

There are 844 Canadian troops in the force providing basic logistic services along with Polish forces. But it will be a while before they are repatriated home.

A UN spokesman said it will take six to eight weeks to dismantle UNEF, with infantry forces going first.

But it will be much longer before all administrative functions are ended — seven months to one year.

In Ottawa, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said in an interview that because they are "cooks and suppliers" Canadians attached to the UNEF probably will remain in the Sinai longer than others.

But Canadians could be out within three months of the order to move — taking all their equipment with them, even the air conditioners that the troops put in at their own expense to make life more livable in the hot climate.

Canada has always had a logistical role in UNEF, providing such things as communications and transportation. The external spokesman noted that the logistical forces also serve other UN groups, such as that on the Golan Heights between Israel and Syria.

About 150 Canadians are on that force, which is not affected.

The move came amid efforts to sell Israel on a U.S.-backed proposal for a substitute observer force to oversee the Middle East peace settlement.

There was no immediate resolution to the dispute between the United States and Israel over the U.S. plan to station a few hundred members of the UN Truce Supervision Organization in the vast Sinai region, which Israel occupied during its 1973 war with Egypt.

In fact, rhetoric between the two long-time allies grew stronger.

Israeli officials claimed the United States was reneging on a commitment to enforce provisions of the Israel-Egypt treaty signed here last March.

Multi-million $$ Hollywood bilk

By JERRY COHEN
and ALAN MALTUN
Los Angeles Times

The victims were wealthy Los Angeles area businessmen with almost as much larceny in their hearts as the rip-off artists, police said.

For months, vice officers had known about the racket, which one officer estimated may have relieved the wealthy victims of millions of dollars. But the investigators had a problem: None of the victims would lodge an official complaint, for fear of publicity, reprisal, embarrassment or a combination of all three.

Until last week. And then only after a man lost $160,000 to the bunco artists. Plus his $50,000 Rolls-Royce.

That was the wedge investigators needed, and teams of officers made three separate simultaneous arrests Tuesday.

Another squad raided Montgomery's $1 million home, where they seized gambling paraphernalia, one of the raiders said. Montgomery does not live there. He was leasing the residence, and was in no way involved in the scam, police said.

But the occupant of the luxurious home was arrested when he slammed a door in raiders' faces as they sought to enter, police said.

Booked with interfering with officers was Tom Gilbert, 40, whom they said is a professional backgammon player, and a member of the bord of directors of Pips, a West Los Angeles backgammon club frequented by celebrities.

The three arrested on more serious charges — conspiracy and conspiracy to commit grand theft — were identified by officers as Attila DeAgh, 39, Jerry Mack Morris, 36, and Miehael Neuman, 35.

All three were taken into custody at 7:30 a.m. at their homes south of Los Angeles — DeAgh in Newport Beach, Morris in Buena Park and Neuman in South Laguna Beach.

Officers from the Los Angeles police department, the Los Angeles County sheriff's office, Newport Beach and the City of Orange participated in the arrests and Hollywood

Eco-reserves stifled by budget bind

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

B.C.'s ecological reserves program has come to a virtual standstill because of budget restrictions, the Times has learned.

Sources say that under the current budget the reserves department has received only enough funding to keep it alive — but not enough to actively seek out potential new eco-reserves or even manage established ones.

Eight years after the program was established it has yet to reach the five-year target of 100 reserves, as set out in the original legislation.

And many of the 93 areas now preserved are of questionable status because there is no money to ensure they are protected from encroachment by man.

With only about $10,000 left after Ecological Reserves Director Bristol Foster and his one assistant have been paid, the program doesn't have adequate funds available to hire researchers or field workers.

And half of that $10,000 has already been committed to a National Film Board project on ecological reserves.

Sources say that with only $5,000 left at his disposal Foster is unable to hire consultants to do inventory work or collect baseline data on B.C.'s reserves.

"Some of the ecological reserves on the list are merely paper reserves," said a government worker close to the program. "They're not being protected in the way they should.

"They have to be managed . . . there's no point in having a reserve on paper that is being destroyed in reality. "Work is piling up in the reserves office because they don't have enough people to handle it."

Bob Nixon, spokesman for the Sierra Club of Western Canada, said he is disappointed to hear the reserves program lacks funding.

"The government should honestly pursue its intentions. If it wants to get rid of that program it should do so quickly and painlessly rather than starving it to death," said Nixon.

He said it was ridiculous to have reserves established on paper only.

"Although we have them on the books we don't really have them unless they can be managed, protected and utilized for educational purposes.

"If they are on the books without management they are for all intents and purposes not there."

He said the government appeared to have a two-faced policy regarding ecological reserves.

"What they're saying is 'We believe in reserves, but look, you can do anything you want in an ecological reserve because we aren't going to ensure their preservation.' "

Foster was reluctant to discuss the situation, but did confirm that the program is short on staff and money.

Foster said one part-time employee had to be released this spring because of a lack of funds. That left him with only one assistant.

The two men are attempting to oversee the reserves program from their office in the Harbor Towers.

Foster agreed that under present staffing levels it is impossible to ensure the ecological reserves are properly protected or managed.

Foster said that over the years it has become increasingly difficult to establish new reserves.

He says that before a reserve can be designated it first must be approved by the forestry service, the fish and wildlife branch and other concerned agencies.

"I guess this government wants to bring decisions down to the grass roots, but et's inordinately inefficient," said Foster.

"We have 93 reserves now, but the Act (Ecological Reserves Act of B.C.) said we should have 100 by 1975. We've fallen behind largely due to the ever more complicated regional process."

Foster said that with a staff of five his program could get back on track but he sees no likelihood of hiring new people under the current budget restrictions.

The ecological reserves program was set up by the government because of the need to preserve unique and representative ecosystems for scientific and educational purposes.

The reserves are used as outdoor laboratories, benchmark areas with which to compare changes elsewhere, banks for protection of genetic diversity, and as outdoor classrooms for natural history education.

No hunting, fishing, camping, mining or logging is allowed in an ecological reserve.

The program has had many critics because it withdraws productive areas of the province from recreational or extractive use. But Foster points out that reserves now cover less than .1% of the province and will probably never include more than .5%.

In a letter to Foster last November the B.C. forest service research division acknowledged the need for reserves.

"In undeveloped parts of the province, the need is not immediate. However, in other areas, especially near centres of population or where there is productive accessible lowland forest, the need is pressing," stated the letter.

It went on to say that the Kitimat Valley is one regionwhere reserves are badly needed.

The letter said that examples of undisturbed, mature, climax forest are becoming hard to find and soon may be non-existent.

Without an ecological reserve as a benchmark, said the research letter, "management of the future forests of the Kitimat Valley, which includes some of the best forest land in northwestern B.C., will proceed in a partial vacuum."

Max Low

Oh, I can imagine you all nodding in agreement, lulled into a false sense of well being by the warm sun, blue skies and days of idleness on the beach. Well, that's all right for you.

But as for me, after making it unscathed through winter's freezing temperatures, I get pneumonia while you're all sunbathing. Then, the little topless sports car I've dreamed of owning since I was seven (and finally bought, new incidentally, just before Christmas) snaps its back axle and they have to send to England for a new one. That's a six-week wait, they say, so I'll get it back just in time to put the roof up before the snow comes. Ah, well.

I tell you, that's the way things have been going for me lately. If I had a water bed it would leak . . .

Now Parent Finders hate me.

They didn't say so but a couple of fairly strong letters that landed in my mail basket while I was away sick — from Robin Wallace, president of the Victoria Branch of Parent Finders, and national vice-president Clare Marcus — didn't exactly have affection bursting out of them.

But both women did make some good points, which I will share with you.

It was just over a month ago that a Times reader disagreed with the sentiments expressed in a story by Ms. Marcus and with the aims of Parent Finders. As I outlined in my column, that woman felt it would be better if adopted children left the past alone and that searches for natural parents reflected badly on the family that had done the adopting. All reunions were not happy affairs, the reader pointed out.

"Some reunions do not end in an exactly happy relationship but whatever the ending, we are satisfied at least with the knowledge we obtained," Mrs. Wallace said.

"We are not looking for an alternate family by searching for our origins and adoptive parents of those of us who have had a reunion realize this.

"Any person looking into the past is not going to find all roses and honey. They are going to find reality but no matter what they find it is still part of their lives. Children, natural or adopted, are put on this earth in trust of their parents, not as possessions, and no parent or government should have the right to keep knowledge about a child's heritage from them.

"I, like many in our group, have found my natural mother and it has been most satisfying as it is in over 85 per cent of cases," Mrs. Wallace pointed out. "My mother is so happy that I have found her. She cried for years over me and I am very glad that I could give her this happiness in her declining years.

"It has also made me examine my relationship with my adoptive family more thoroughly and I now feel a truer sense of closeness and belonging to them. Most people take their feelings for their family for granted and never realize how much they feel for them until a tragedy occurs. I am very lucky, for I am much loved."

In her letter, Ms. Marcus said that every adopted person, one way or another, has to reconcile himself to the fact of two sets of parents.

"The need to know, whether ever activated or not, is universal, according to Dr. E. Lipinski, president of the Canadian Psychiatric Association," she explained.

"Even with adults searching all over the continent, childless couples are lining up to adopt children," Ms. Marcus said. "They are aware that search may come up 25, 30 or more years down the road but that does not stop them from wishing to have the experience of parenthood by adoption on a franker basis."

Well, there you have it. Let it never be said that I don't give my critics equal time and may all the members of Parent Finders suddenly be blessed with the combined talents of Sherlock Holmes and Hercule Poirot.

And don't mind me. I'm not really feeling sorry for myself, just badly in need of a holiday. This is starting to sound like that hit song of a few years back Life Gets Tedious Don't It but, the way things have been going, when I do get round to taking that break, it will probably rain every day . . .

NIMPKISH PICKET: About 25 members of the Nimpkish Indian band from Alert Bay picket steps of legislalture today in bid to get government to change its mind on refusal to hold a public inquiry into area's medical services. Federal Health Minister David Crombie promised to visit Alert Bay within a few weeks, but told demonstrators he had to keep a hands-off attitude on a provincial inquiry. Natives failed in attempts to meet provincial Health Minister Bob McClelland. (Bill Halkett photo).

Tomato growers panic, says Hewitt

Squeeze a tomato grower and you'll find someone who pushes the panic button every year and misleads the press, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt said Tuesday.

The problem of getting local tomatoes to market at competitive prices has been investigated by the ministry and found not serious, the minister said in the legislature in response to questions on what he is doing about the issue.

Dave Stupich (NDP — Nanaimo) asked what action he was taking to prevent B.C. tomatoes from rotting in storage because a glut of California tomatoes have flooded the market, depressing prices.

But Hewitt said "Arnaud raises this issue almost on an annual basis, but in checking with the (greenhouse growers) association, it was found not to be as severe as Mr. Arnaud led the press to believe."

Outside the house, Hewitt said he didn't believe Arnaud deliberately exaggerated the situation, but that he was just warning the ministry of the potential danger.

The opposition also pointed out to Hewitt that with the energy crisis in the U.S., it is considerably cheaper for Americans to ship produce north to Canada than across the continental U.S., leading to further competition for local producers.

Hewitt said that issue, too, has been looked at. His ministry has worked with Ottawa in setting seasonal tariffs to protect local producers, he said.

Hewitt said in past years when the same problem of cheap U.S. produce threatening local growers has come up, it has resulted in markets being shorted.

So much depends on the weather, he said. If the weather changes and the flow slows down, suddely retailers who may have advertised specials can't get adequate supplies.

His staff, growers, wholesalers and retailers are all working together, as they do every year, to keep a regular supply of tomatoes and other produce available to the consumer, he said.

Explosion 'just like a volcano'

By PAUL MINVIELLE
Times Staff

"I looked up and there were balls of fire rolling out, just like a volcano."

Mrs. Jean Armstrong of Peterborough, Ont., was the only person to actually see an 18-foot travel trailer explode Tuesday in the KOA campground at the east end of Mount Newton Crossroad in Central Saanich.

The blast seriously injured 54-year-old Gilbert Blais of Winnipeg, as well as his wife, Patricia, and son, Lee.

Propane — heavier than air and with a tendency to pool or collect in a low spot — had leaked from what Central Saanich police and fire officials believe was a faulty lead-in pipe to the stove. When Blais lit his match or lighter, the gas exploded and demolished the trailer.

Mrs. Armstrong's husband, Lorne, was less than 20 feet from the Blais trailer checking the water level in his car's radiator. When the Blais trailer exploded, shards of glass and debris sprayed Armstrong's car and whistled past him, littering the road beyond and beside him with glass. Three feet to his left, a section of the Blais trailer wall slammed to the ground.

Several glass fragments struck the car with enough force to chip the paint and scratch the side windows.

Not a particle struck him.

Mrs. Armstrong saw Blais run behind the Armstrong trailer, his hair burned off and his skin hanging in shreds. For an agonizing few moments, she didn't know if her husband had been hurt.

Then Armstrong was beside Blais, asking if anyone was still in the demolished and smoking trailer.

"My wife. Get my wife," Blais yelled.

Other campers rushed to the aid of the stricken family, and Mrs. Blais and the family dog were taken from where the bedroom of the trailer had been. The Blais' son was found outside, dazed and hurt.

Blais, a CNR conductor, had told Armstrong the night before that he would be retiring in a year or so after 38 or 39 years service with the railway.

He was listed in fair condition this morning in the burns unit of Victoria General Hospital. His wife and son, in an adjacent burns unit, are in good condition.

Other damage in addition to the Blais trailer and the Armstrong car was limited to the front picture window of the Armstrong's trailer, which was shattered by the concussion of the blast.

Langford fire chief Al LeQuesne said today that when firemen arrived at the scene, neither of the two fire hydrants in the privately-owned park worked and firemen had to rely on water in their pumper and tank trucks.

"If there had been any wind we would have had a major disaster on our hands," he said.

As it was the fire gutted a 12-by-60 foot trailer owned by Edna and Royce Richardson, scorched the side of a trailer next door, destroyed a wood cabana and torched nearby trees.

The loss has been put at $20,000.

LeQuesne said several residents used garden hoses to keep the fire from spreading. Firemen had to drive about half a mile to replenish water supplies in their trucks.

No one was injured in the blaze which erupted shortly before 11 a.m. when an instant-on television in the living-room of Richardson's trailer exploded.

1978 novels go for 10¢

The Greater Victoria Public Library's board was told Tuesday that novels published in 1978 were sold for 10 cents each at the library's recent book auction.

E.D. Ward-Harris, chairman of the library services and programs committee, said he had been told the novels had been sold at the low price.

He also was told a whole set of Dickens "in mint condition" had been sold at the auction.

Ward-Harris had been asked to investigate claims by Esquimalt alderman Larry Mann that a 1978 edition of The Far East and Australiaia, which the alderman had bought for $1, had cost $60 and should not have been sold at that give-away price.

Ward-Harris quoted from a report by Helen McKay, co-ordinator of Information Services, in whch she explained the data in the book is now out-of-date.

In her report, McKay said: "Annuals are expensive but if an annual costs us $60 that breaks down to $5 a month which is modest in comparison with some of our other monthly charges — for local newspapers, for example."

Mann, however, suggested that such annuals might very well be on the shelves of the provincial and University of Victoria libraries and some sort of interlibrary loan arrangement might avoid duplication.

Ward-Harris said he would look into the matter.

At the previous meeting, Mann had also questioned why another book he had bought at the auction, Montessori Today, had been sold.

In her report McKay said the book was out of date because it had been published in 1971.

"Statistics quoted are 1960s statistics and the directories of teaching institutions and the bibliography of printed works on Montessori cannot be relied on in 1979."

Trustee retreat to clear air?

The motion to hold the daylong retreat was unanimously approved by board members in early June, but it wasn't until this week that a time and place was set. The location remains a secret.

"It wouldn't be a retreat if we told you where it was, would it?" said board chairman Carol Pickup this morning.

Hope was expressed at the time that trustees would examine the board's performance and look for ways to improve morale.

Mention was made of the fact that some board members had been openly critical of the board's committee system, and others had expressed the necessity of trust and a co-operative spirit among trustees if the functioning of the board was to improve.
